Why Fish Are Near-Sighted.

As a result of a number of expert mental studies, detectives have found that the eyes of fish are relatively large in comparison with human eyes; a fish's eye is ordinary about one-twentieth of the length of its body, while that of a man is from one-sixteenth to one-seventeenth of the height. It is believed that this is one reason for their near-sightedness.

Out of the Running.

He—"I have half a mind to ask you to be my wife." She—"Have you? Well, I'm sorry, but I really couldn't marry a man with only half a mind."

Ancient Greek Hair Wisdom.

The earliest writer to conceive of the idea of a rotating earth was Philolaus, a Greek, who lived in the fifth century before Christ. The same man on purely philosophical principles, also hit upon the idea of the sun as the center of our system—an idea that had to wait 2,000 years for confirmation, until Copernicus came in 1540.

Humility Not All.

Humility is the part of wisdom and is most becoming in men. But let no one discourage self-reliance; it is, of all, the greatest quality of true manliness.—Louis Fossuth.

History in Almanacs.

It is possible to trace in records of almanacs all the changes of popular belief and taste. They were prepared to meet the current demand and to constitute a systematic story of what took place in successive periods and how knowledge increased with the revolving years. We owe to them most that we know of the people for whom they were made and by whom they were indorsed.

Names of the Days.

The names of most of the days of the week have their origin in Saxon words and Scandinavian mythology. They are as follows: Monday, the day of the moon; Tuesday, the day devoted to Tiw, the god of war; Wednesday, the day of Odin or Wodin, king of the gods; Thursday, the day of Thor, god of thunder; Friday, the day devoted to Frigga, wife of Wodin; Saturday, the day of Saturn; Sunday, the day of the worship of the sun.

PAIGE

The Standard of Value and Quality

REMEMBER, you can only get out of a product precisely what the manufacturer puts into it.

There is no substitute for basic quality. No matter whether it be a typewriter, farm tractor or automobile, service must be EUILT IN the product—not merely veneered on the surface.

There, you have the very essence of the Paige idea.

There you have the compelling motive behind every car which has ever left this factory.

There you have the REASON for the astounding value which you will find in the Paige, seven-passenger, Fairfield Model "Six-46".

Let us repeat with all possible emphasis—"Paige builds not for price, but for Quality."
