

That she went home... but my lips, but she went home... I thought, "If you're really your bar-hound, there is time to escape."

"Indeed, it is entirely too late" she cried out. "Why do you look at me like that? All our set have cards—I should die of mortification to put it off now."

"Better be laughed at a week than miserable for a lifetime," I retorted. "I will defend her to the death, just as at the moment Kate put her head in at the door."

"I stand by her as long as she is in my power," I said to her. "I will not let her be hurt. I will be heartily ashamed of myself."

"I will be heartily ashamed of myself," I said to her. "I will be heartily ashamed of myself. I will be heartily ashamed of myself."

TWO WEDDING DAYS

Everything had been duly and properly arranged for our wedding. The engagement of Miss Nell Harley to Mr. William Langley had been announced in the fashion column of a leading society journal, and the wedding day had arrived.
