Community House Gaily Decorated On Occasion Of Its Third Birthday

Although the weather on Wednesday was not the kind that is generally considered necessary for a successful birthday party, the April face presented by the sky, alternately cloudy and fair, and the chill wind only served to make the long room of the Community House look unusually inviting to the many people who dropped in during the course of the afternoon and evening to wish it a happy third birthday. Many were the exclamations of admiration as the guests entered the room which had been transformed by the generosity of friends into a picturesque studio. The mellow shaded light of many lamps, orange tapers, blooming window boxes, trailing vines, sprays of pussy willow, glowing marigolds, and snapdragons, and colorful hangings blended together in a way that made the room indescribably cosy and cheerful. To carry out further the allusion of a studio all the hostesses wore brightly colored smocks.

Furniture for the occasion was loaned by Mrs. John W. Watling and Mrs. Thomas Donlon, who, with her husband, is an enthusiastic collector of antiques. Among the pieces loaned by the Donlons were four early Italian chairs and a gateleg table. The large samovar used on the tea table at which Mrs. H. A. O'Dell poured belongs to Mrs. Walter Morley, the Italian rugs to Mrs. Leslie Lamborn, the Chinese embroideries and tea set to Miss Griffith, and other pieces to Mrs. T. R. Donovan and Mrs. Harry Winston.

Occupying a conspicuous place was the huge birthday cake, bearing three candles, imposingly festooned with pink frosting, and displaying the legend: Community House, April 28, 1923-1926. In the evening it was cut by Mrs. William S. Harris.

The Community House Scrapbook which has been in the process of formation for the past year made its first appearance at the party. Clippings concerning the House were gathered from all available sources by Mrs. A. P. Richards and her mother. When they moved from Birmingham Miss Jennie Keyes and Miss Susan Trowbridge continued the work. The Bluebirds under the direction of Mrs. Raymond Reilly and the Girl Reserves in charge of Mrs. George Moore pasted all the articles on loose leaf pages. The making of the cover was undertaken as a competitive problem in Miss Kidder's high school art class and Margaret Hurson, Hartwell Ladd, and Marie Wade were selected to furnish the designs. The boards were bound with block printed cloth and the inside covers were done in water colors.

During the afternoon and evening Miss Revah Goldberg, a member of the Detroit Tuesday Musicale played on the harp, while in the evening Miss Mildred Drinkus who recently won an endowment at the Detroit Tuesday Musicale both for voice and sight reading sang and was accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Lila Thompson.

Among the out of town guests were Mrs. Fred M. Shinnick and the other members of the executive board of the Rochester Community House.

W. Raymond of Harmon avenue as hostess next Tuesday afternoon.
