THE SAIS OF CAIRO.

A Peculiar Fashion Indulged by the Rich and Fashionable.

The sais is a runner who keeps in front of a carriage and warns common people out of the way, and who beats them with a stick if they do not hurry up about it. He is a relic of the days when the traffic in all of the streets were so congested that he was an absolute necessity; now he makes it possible for a carriage to move forward at a trot, which without his aid it could not do. It is the sais that to do this he must run swiftly. Most men when they run bend their bodies forward and keep their mouths closed in order to save their wind. The sais runs with his shoulders thrown back and trumpeting like an enraged elephant, says a writer in Harper's Weekly. He holds his long wand at his side like a musket, and not trailing in his hand like a walking-stick, and he wears a soft shirt of white stuff, and a sleeveless coat buried in gold lace. His breeches are white, and as voluminous as a woman's skirts; they fall to a few inches above his knee, the rest of his brown leg is bare and rigid with muscle. On his head he has a fez, with a long black tassel, and a magnificent silk scarf of many colors is bound tightly around his waist.

He is a perfect ideal of color and movement, and as he runs he bellows like a bull, or roars as you have heard a lion roar at feeding time in a menagerie. It is not a human cry at all, and you never hear it, even to the last day of your stay in Cairo, without a start, as though it was a cry of "help" at night, or the quick-clanging bell of a fire engine. There is nothing else in Cairo which is so satisfying. There are sometimes two of them running abreast, dressed exactly alike, and with the upper part of their bodies as rigid as the wands pressed against their side, and with the ends of their scarf and the tassel streaming out behind.

As they yell and bellow, donkeys and carriages and people scramble out of their way until the carriage they precede has rolled rapidly by. Only princesses of the royal harem and consul-generals and the heads of the army of occupation and the Egyptian army are allowed two sais; other people may have one. They appeal to one as much more autocratic appendages than a troop of lifeguards. The raté quaire who first introduced them in Paris will make his name known in a day, and a lord mayor's show or a box seat on a four-in-hand will be a modest and middle class distinction in comparison.

A POSTMASTER WHO TUMBLED

Profited by the Fate of Those Who Had Gone Before

It was in a far West village of about 500 people, and the postmaster was so bland and courteous when the mail came in that I felt it my duty to give him a few words of praise.

"I hev to do it—hev to do it," he whispered in reply. "Come to the door with me. Dye see those three graves over thar?"

"Yes."

"Them's my predecessors in office—three of 'em!"

"Postmasters who have died, eh?"

"Postmasters who hev been killed, sir—wiped out right here because they didn't tumble to human nature around a post-office!"

"You must have a special brand of human nature in this town?" I queried.

"Exactly, sir. Mebby you noticed old Bill Wheeler? He's never got a letter in his life and probably never will, but when he asks for mail I go over the whole grist and do it mighty careful, too. If I just said: 'Nuthin' for you, Bill,' he'd out with his gun and blaze away. Did ye take notice of that one-eyed feller, Jim Hastings? Of course I know thar ain't no letter for him, but I hev to run 'em over and inquire about his health and keep him good-natured. He shot the first postmaster here. Faps you observed the little old woman with a bundle under her arm—John Dawson's wife? Her husband shot the second postmaster because he wouldn't open the office Sunday afternoon."

"And what was the third one shot for?"

"Got too high-toned. Uncle Tom Wallace tried to git him out of bed at midnight to see if there was a letter for him, but he bucked. Uncle Tom kinder hated to shoot, but felt that he orter do it for an example."

"And do you get up nights?"

"I don't hev to. I leave the mail out here in a basket, keep a light burnin' and the door open, and if any one wants to paw the grist over he's at liberty to do it. It's the same on Sundays and I guess the folks are purty well satisfied with the way things is runnin'. Leastwise I hain't been shot at in the four months I've had the place, and I take that as a sign."

Funnels of Ocean Steamers.

Few people have any idea of the size of the funnels on the great ocean steamers. If you ask the first half dozen people you meet for their estimate, it is not likely that one of them will name a figure one-half the actual size. Most persons would say that the diameter of the largest steamer funnel is from four to six feet and would want to wager that it was not more than eight feet. How far from the actual size such guesses are may be understood when it is stated that the funnel of the Etruria measures over a little over eighteen feet in diameter. At even a short distance away this can hardly be believed. It gives an idea of the enormous size of the big steamers. We have grown so accustomed to them nowadays that we accept them as a matter of course.

The Other, Also.

Mother—So you have been fighting, my son?

Johnnie—I had to. Tommie Brown hit me in the face.

Mother—But, my boy, you should have turned the other cheek.

Johnnie—I did, and then he hit that and, by hokey, I couldn't stand it no longer and I licked the stuffin' out of him in about two minutes.

A Natural Ice House.

There is a point near the famous Stony cave, in the Catskill mountains, where ice may be found on any day in the year. This locality is locally known as the Notch, and is walled in on all sides by steep mountains, some of which are more than 3,000 feet high.

Ancestral Timber Leaves Its Mark.

Little Boy—My first name is awful ugly; but you has got a real pretty name, haan't you?"

Little Girl—Yes; I think it is.

Little Boy—Meditatively. "I guess you didn't have any rich ole bachelor aunts, did you?"

DIVERS AND SUNDRY.

Such is the depression in Sydney, Australia, it is said, that homes have been established for servant girls out of employment.

Six Chinese laundrymen of Boston have forsaken their washtubs and leased a farm in Revere, where they will raise "garden sass" for the Boston market.

The people of Maine contend that the Kennebec pours into the sea a greater volume of water than any other river on the Atlantic or Gulf coast, from the St. John to the Mississippi.

A New Jersey chemist has discovered an elixir, which, he asserts, will enable a man, taking nothing else, to live and nothing else in the way of food, to perform heavy labor through long periods of time.

A Douglas county, Oregon, man a short time ago charged a neighbor with stealing a hog valued at $8. The prosecution cost the county $800, of which the loser of the hog got $100 in witness fees and mileage. The accused went free.

The thrifty peasants of Polava Russia, have shown themselves smart enough to take advantage even of a pest. Recently their fields were invaded by swarms of Spanish flies, which they captured and found a ready market for at the druggist's at $1 a pound.

Experiments with a bicycle fitted out with a small chemical tank and fire axe are being made by a South Boston fire company. The bicycle has cushion tires and with its whole outfit weighs about sixty pounds. The tank holds about two gallons of chemical, which amounts as an extinguisher to about twelve pails of water.

Col. H. G. Prout, editor of the Railroad Gazette, in a lecture before the association of civil engineers of Cornell university, estimated that the annual loss from railroad accidents in the United States, due to the destruction of railroad property and the compensation for deaths and injuries, and leaving out entirely destruction of merchandise, reaches over $12,000,000.

MASCULINITIES.

Staylate, yawning — Excuse me, Ethel Knox—Certainly. Good night.

Ella Roddee, a Turk, who can speak nine languages, but cannot write his name in any one, is to be appointed a quarantine inspector at New York.

"I never borrow trouble," said the impecunious man who likes to discourse of his own affairs. "Well," replied the busy man, "I am sorry, but I haven't anything else to lend you today."

Clerk, in hotel out West—The hotel is so crowded, sir, that the best we can do is to put you in the same room with the proprietor. Guest—That will be satisfactory. Will you kindly put my valuables in the safe?

Among the witty definitions that have been credited to eminent men, the following by Colonel Ingersoll is particularly neat: "A politician is a man who wants the people to do something for him; a statesman is a man who wants to do something for the people."

An Irishman was engaged to cut ice from a pond, and was handed a crosscut saw to commence operations with. After looking at the saw, and the man who was to help him in working it, he laid it down on the ice, pulled out a coin from his pocket, and turning to his companion, said: "Come now, let's have a fair play; head or tails goes below."

I have the best facilities for furnishing

Caskets and Burial Cases

Together with all Trimmings. I will attend to every part of the business in a satisfactory manner. All orders for Funerals will be attended to promptly and the friends of the dead will be relieved of all care in arrangements. I shall keep a good stock of coffins, etc., always on hand.

Livery Department.

First-class Single and Double Rigs.

I have recently purchased for my Undertaking Business at considerable expense one of Taylor's Improved Ice Caskets for preserving the dead. This method keeps the body from contact with the remains and does away with the old way of embalming, poisoning and mutilating the body.

SAVE MONEY!

BY READING THIS.

There being no drainage or sewerage in the vicinity where most of the new, temporary World's Fair hotels are located, the advantages of stopping in the heart of the city should not be overlooked, but in addition, the accomodations are better, the prices less and in the matter of transportation the facilities are first class in every respect. The Union Central runs trains to the Fair grounds in 14 minutes for 10c fare and every person is provided with a seat. No one is allowed to stand. The elevated railroad runs to the Fair grounds in 30 minutes for 5c fare and people starting from the heart of the city always get a seat, those starting from intermediate points being obliged to stand.

Rates same as ever, 75c to $1.50 per day.

No advance rates for the World's Fair season.

Rooms heated by steam without extra charge.

Electric call and return bells and electric fire alarm in each room.

Fire escapes at each end of halls.

All front rooms have large French plate glass windows, from which a view of two of the busiest streets of Chicago can be seen.

Street cars from Northwestern and Union depots direct to hotel entrance, and from Polk street depot to within one block of hotel.

Write for rooms in advance.
