DAUGHTER OF AGUINALDO IN U. S. CAPITAL

She Meets Many Wives of American Statesmen and Makes a Hit.

When General Emilio Aguinaldo was leading the Filipino army against the American forces twenty years ago he probably little dreamed that some day a daughter of his would visit the city of Washington and would be given a great reception at the famous Congressional Club! And that the wives of 120 members of the American Congress and two wives of members of the President's cabinet would call upon her to pay their respects!

But all this actually happened when Miss Carmen Aguinaldo, his nineteen-year-old daughter, visited Washington recently. And those wives of the American statesmen expressed themselves as both charmed and surprised at the refined, tactful, college educated young miss who greeted them.

"Miss Aguinaldo was simply delightful," was the expression of one congressman's wife. "She was very modest, yet she acted so natural and thoroughly at home that she captivated everybody."

MISS CARMEN AGUINALDO, Daughter of the Former Leader of the Filipino Army.

On another occasion while in Washington Miss Aguinaldo was given a great ovation by a Filipino-American audience when she recited "My Last Farewell," poem of Dr. Jose Rizal, the Filipino martyr.

Miss Aguinaldo is a student at the University of Illinois, Urbana, Ill. While in Washington she was the guest of Mrs. James C. Jeffreys, wife of one of the resident commissioners from the Philippines. The capitol building and the Congressional library appealed particularly to the young Filipina, while the beautiful sights from the Washington monument thrilled her with delight. When asked how she liked America, she smiled and answered:

"It is a wonderful country. I didn't like it at first, but since I have learned how to skate I am having fine times. All the Americans whom I have met have been very good to me. My friends in Urbana and my classmates in the university are just lovely, but I cannot help feeling homesick at times because I am missing my father. My coming here was indeed a great sacrifice for him, for we are very close. He is so good to me."

Miss Aguinaldo is intensely patriotic. She does not conceal her resentment when she hears or reads of a misrepresentation of the Filipinos. "It is unfortunate," she once exclaimed in a voice full of sadness, "that my country and my people are hardly known, much less understood, by the people of America."

Politics is tabooed in any conversation with this Filipino maid. She evades the topic by replying that she is too young to express opinions on things political. "All I can say," she declares, "is that I share with my father in the desire for independence for my native land. There is no question about our being able to govern ourselves."

Filipinos declare Miss Aguinaldo has a "genuine Filipina temperament," that is, she does not believe in the occidental custom of "dates" between young men and women. She does not see anything wrong in it, she says, but it is such a violent departure from the custom in the Philippines that she did not adopt it.

"You might laugh at me," she said, "but I cannot go out with one single escort unchaperoned. I simply can't. I will go back to my country with the soul of a Filipina."

A newspaper in one of the large American cities that Miss Aguinaldo visited expressed the opinion that she would no doubt be greatly impressed by the sight of street cars and some of the fine residences she would see, but the truth is the young lady was raised in Manila, where she has seen an up-to-date street car system all her life.

Tasmania.

The island of Tasmania, formerly called Van Diemen's Land, lies off the south coast of Australia. It has an area of 26,215 square miles. It is covered by a network of ridges, termed locally tiers, which enclose a multitude of small planes and valleys. The principal industries are agriculture, mining, stock raising and some manufacturing. Tasmania is a state in the Commonwealth of Australia. It has a population of two hundred thousand. Its exports are wool, gold, silver, tin, timber, fruit, jam, hops and hides.

ON THE FUNNY SIDE

Thriftless.

"You don't seem to have much respect for those other painters refer to as the old masters."

"None whatever," said Mr. Dauber Slap. "They slighted their opportunities. Think of the money they could have made merely by painting into a picture a passenger or two and something that was big enough and Mortal Supremacy.

"If you will make it three, we will said the old-fashioned lady, "I will see if they are."

"Young man, I'm sorry to tell you, I am a married woman. Why don't you go and find some girl who is your own age? I'm old enough to be your mother."

"Why, madam, I'm sure I can think you are."

Not in Vain.

"No doubt," said the young physician, "you have had many painful observations in your long life."

"Why, doctor," said the old lady, "I'm not so very old, and I'm only a young."

"It's not the number of years," said the doctor, "but the number of years old enough to be a mother and experienced."

Restoring Elasticity of Rubber.

Rubber articles that have become hard recover their elasticity in a short time if placed in 3 per cent carbolic water or 3 per cent aniline solution. In the case of the carbolic solution it must not be forgotten that black goods exposed to it become gray. If it is desired to preserve the black or red color of the goods, that, too, can be done. A 1 per cent solution of potassium permanganate is employed. It is true that this smells unpleasant, but the restoration of elasticity is quite considerable.
