PRISONER KICKS JAIL INTO A SCRAP HEAP

Enraged Captive Objects to Being Locked Up and Smashes Bastile to Pieces.

Greenwich, Conn.—Fritz Lowitzer of Rye, N. Y., kicked a jail into what amounted to complete prostration the other night. He was so mad, was Fritz Lowitzer.

The jail happened to be the special pride of Chief of Police W. E. Rich of this town; it was Greenwich's only jail and such a nice jail, at that, until Fritz Lowitzer began to work on it during the still hours of the night. The next morning the internal injuries to the jail could only be described as appalling.

The riled man from Rye got into a row during the afternoon with Conductor Eddie Burke, on a trolley car, between Rye and Stamford, because the conductor would not let a friend of Started to Kick the Jail to Death.

Fritz's ride on Fritz's pass book. They fought and the conductor hurled the rye toysterer out onto the landscape of Sound Beach.

There Lowitzer waited until the car was on its return trip from Stamford, when he boarded it again and sought more trouble from Conductor Burke. He found it. Burke turned him over to the Greenwich police when the car drew opposite the town hall here. Lowitzer was put in jail to allow his anger to cool.

Chief of Police Rich, in his anxiety to make the Greenwich jail one of unsurpassed comfort to all guests, has thrown open three neatly furnished rooms wherein temporary lodgers can room. Fritz has the whole jail to himself. The more he thought upon the indignities that had been heaped upon him by the conductor the higher mounted the Lowitzer wrath, until some time in the night, when all had left the offices over the lock-up and silence lapped Greenwich in its arms, the enraged prisoner started to kick the jail to death.

He broke every window in the three rooms, kicked a desk to splinters, stamped on the drinking cups, bit holes in the plaster, ripped off strips of molding and reduced Chief Rich's specially upholstered chairs to scrap.

"I have revenge!" screamed Lowitzer, when one of the chief's deputies visted the jail the next day and surveyed the ruins.

Fritz Lowitzer is right; he will have his revenge, but it will cover a period of 60 days in the county jail. Judge Burns ordered that

REPUBLIC LIVES 13 HOURS

Mexican Federal Bullets End Reign of "El Presidente," Who Founded State on Liquor.

Santa Isabel, Chih., Mex.—For thirteen hours the ranchers living in the little town of Cienegnita, near this place, fought a body of federal troops the other day that the honor and integrity of a nation they had formed here the night before might live, and the republic, conceived in a debauch, was buried in bullets and ended in the whole town being declared revolutionary. Even the police department, a person named Pedro Terrible, was arrested and sent to Chihuahua.

The people of the Cienegnita ranch do not approve of the manner in which the government is operated, and, at a party late last night, it was decided to change things, especially the political workings in this state. With that proposition in view, a revolution instead of a new election was decided on. In the meantime Pancho Villa was named provisional president, but here some one interposed with the statement that Villa could neither read nor write. It made no difference, the citizens declared, and Pancho Villa was named president of the republic of Chihuahua.

News of the intoxicated affairs reached this place and the troops were sent. The citizens were prepared and met the troops with volleys when they attempted to enter the place. After thirteen hours of resistance the cabinet submitted to the appeals of the people that further bloodshed be averted and surrendered. All were executed.

"President" Villa was out robbing a train of the Mexican Northwestern railroad at the time of the attack and escaped being captured or shot.

Barrel of Moonshine in Grave.

Rome, Ga.—Revenue officers dug up a barrel of whisky from a "grave" and confiscated two of the largest stills ever operated in this district. The operators escaped on a signal given by a friend hunting in the woods. In order to keep the inquisitive from suspecting anything, the whisky had been buried deep in a hole and the dirt arranged in the shape of a grave with slabs stuck at both ends. The officers were alert, and discovered the deception.
