Seeking For Succos.

Oh, who is this man a bos planing often
Bulge out with a carrier mad surprise,
As down the street he's according?

Is he a murderer wild and grim,
Who fears that flarce flends will follow him
With how's half taunts and hooting? Or is he skedaddling from his wife,
Who has threatened now to take his life
By means of a loaded broomstick?
Or use a burglar, not or bold,
Who game for broath in the biting cold.
And thinks he bears his doom's flok?

And thinks he hears his doom's tick ?

No none of these is this wild-gred man,
Who rims as serif as a deer ever ran ever the series of the series deer with a deepening deere

To plead with his proud piumber.

To plead with his proud piumber,

The pipes in his house have bulged and be measured to the series of the series of

Of the coals in his furnace glowing
Ab, he is a king, who sits and chinks
His piles of gold, as he calmly thinks
Of the crop the cold is sowing.
