My First Pint of "Agur."

I never shall forget my first fit of the "Agur." I had it about 40 years ago, when I lived in M—, a pleasant rural village in Michigan. One warm day in July while I was sitting in my house reading a newspaper, I felt chilly and complained about the coolness of the atmosphere, and of course I went to work stuffing the stove with wood; my wife couldn't see it as I did, and complained of the heat; here we had a dispute about that, and I continued heating and hingeing the stove and growling about the coldness of the weather. After a while a change came over me, and it seemed to grow warmer and I went to work and put out the fire, and then of course I complained of the change, and said it was a queer climate to change so suddenly. Then I wanted water, so I went to the well and drew a cool bucket of water out of the north-west corner of it as near as I could calculate; water tasted good then then, of! it was so refreshing. While I was complaining of this state of things an old woman, an inveterate snuff taker came into the house to borrow a loaf of bread; some critters plus, two tallow candles, etc. On hearing me use some sharp sentences about the change of the weather and its disagreeable state, she cried "Oh! I no what's matter with you, you've got the agur." Well, I had got it and it used me quite rough too, and for about two weeks it turned me into something besides a christian.

The Assessment Plan.

It doesn't go by that name in the furniture trade, but the general idea is the same, and any hard-working, slow-saving furniture dealer who contemplates "working" his creditors may be pleased with the following account of how they "work" mines out in Nevada:

"No; no hoisting works—not if I know it. You can fool away a good deal of good, hard coin on hoisting works." "How then do you run your mine?" "On the assessment plan, sir. That's the latest and most approved method. When we have a good map of the lower workings we don't need any works to speak of. I keep a man in Virginia at $60 a month to superintend the location and write weekly letters, and I stay in San Francisco in my office on Pine street, and levy the assessments every sixty days; that's as often as the law allows. I am the president, board of trustees, secretary, treasurer, and everything—more especially the treasurer. Of course I draw salary for all offices, and when I get through drawing salaries I turn the rest over to the agent in Virginia to pay off the hands. By not employing any hands, he saves enough to pay himself. This is what I call scientific mining, sir. You get the liver out of the pockets of the stock holders and leave the mass argentiferous and auriferous deposits in your claim for your children, who can go right ahead and develop the mine as soon as the public quit putting up, which isn't at all likely to happen. As long as people are being born in Nevada and California my mine will run on like a chronometer clock." "But," said the Utah man, "my style of mining keeps lots of men at work." "So does mine," quoth the Golden Gate chap. "Thousands of men are working night and day to pay the assessments. It keeps the country so busy as a bee-hive," and the speaker sauntered to the telegraph office to order assessment No. 36.—Ex.
