ANNUAL SENIOR-FROSH RECEPTION ATTRACTED 275 GUESTS FRIDAY EVE

When the last bars of the last dance died away at the Senior-Freshman reception a week ago tonight, 275 guests regretfully departed, vowing that this party was one of the best that the Baldwin high school had ever given. It took the form of a fancy dress and masquerade.

Blue and yellow, the school colors, predominated against a background of pastel shaded crepe paper in a rainbow effect that decorated the gymnasium. The orchestra, in the middle of the room, was half hidden by a framework similarly decorated. Irene Hanley, Mabel Cook, Albert Guthrie, William Plotkin, and Helen Savage were the senior decorating comittee in charge of Margaret Ross. The refreshments consisted of punch and stick candy.

At 10 o'clock the orchestra struck up a march and the dancers in couples paraded down the floor before the judges, C. E. Buck and J. E. Stroup, who were to select the costumes most deserving of mention. Monselle Hoffman and Frederick Wittlesey won the first prizes, a compact and a box of candy, as a Spanish couple. Harold Teichman wore the funniest costume, a Negro mammy, and won another box of candy. The other costumes selected for worthy mention were a pirate, worn by David Gafill, and a Charlie Chaplin and his partner, impersonated by Roderick Cox and Richard Ellerby.

Included among the patrons were Mr. and Mrs. Roy Brown, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Buck, and Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Stroup.

PRESB. LADIES' SOCIETY DIVIDED INTO 4 GROUPS

Mrs. Seymour Adams held a meeting of her division of the Ladies' Church Society of the First Presbyterian Church at her home on Adams avenue last Monday afternoon, while Mrs. T. B. Smith met her division Monday evening at the church.

The Ladies' Church Society has developed into such a large organization that its members have been compelled to divide it into small sections for which entertainment is more easily provided. Each division, of which there are four, gives yearly two entertainments of a money-making nature. Once a month one of the sections furnishes a program at a meeting of the whole society. The four leaders are: Mesdames S. Adams, G. W. Jensen, D. G. Emerson, and T. B. Smith. Division one will hold a food sale at Erwin & Smith's Market Saturday, September 26.

Mrs. Coryell's grandmother, Mrs. Gillett, while visiting in Detroit, broke her hip and shoulder and is now at Harper Hospital. Mrs. Gillett's daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Logan, have arrived from Terre Haute to render any possible assistance that may be necessary.

Historic Old Thurber Home, Built In 1824, Succumbs To Modern Progress

By Helen V. Walker

Establishing in its wake a new standard in prices, a different mode of living with modernized ideals, real estate advancement has brought about unnumbered changes to the village of Birmingham that has wakened it from a quiet, slumbering village of a quarter of a century ago, to a modern, bustling village. Not alone has the change effected the village, but its influence has penetrated the quaint old customs and habits of even the historic old country places. This week has seen the passing of one of Birmingham's oldest and most picturesque homesteads and the replacement of the old rail fences and winding cow pasture by formal stone walls, prim hedges and broad cinder roads. This most recent of old homesteads to be invaded by the subdivider is the Thomas Thurber home on the east shore of Wing lake, west of Birmingham.

Not alone does the home depend upon itself for its ancient air and historical element, but, like the old families of New England, it can be referred back to an old line of New England stock. For, it not only has gained a dignity of its own through a life of nearly 100 years, but is the reproduction of one of New York state's first quaint dwellings.

Built by Deacon Bull

On land taken from the government in 1824, Deacon Bull, one of the austere and precise New England parsons of the "old school", prepared to build his family a home in the 1840's. He was caring for the religious needs of a little group of Presbyterians in the first Frank-Presbyterian church. For a home he selected Wing Lake, even then considered one of the most beautiful spots around Birmingham. From the time of his coming to his church charge in Franklin he had occupied a small log cabin on his claim on the lake and when his family grew to ten children, he started with his sons to build a home large enough for all of them.

Evidences of these months of labor are still to be found in the house now, which became the home of Thomas Thurber in the 1890's. Hand-hewn rafters are still to be seen in the Thurber home which has been left as near its original state as possible, with just the most necessary improvements installed. Deacon Bull was of Old New England stock and the house was an exact reproduction of his ramshackle home in New York state which dated back to before the days of the revolution.

Mr. Thurber bought the house several years before his marriage to Alice Hagerman, a daughter of one of the families whose name was connected with Birmingham's earliest history. The five artistic Thurber children were born and raised in the home and, with their mother, who is an artist of some note, have used the home and surroundings as subjects of many of their paintings.

This week the family is packing the heirlooms and precious antiques that have furnished the entire house, in preparation of moving to Birmingham next week where they have taken a home on Oak street. Architects and contractors are soon to lay hands on the old home and make it modern while still preserving, as far as possible, the old lines and interesting features. The house, instead of being the center of a great farm as in days past, will be confined to a single lot, for subdividers have taken hold and cut the farm into lots, roads, and parkways.

The home has been offered for sale by the syndicate that bought the farm and trained eyes with no gleam of sentiment, but with accuracy for the old lines, will bring the house up to date. Some of the "atmosphere" that it breathes will be lost with the removal of the antique furniture, but much of it will be retained. There is, for instance, the open fireplace in the kitchen with the hooks that were used for the turning spit where the meals were cooked. Unlike the fireplace of more recent date, this took great logs that were piled in and burned for a day at a time.

Not only the family who will vacate the old home this week will cherish tender memories of it, but almost every boy and girl who attended school in Birmingham public schools for twenty years or more past will also set teeth hard and wipe away a tear. For during the years that the Thurber children were in school there was seldom a class that did not picnic on the Thurber farm, or spend a part of a day racing over the fields, or an evening in the beach on Wing Lake where the farm fronted.

Mrs. William Pallister of Highland Park is spending some time as the guest of her daughter, Mrs. Robert Groves on East Maple avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Mills of Hamilton avenue and Mr. and Mrs. Myron Parish of Drayton Plains arrived at their homes last Friday from a ten-day motor trip in northern Michigan, Au Sable Lake being one of the places visited.

Miss Burdeen Hoover, Miss Myrtle Buzzle, Miss Carrie Roxbury, and James Rupert of Caro spent the last week-end with Mrs. James Todd on Pierce street.

Stewart, the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Cobb of Oakland avenue, entered the Detroit City College last Monday.

Legion Auxiliary

The Ladies Auxiliary of the American Legion will hold its regular monthly business meeting Tuesday afternoon, September 29, at the home of Mrs. Joseph McGregor on Hamilton avenue. Mrs. Ethel Taylor of Frank street will give her report of the state convention at this meeting and there will be other important business brought before the 50 members, who are all requested to be present.

Margaret Janet Tait

Margaret Janet Tait, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Tait of Emmons avenue, Eco City, died September 20 at the age of five months. She was buried September 21 at Roseland Park Cemetery.

At Oakland Hills

Among the many dinner reservations at the Oakland Hills Country Club last night previous to the annual meeting and election of officers, were a large number of members from Birmingham and Bloomfield Hills. The general activities of the club have been greatly lessened since the return of vacationists and with the exception of the dinner last night, which was one of the most popular during the season, there has been little of interest in a social way during the week although the crisp days are bringing out a large number of golfers during the day.

Bridge-Luncheon

The South room of the Lone Pine Tea House was charmingly arranged with autumn garden flowers for an attractive tea today when Mrs. Milton R. Schatz of Lincoln avenue was hostess to a group of Detroit women. Her guests included the officers and executive committee of the Detroit Federation of Women's Clubs. The hostess had her guests at bridge in the afternoon.

Mrs. Little Entertains

Covers were laid for 25 guests at a very attractive bridge luncheon at the Lone Pine Tea House last Tuesday, when Mrs. Joseph P. Little entertained a group of the young matrons from Birmingham and the Hills. Mrs. Little has very recently returned to her home on Ridgedale avenue after spending the summer sojourning in Europe.

Dinner For Bride-Elect

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick J. Robinson held a lovely dinner at their home on Lone Pine Road last Tuesday evening, honoring Miss Grace Briggs whose engagement to their son, Dean Robinson, was recently announced. Miss Briggs is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter O. Briggs of Bloomfield Hills and the dinner party included members of the Robinson and Briggs families. Miss Briggs will leave early in October with her parents for several months abroad.

Visiting At Lake Placid

Expecting to spend about ten days golfing, George A. Moore of Harmon avenue left last Wednesday for the Adirondacks and will spend his time at Lake Placid. During his absence Mrs. Moore is entertaining for Mlle. Albertine Macon who landed in New York last Tuesday from Paris, France. She was with Mrs. Moore during the war in France where they were directrice of Foyer des Allies in Paris.

California Guest

One of the very interesting guests in the village during the past week was Mrs. F. G. Atwater of Pasadena, California, formerly a Detroit woman, who was the house-guest over last weekend of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Whittenberger on West Maple road. Last Saturday evening Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Bronner were hosts at a beautifully appointed dinner at Oakland Hills Country Club honoring Mr. and Mrs. Atwater and a number of other delightful affairs are planned to entertain them before they return to their home, about October 15.

Will Give Bridge Party

The home of Mrs. Frederick Dickinson on Pilgrim road will be the scene of a small bridge party this Saturday evening. The guests from Detroit are: Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Watts, Mr. and Mrs. Verne Tucker, Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Towers, and Dr. and Mrs. Allan McDonald. Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Casey are the only guests on from Birmingham.

Bloomfield Country Club

Bloomfield Hills Country Club has also been quiet during the past week. Since the Saturday evening club dances stopped on September 12, and the school set has gradually started off to their studies, the club has taken on a conservative autumn appearance. As at Oakland Hills the principal interest in the past week has been the links and on the cool afternoons there may be seen numerous familiar foursomes over the course making the best of the short weeks that remain.

Gaylord Wilson of Milwaukee, Wisconsin, who has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Burtraw and Miss Caroline Woostee of Ann street, left last Monday to resume his studies at the University of Michigan.

ROTARY PICNIC

Wylie Bell's summer home on Pine Lake was the scene of high revels last evening. The Rotarians held a picnic, and the food, you assume, was provided by their wives. Wrong! The men decided to supply the edibles—whether out of a desire to give the ladies a respite from their usual duties or to display their own culinary skill will never be known. At any rate, it fell to the lot of Messrs. J. E. Stroup, R. Lynd and E. L. Manson to sally forth to Pine Lake Thursday afternoon, donning aprons, and preside over the stoves that everything would be in readiness at 5:30 p. m., the time of the feasters' arrival. They came and did ample justice to the man-made meal.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Standart returned to Birmingham last Sunday from Elk Rapids where they passed the summer. They will spend the winter in Boston with their daughter, Mrs. Donald Ferguson.

Mrs. William Brownrigg of Villa road had as her guests the first part of this week Jake Brownrigg of Detroit and Miss Gertrude Meyers of Manistee.

Mrs. Lena Woehl of Los Angeles, Cal., and a few friends from Detroit were the guests last Tuesday of Miss Hulda Schulz of Watkins avenue.

Mrs. Howard Addleman returned to her home on Brookside Drive the first of this week from the Pontiac hospital where she underwent an operation, and is showing decided improvement.

Mrs. F. S. Ross entertained the art division of the Literary Club last Tuesday afternoon at her home on Willetts street.

The St. Margaret's Guild of the St. James Episcopal Church met last Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Ward Cruickshank on Park street. Mrs. William Chamberlin of Ravine road assisted Mrs. Cruickshank.
