Goats' Milk the Fad.

Kansas City Star: "The time is coming when Kansas City, like Paris, will live on goat's milk. The harassing early cry of the morning milk man will give way to the joyous bleating of the goat as she is driven up to the back door. Our babies and our grown people will be healthy, and there will be an end to consumption." These predictions were made the other day by Dr. E. R. Allen, the first government meat inspector in Kansas City, now a goat fancier in charge of the model goat farm at Electric Park. "You needn't turn up your nose at my wife did when I brought home my first milk goat. You'll get over it as she did, and you'll drink goat's milk as she did, and you'll enjoy it. There are more people drinking goat's milk in Kansas City to-day than you have any idea of, and there will be more of them right along. Every morning you will find carriages driving up to Electric Park bearing women with their babies; and if you could see them relish the goat milk when they drink it, babies and mothers alike, you would not smile at my prediction, why, we have 120 goats on the farm here and we milk about seventy of them. The goats average from one to three quarts a day each, and yet we cannot supply all our trade. I have sent to W. T. McIntyre, who owns these goats, to send two hundred more milkers from his ranch.

"We established the government inspection here in '91," said Mr. Allen, "and during my time at the stock yards and packing houses we inspected thousands upon thousands of goats that were slaughtered. After several years my attention was brought to the fact that in all those thousands of goats that had been inspected not one diseased goat had been found. We gave them three inspections, an antimortem, a post-mortem, and a microscopic inspection. It seemed remarkable to me that there was not at least one diseased goat in all these numbers, for we found many unhealthy cattle, and this fact first made me interested in the little milkers.

"At that time the packing company was slaughtering goats by the thousands, but the prejudice was so strong against the goat that their meat was placed on the market as "prime mutton" and was very popular. Since the banquet at the stock yards a year ago, when nothing but goat meat was served, the prejudice has gradually disappeared and you will now find 'Angora venison' in almost every market. These goats we have here are Mexican milk goats, but most of them are crossed with Angora.

"It has been several years since I have drank or used in any way cow's milk. During our meat inspection at the stockyards we frequently came across cows that were sent down by dairymen to be slaughtered because they had ceased to be valuable as dairy cows. The dairymen said they had 'bad udders' and when we came to kill them we found the udder was hard and caked. A microscopic examination showed that the 'bad udder' was full of tuberculosis germs, and we were horrified to find that these germs were in a position to mingle with every bit of milk given by the cow. That startled me and I never used cow's milk again. I went before the council to urge not only a rigid inspection of milk sold by all dairies, but also a rigid inspection of the cows in these dairies. The matter was taken up, but it got lost in the maze of politics. Goat's milk has all the properties of cow's milk, with the added value of absolute purity. The cream in the milk does not separate as it does in the cow's milk, but it is very rich in butter fat, and when butter is made the milk is churned without skimming. Excellent cheese can be made from the goat's milk."

Machinery in Creameries.

An expert in creamery management says: Refrigerators are often too large and not well built, causing the waste of large quantities of ice. Damp, moldy refrigerators are a common source of loss. In covering ice in the icehouse, wet sawdust, or an insufficient quantity is often used, resulting in rapid melting of the ice. Improper lining of shafting, light shafting or too few hangers cause increase in friction and loss of power. The same results follow where the belts are not run at the proper tensions. The overloading of machinery results in increased wear and tear, if nothing more serious happens. Sufficient oil, and no more than will keep the bearings properly lubricated, should be used. The experienced creamery man should have his ear so attuned to the ordinary noise of the machinery that he will quickly detect any unusual sound, so that he may find out the cause in time to prevent an expensive and annoying breakdown. Very frequently machinery is in use that absorbs a great deal of power in doing little work, as where an engine, shafting and pump have to be run to elevate skim milk from the separator. Leaking unions and valves waste steam, and should be attended to. Common valves, that cannot be kept tight, should not be used where high pressure steam is carried.

The boxes and bearings of the engine should be kept carefully adjusted and lubricated, and the slide valve should be set to cut off at the proper place in the stroke. For heating it is often possible to use exhaust steam, which will effect a considerable saving. In using exhaust steam a back pressure valve should be placed on the direct exhaust pipe of the engine. Besides the indirect waste of fuels that has been indicated, there are more direct wastes on account of boilers not being properly bricked in, and by having boilers improperly set; by allowing them to get scaly and dirty, also through priming.

A drain here and there on the farm will immensely increase the value of the property, especially in wet seasons.

Wm. H. Wood is prepared for Route No. 4. Good luck, William.

A. C. Blumberg is on the wind up of the potato harvest. Now for the question of politics and good government.

Joseph Crell and wife have returned from their trip up north and report a good time, but homesick for home, sweet home.

Eli Furgeson, on the place east of the Keyser farm, is moving into Birmingham village.

Lloyd White has accepted a position with the Penoyer & Glass Carriage Mfg. Company of Wayne. Success to him.

Clarence M Quarters has rented Henry Spicer's little farm, south of his old farm, and says he is going to keep bachelor's hall. Now, girls, is the chance of your life.

WITH THE SAGES.

Strongest minds are often those of whom the noisy world hears least.—Wordsworth.

Beyond all doubt, the worst of our enemies are those which we carry about in our own hearts.—Tholuck.

Have nothing in your house that you do not know to be useful and believe to be beautiful.—William Morris.

Choose always the way that seems the best, however, rough it may be. Custom will render it easy and agreeable.—Pythagoras.

All our relaxations, and every holiday we enjoy, are but means to that important end, the better discharge of our duty.—Leathes.

When bad men combine the good must associate, else they will fall one by one, an unpitied sacrifice in a contemptible struggle.—Edmund Burke.

Mammon must be the lord of both worlds, if he is the lord of either. If we admit him to make our earth for us, he will also make our heaven.—F. D. Maurice.

To consume your own choler, as some chimneys consume their own smoke, is a negative yet no slight virtue, nor one of the commonest in these times.—Carlyle.

The entire grace, happiness, and virtue of (a young man's) life depends on his contentment in doing what he can dutifully, and in staying where he is peaceably.—Ruskin.

Nothing is degrading which a high and graceful purpose ennobles, and offices the most menial cease to be menial the moment they are wrought in love.—James Martineau.

Do not flatter yourself that life owes you any more than it owes anybody else. It owes you, in common with all others, just as much as climbing, you can bring down.—W. H. Beecher.

The aim, for which we give our best strength is everything, the visible success as nothing. True faith may be the greatest goodness and fidelity at the highest, when visible success is at the least.—John Hamilton Thom.

Man is a tamer of wild beasts, and these wild beasts are his passion. To draw their teeth and claws, to muzzle and tame them, to turn them into servants and domestic animals, fuming, perhaps, but submissive—in this consists personal education.—Amiel.

SOME HELPFUL THOUGHTS.

"Set your shoulder joyously to the world's wheel."—Havelock Ellis.

"Write it in your heart that every day is the best day of the year."—Emerson.

"The one eternal lesson for us all is how better we can love."—Henry Drummond.

"This is the best day the world has ever seen. Tomorrow will be better."—R. A. Campbell.

"A man who dares to waste an hour of time has not learned the value of life."—Charles Darwin.

"Let us never doubt. Everything which ought to happen will happen."—Harriet Beecher Stowe.

"It is not enough to be industrious; so are the ants. What are you industrious about?"—Thoreau.

It's a wise worm that turns in before the early bird turns out.

All the world's a fruit basket, and the big fruit is always on top.

Any old thing that goes against the grain of the porcupine gets the worst of it.

Bad Coughs

"I had a bad cough for six weeks and could find no relief until I tried Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. One-fourth of a bottle cured me."
L. Hawn, Newington, Ont.

Neglected colds always lead to something serious. They run into chronic bronchitis, pneumonia, asthma, or consumption. Don't wait, but take Ayer's Cherry Pectoral just as soon as your cough begins. A few doses will cure you then. 25c., 50c., $1.00. All druggists.

Consult your doctor. If he says take it, then do as he says. If he tells you not to take it, then don't take it. He knows.

Ayer's Pills cure any tendency to biliousness or constipation, and thus hasten recovery. Purely vegetable. Gently laxative.

CYNICISMS.

The trouble with the state of matrimony is its variable atmosphere.

A man admires a clever woman, but he marries the simpering little fool.

When a man becomes a cynic it is a case of liver pills; with a woman it is heart trouble.

A man who is a good fellow among men is generally questionable in his dealings with women.

If a girl knows nothing more than how to look pretty she plays life's game with a full hand.

Love is either a mighty irritant or an effective soothing sirup, a topic, a stimulant or an intoxicant.

Never trust a husband with another woman. The masculine adjustment is very sensitive to climatic changes.

Matrimony is often nothing more than an elevator, that lifts people up or takes them down without effort on their part.

CAREFULLY THOUGHT OUT.

Sickness is the interest we pay on life's moutsage.

Any woman who regards beauty as superfluous has never tried it.

An optimist is a man who is satisfied with what he doesn't get.

Nothing jars a chronic invalid like being told that he is looking well.

You can't convince a girl that marriage is a failure until after she tries it.

Phonographs have no brains, yet they talk fluently. The same may be said of dudes.

Some folks who don't believe in faith cures have unlimited faith in their physicians.

Young Plants

Every farmer knows that some plants grow better than others. Soil may be the same and seed may seem the same but some plants are weak and others strong.

And that's the way with children. They are like young plants. Same food, same home, same care but some grow big and strong while others stay small and weak.

Scott's Emulsion offers an easy way out of the difficulty. Child weakness often means starvation, not because of lack of food, but because the food does not feed.

Scott's Emulsion really feeds and gives the child growing strength.

Whatever the cause of weakness and failure to grow—Scott's Emulsion seems to find it and set the matter right.

Nine assays from various points in this ore shows values averaging $20.29 gold, $2.68 silver per ton, besides about 4 per cent copper and 8 per cent lead.
