On Thursday last Julius Rindel

The tract formerly belonged to the E. A. Adams farm near Gilbert lake, and is a piece of land that Rindel would be satisfied with owning all the land around the country. Just like him.

Jud Warner, a young married man, died yesterday at his home in this place of disease on the brain, after an illness of about two weeks. Deceased was born in Springwater, Livingston county, New York, Oct. 2, 1862, and during the residence of about a year in this place he has made many friends, who regret his early death. He leaves a wife—Staten Island, Boyne City, Mich.

On Sunday last, Oscar Williams, a former Birmingham boy and a recent returned missionary from China, will preach morning and evening at the M. E. church. Those who have been fortunate enough to hear Mr. Williams preach, will be sure to hear him again next Sunday, as he is a pastor of unquestioned ability and a varied experience in China give him an interesting subject.
