DITCH CONTRACT NOTICE.

Notice is hereby given that on the 11th day of August, A. D. 1884, at 10 o'clock a. m., at the house of Frederick Haak on section 36, I will be present for the purpose of letting contracts to the lowest bidder for the construction of a drain in said township, commencing 34 rods west and 7 feet south of the southeast corner of the north half of the southwest quarter of section 36, in town one north of range 10 east, township of Southfield; thence running east 34½ rods to the east side of the one-quarter line; thence along the east side of said line, thence north 6 rods, thence east 17½ rods, thence north 15 rods, thence east 11 rods to the Hubard ditch, so called; total length, 1141 rods; width of bottom, 2 feet; slope of each side, 1½ feet to 1 foot rise; average depth, 3.62-100 feet; average width on surface, 11.5-100 feet. I will at the time of letting such contracts be present to review all assessments of benefit upon the lands which said drain is to benefit.

GEORGE SHERMAN,
Township Drain Commissioner.

DATED at Southfield this 29th day of July, A. D., 1884.

Stonewall Jackson's Daughter.

American girls in London of late have completely eclipsed the fame of such professional beauties as Mrs. Langtry, Mrs. Cornwallis West and Lady Dudley. Having fallen at the feet of Mrs Chamberlain, Mary Anderson, and Mamie Palmer, they are now raving over the charms of Julia Jackson, the daughter of Stonewall Jackson. She must have been riding in Rotten Row when she captured the nobility and gentry of the United Kingdom, for, in this country at least, her beauty would hardly attract attention in a crowd. But she is the most graceful and magnificent horsewoman that I ever saw. I was introduced to her at the White Sulphur Springs, Virginia, a few years ago and rode with her frequently over the difficult mountain roads of the neighborhood. She seemed born to the saddle, guided her steed with all the ease imaginable, and challenged the emulation of her male companions by her fearlessness in galloping along the edge of a yawning chasm hundreds of feet deep, jumping stone walls and leaping ditches. Her figure is petite and willowy, but her complexion is sallow, and the plainness of her features is only relieved by the magnificent lustre and jet black eyes of a pair of big black eyes. She will certainly astonish the Britishers by her rare combination of good sense and culture with an utter freedom from conventionality. On horseback she is every inch her father's daughter, and no great stretch of imagination one could fancy her leading a desperate charge with all the spirit and ardor of martial inspiration. Miss Jackson is quite young, fill in her teens, in fact. Her life has been mostly spent in the country, and she was hardly thrown in Northern society until a few months before her departure, when she visited Boston, was handsomely received and created a genuine sensation. Her family is comparatively poor, having lost nearly everything by the war. But it is to be hoped that by the way of legitimate reprisal for the capture of so many of our heiresses by impecunious English lords she may make captive some wealthy scion of the British nobility.

An Accomplished Negro Butler.

One day last fall a handsome mulatto boy came to the door of a friend of mine, asking for work. He was a good butler, he explained, despite his years; he had been carefully trained and could do many things outside of his strict line of duty. My friend happened to need just such a serving man, and accepted him very imprudently on his face, which was good, without asking particularly for his recommendations which were bad. He was a most accomplished servant. He knew all about the dining room; he knew all about the front door. He was willing and ready and quiet, and a great success in every way. He was an extremely polite boy, thoroughly gentle and kind, and he soon worked his way into the good graces of the family. One day when one of the young ladies was playing the piano, he was discovered listening. The next day he was found listening again. His devotion to music was remarked upon. Finally he plucked up courage to ask if he could not sit down to the piano at odd moments when the ladies were otherwise engaged. They said he could. He did at the first opportunity, and for a mulatto serving man he played exquisitely. Of course the ladies heard him, and were pleased. They felt they had a jewel. They did not have him long. One day, after he had won the hearts of the whole family, he quietly stepped out with all the jewelry he could lay his delicate hands on. On Tuesday he was arraigned at the bar of the police court, charged with having swindled a dozen families in the same way. He pleaded guilty in his dulcet tones to each charge, and was held in heavy bail for trial. Washington Cor. Philadelphia Record.

It is said that Harriet Beecher Stowe gathers, on an average, 60,000 oranges per year from her little grove in Florida.

CHANCERY ORDER. State of Michigan, 36th Judicial Circuit in Chancery. Suit pending in the Circuit Court for the County of Oakland in Chancery, at Pontiac on the 20th day of June, A. D., 1884. In a cause wherein William Findon is complainant and Eliza Findon is defendant, it is satisfactorily appearing to me from the affidavit of said William Findon, on file, that the defendant, Eliza Findon, is not a resident of the state but is a resident of England; on motion of Silas T. Penn, complainant's solicitor, it is ordered that said defendant, Eliza Findon, cause her appearance to be entered in said suit and answer the bill of complaint filed therein within five months from the date of this order, and in default thereof the bill of complaint filed in said cause be taken as confessed by the said nonresident defendant. And it is further ordered that within twenty days after the date hereof the said complainant cause a copy of this order to be published in The Daily Oakland Press, a newspaper printed, published and circulated in said county, and that the publication be continued therein at least once each week for six weeks in succession, or that he cause a copy of this order to be personally served on said nonresident defendant at least twenty days before the above time prescribed for her appearance.

Undertaking Continued BY KYNAST BROS.,

We the undersigned desire to make known to the public, that we have recently purchased of Mrs. L. W. Lyon, the entire Undertaking Business including Stock Fixtures. Mr. Lyon retires from business, Kynast Bros. succeed. Having now two well established Businesses in one, we anticipate a large trade. We have therefore reduced prices on all our goods, cheerfully giving our patronage to the benefit of the union of these two businesses namely: Furniture & Undertaking, which really belong together, especially in a country town, as experience for running the two branches of business are but little more than they would be for one branch only. Our experience in the Undertaking profession has been of six years practice, and constant study to improve and perfect the business in all its branches, and making it one of first class in every respect. Many have been the improvements and some very practical inventions made by us, for which we have not space to explain, but we cordially invite all to call at our Undertaking Department on Main street, and we will show you through. We now furnish patent folding chairs at each funeral free of charge for the convenience of mourners and friends. We also attend to the laying out of bodies and preserving them by the school taught by the Rochester school of N. Y., the best method in the world. Call early and we will give satisfaction in every instance. And now thanking you for the many kind favors of the past, we hope to merit a continuance of the same in the future. We shall do all we can to make our place of business pleasant and attractive for you to come. Honesty the best policy is our guiding star. Live and let live our motto. Residence over furniture store on Main street, one of us are always to be found day or night Sunday included, call early
