FOR A BRIDE.

Matters Were Very Mixed and the Groom Was Furious.

"The funniest experience I ever had," said Colonel L. A. Leonard, of Cincinnati, was during a visit I recently made to New York in company with my sister. We went to the Grand Union hotel, and I requested the clerk to give us a couple of adjoining rooms.

"I understood the clerk to say that we were assigned to rooms 99 and 101. We were conducted to the rooms and I was shown to 99. Shortly afterward my sister informed me that she could not succeed in getting anyone to answer the bell, and requested me to ring mine and order a pitcher of ice-water for her. I rang, and requested the boy who responded to take a pitcher of ice-water to room 101. Before going down stairs, a few minutes later, I asked my sister if she received the ice-water, and was informed that she had not. I rang again and told the second boy to take a pitcher of ice-water to room 101. I went below and soon returned, and was surprised to learn that no ice-water had been delivered in my sister's room.

"By that time I was interested, and told my sister that I would see that she got some ice-water if I had to go after it myself. So I rang once more and told the bellboy that a pitcher of ice-water must be taken to room 101 right away, and he said that he would surely attend to it.

"After waiting some time I made inquiry of my sister again, and she said that no ice water had come, and begged me not to bother myself about it, as it seemed to be a hopeless task. But I replied that water was cheap and she should have some sure. I went to the person in charge of our corridor and preferred a request that a pitcher of ice-water be sent to room 101. I received a promise that it should be attended to instanter. But it wasn't.

"My next attempt was to prevail upon the elevator-boy to take a pitcher of ice-water to room 101. He declared that he would do so on the next trip.

"He failed. In despair I went to the office of the hotel and asked the clerk if it were possible to have a pitcher of ice-water sent to room 101.

"Certainly,' was the answer, 'that can be done without any trouble.'

"I have been trying to get it done ever since I came here, and I haven't made the rifle yet,' I said, 'and it is a possible thing I would like to have it done.'

"Later I stepped into the elevator and the boy there asked me if I were going up to the 101 floor.'

"Yes,' I responded. 'Why?'

"A hundred and one will throw you out of the window if he catches you,' said the boy.

"What are you talking about?' I asked.

"Why, there is a bride and groom in 101 and you have been firing ice-water in their room all evening and the man is wild. He swears he will murder you.

"Upon investigation I found that my sister's room was not 101 at all, but was 97. My room was 99, and as my sister's room was next to it I thought it was 101. There I had sent about ten pitchers of ice-water to 101, and didn't know it.

"I had left a call at the office for 99 and 101 for 6 o'clock the next morning when I was going down stairs last and never thought to have it changed. So at 4 o'clock the bride and groom were awakened by a thundering knock at the door, which made them furious, and they were firmly persuaded that the early call was a part of the ice-water fiend's scheme to annoy them.

"I escaped with my life and was glad of it."—New York Morning Journal.

FOREIGN COMMERCE.

How to Restore Our Foreign Carrying-Trade—Ships and Seamen.

Commerce has its "strategy" no less than war. In war, strategy depends on lines of operation and communication; in this time it depends upon means for either commerce or war. Our great rival controls both in every sense of the word. This pitiable condition on the ocean is emphasized by the contrast of our unrivalled power, resource and enterprise within our own borders. It seems indeed the strangest anomaly of modern civilization, that the most enlightened, most ambitious, most energetic, most productive, and internally most powerful, nation on the globe should be externally among the weakest, most helpless, and least respected.

The sole remedy for this situation is ships with seamen to handle them, whether for peace or for war; whether to carry our enormous exports, and bring our immense imports, and receive thereby the tremendous tolls which now flow into foreign coffers, or to vindicate the majesty and power of our flag abroad in the world to a degree befitting our status in the community of nations. There is no lack of raw material, no lack of skill to fashion it into the instruments of commerce. We have the iron and the steel, we have the wood to work them into the finished forms of stately ships; we have the money to promote the most colossal of enterprises by sea. All we need is assurance of a steady national policy of liberal and enlightened encouragement based upon a patriotic common consent, and elevated above the turmoils of politics or the squabbles of parties. One decade of such a party would make us second only to Great Britain on the high seas, either for commerce or for defense; and two decades of it would bring us fairly into the twentieth century as the master maritime power of the globe.—Charles H. Cramp in the North American Review.

JOHN POUND.

Successor to John Pound & Bro.—The Beehive, Pontiac, Mich.; Established A. D. 1870.

To the Public. Ladies and Gentlemen:

We have been 21½ years on Saginaw street without any interruption of interruption of business. No interruption, no to speak, has ever taken place at the Beehive, but we, ourselves, (John Pound), have always been at the head of the concern, and it has been both a going and growing concern from the first, my having been its founder on April 1st, 1860. So much for prefaces and prelude, now for business. We will neither be verbose, prolix, nor exuberant with words, but brief, terse, pointed and practical.

Things to be considered by our customers:

Fact 1—We know the wants in dry goods of the people of this city and vicinity.

Fact 2—We have facilities for buying that are unsurpassed in this part of the country.

Fact 3—We buy only of the importers and manufacturers, thus saving all intermediate profits usually given the middlemen for distribution among our customers in the low prices we offer the goods at.

Fact 4—All goods being bought direct at headquarters—New York, Boston and Philadelphia—and at the various mills, and for cash, no one can get better discounts than ourselves, and it is a well established maxim that "goods well bought are half sold." This being a self-evident and self-evident truism we have demonstrated it to the people of Oakland county.

Fact 5—No monetary panics (we have been through two or three) have hurt us in the least; we have come out of them unsinged and unscathed, hence our credit being first-class we can buy much cheaper in the open market than those less happily circumstanced. It is our pride and glory (we speak modestly) that we have always paid one hundred cents to the dollar.

Fact 6—Our stock in general dry goods, carpets, cloaks, jackets, live geese feathers, lace curtains, silk and dress goods, oil cloths, domestic goods, warps, grain bags, notions and small wares, batts, cloths, white goods and linens, shawls, laces, hosiery and gloves, quilts and comforters, flannels, underwear, gossamers, ribbons, muslin underwear, embroideries, plush and cloth garments, as well as the thousand articles that go to make up a first-class dry goods stock, being by far the largest under one roof in Oakland county, and our prices are the lowest on the same. We invite you to inspect the stock, and shall be glad of an early look through and call, regardless of purchase. An early call to the Beehive is respectfully solicited.

Fact 7—Dr. Schilling's corset is full stock at 75c each. Get them quickly at this reduced figure.

Fact 8—We call everything by its true and proper name, and do not offer or advertise South Carolina or Mississippi river "wool" goods, which we know are all pure cotton as "wool." Such things are misleading, hence we have no wool blankets at 75c and $1.00 per pair, but our cotton blankets at these prices beat any offered in Oakland county.

Yours truly,

JOHN POUND.

The fund for the benefit of Walter Johnny James is slowly growing and we shall soon deposit what we have in some savings bank, against the time when the boy will need it to school himself. We would like to get considerable more and trust our prosperous citizens will not forget that the three cardinal virtues are Faith, Hope and Charity the greatest of these is Charity. The latest acquisition to the fund was contributed by the scholars of the Popplecock school (Miss Frankie Girl is teacher) which amounted to $1 50. Who'll be the next?

The Red Ribbon Reform Club at their meeting last Saturday evening decided to give an entertainment on Christmas eve, similar to the one given by them last year with a Xmas tree, sleigh, boat or something to hang, presents on. Particulars later.

On last Wednesday evening a number of our enterprising citizens met and with the assistance of Deputy Great Commander J. D. Murdock of Plymouth formally organized a Tent of Knights of the Maccabees, consisting of 25 charter members. The Knights are busily engaged in fitting up their hall over S. L. Robbins' store (which they have leased for a term of 10 years) and when finished will be second to none in Oakland county. The Tent is legally organized and ready for work and the order will be just in proportion as the Knights individually and collectively work in union and harmony. The officers are as follows: Commander, F. R. Lamb; Lieutenant Commander, C. S Travis; Past Commander, J. W. Anderson; Prelate, Wm. Strong; Record Keeper, Chas. W. Flinn; Finance Keeper, A. A. Gibbs; Master of Arms, Philip Schlauck; Sargeant, Isaac Strong; 1st Master of the Guards, Fred Phelps; 2nd Master of the Guards, Ralph Bailey; Sentinel, Henry Strong; Picket, Ed Lamb.

TO THE PUBLIC:

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN: We have been twenty-one and one-half years on Saginaw street, and in the same store, without interruption of business. We buy all our goods of either importers or manufacturers, so saving all intermediate profits, usually paid middlemen, which we divide among our customers. In this not worth looking after? We intend to be very brief this week, and will only say that we have all the few Dress Goods that are this season's, made, hasty patterns and "on hit" direct from the importers and manufacturers. Ditto Dress Silks in Black and newest colors. Real Wool Blankets, largest stock, lowest prices.

Carpets in New Designs

And colorings at Rock Bottom prices. No such assortment as ours in Oakland County. We are the house that has downed high prices in Pontiac in every department.
