No doubt you have heard of the big rush, jam and bulged conditions of the Detroit post office last week over the Christmas gift. Well, the same conditions prevailed in our home post office, only on a smaller scale. Beginning Monday of last week, the fever of Christmas gifts became apparent. Postmaster Mitchell and four capable clerks, Mrs. Belle Jennings, Miss Nellie Camp, Miss Mable Force and Miss Evelina Newell, worked every evening after closing hours until 10, 11, and even 12 o'clock, to keep up with the game—and they did. Every morning the work opened on new business in a clean swept office, and all ready for the day's work. Everybody concerned with the business said this year's Christmas business exceeds all records. On Friday 42 big sacks arrived and three letter bags, big and full. On Saturday came 25 more. But with it all calm and went Christmas cheer.

HARD LUCK HITS BUSY BURGLAR

Illustrates Conditions Under Which Leading Second-Story Workers Are Striving.

SOFT FOR THE POLICE

After Getting Away With Suitcase in Taxicab Burglar Checks It at Hotel Where Owner Is Stopping.

New York.—The way luck is breaking against conscientious union burglars these days they might just as well go to work or else issue invitations to the police department when they arrange an evening of diverting crime.

As evidence of the perfectly abominable conditions under which some of our leading second-story workers are striving just hearken to the rough deal fate handed to Edward Winkler, thirty-seven years old, who says he is a salesman.

According to the yarn which the police says he spun for them Winkler possessed himself of a suitcase containing $300 worth of jewelry, some French lingerie and a new hat belonging to Mrs. Mabel Connors. He entered Mrs. Connors' apartment, according to the police, by means of a key known in police parlance as "a skeleton."

Suitcase Disappears.

Mr. William V. Dee of Bridgeport, Conn. newly arrived in New York, on his way to the Hermitage hotel, halted the taxicab in which he was riding in front of the Automat restaurant in Sixth avenue, near Forty-second street. While he was inside his suitcase disappeared, and he reported the matter to the police and bewailed the affair to the Hermitage hotel clerk.

Mr Dee, passing the Hermitage hotel check room on his way to breakfast, espied a familiar looking suitcase. It was his. He identified it, and under the eye of the manager opened it. Previously he had told the manager about having silver mounted military brushes and some new shirts in that missing grip. So it was natural that when he opened it and found that he was looking into some pale blue lingerie there were some snickers of amusement behind him.

Bemoans Hard Luck.

Once more the police were notified, and Detectives O'Connell and McLaughlin took up their posts near the check room, waiting for the man who checked the grip to put in his appearance. Winkler entered. He was arrested and taken to Second branch detective bureau.

"Say," he asked, "how many hotels are there in New York?"

"About two thousand or more," said O'Connell.

After calling on profanity to its bitterest depths, Winkler concluded:

"And to think I picked out the one this guy was staying at to check his grip!"

Mrs. Connors identified her possessions, but missed the hat and some silk stockings

"I gave 'em to my sweetheart," Winkler explained.

NECK BROKEN IN INITIATION

Candidate Tossed in Blanket by Lodge Members is Fatally Injured.

Dubois, Pa.—Thomas Leon Reed, twenty-one, is dead at his home at Olanta, Clearfield county, as a result of an accident sustained while being initiated into the mysteries of a secret order.

Reed, a strapping six-footer, was the last of nine candidates to be initiated into a side degree of the order, and when it came his time to take the degree was required to walk, blindfolded, on a narrow plank, at the end of which he was required to jump off into a blanket held by the members of the order, after which he was tossed into the air several times.

In falling into the blanket young Reed, after being tossed the third time, struck on his head and broke his neck. He was taken at once to his home, where he died two days later. A coroner's jury gave a verdict of accidental death and exonerated the members of the order.

Too Big For Cell.

St. Joseph, Mo.—The criminal court here was compelled to take judicial cognizance of a physical peculiarity of Mrs. Clara Cochran. She was fined $50 and costs for selling liquor and was unable to pay.

Her size prevented her incarceration in jail and she was given time in which to raise the money.

The Kilt in History.

The Scottish kilt, as an article of dress, dates back to historic times, and was originally, so far as can be figured out, merely a plaid blanket worn about the shoulders with one end gathered about the loins in cold weather. The mountaineers of the Highlands wear the kilt, and students say that the soldiers of the Assyrian empire wore a costume very closely akin to the kilt of Scotland.

This sensational play, one of the most successful of the century, and for many years the starring vehicle of Robert Hilliard, has been converted into a supremely vivid and startling photo-play by the William Fox forces.

Edward Jose, former leading man with Sarah Bernhardt, portrays in a masterly manner the "Fool" who forsakes family and friends for a soulless, sensual creature in the guise of a beautiful woman.

Theda Bara, leading woman at the Theatre Antoine, Paris, has been cast as the "Vampire," one of the most fascinating, though revolting, female characters ever created.
