Mr. Jerome Aldrich and wife have arrived from San Angelo, Tex. and are now with Mrs. A. Denison, of Bates street. At the depth of 70 feet up at Cranbrook last week Friday, J. H. Carter struck a flowing stream of water for George G. Booth that Harvey says beats any well he ever struck before. It raises 20 feet above the surface of the ground very easily, and a six inch sewer main is not large enough to carry away the water. It will flow over 150 gallons per minute, and is a jim dandy. The flow of the water is only equaled by the joy of Mr. Booth.

It is proposed to enact an ordinance at Pontiac limiting the number of saloons to 10—if the county goes wet. The mayor is understood to approve of the proposed ordinance, which will also include a clause by which all undesirable applicants for licenses can be turned down. Under the Warner-Crampton law 30 saloons could be established at Pontiac.

We are going to announce in our next issue full particulars of the biggest present ever offered in Birmingham. Last Friday a pleasant event took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney L. Clark, it being the gathering of a number of friends of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Brown, to bid them farewell on the eve of their departure for the west. Silently, in the gloaming, little groups wended their way to Willits street, until only two were lacking of the contemplated number. Then, by a mild form of deception that boded no ill, the Browns were induced to come over and spend the evening with the Clark's. On entering, to their utter bewilderment, they were greeted with the wildest enthusiasm, and made part of the happy throng. After some time spent in social intercourse, Mr. Clark, in a speech full of wit and humor, inaugurated the program, and throughout, proved himself an able master of ceremonies. Speeches and recitations, interspersed with songs, enlivened the evening. Impersonations and stories by little Miss Peters delighted the company. At the request, and in behalf of their friends, Dr. Jamieson presented Mrs. Brown with a handsome toilet set, and Mr. Brown with an artistic meerschaum pipe. The recipients replied in neat little speeches, full of appreciation of the gifts and the spirit that had prompted the donors. Abundant refreshments were served and enjoyed. Leave was taken with lingering regret, and at a late hour, or early—we not not when—little groups, sober and thoughtful, wended their several ways, while the street lamps blinked and, one by one, went out. And the old town slept.
