SEMI-CENTENNIAL

Of the Birmingham Presbyterian Church.

Wednesday July 2 was a memorable day in the history of the Presbyterian church in Birmingham.

A few of the ladies led by Mrs. Seymour Adams resolved that the semi-centennial anniversary should be fittingly observed.

On Tuesday the 21st inst. a large assembly of the members and friends gathered in the church at 2 o'clock p. m.

It is any wonder that our girls are apt to flirt while starting words about 'old maids' and 'forever single' in the east?

They flirt to catch husbands, fearing the 'terrible disgrace' of remaining single. Whose fault is all this?

It is any wonder that our young men they might discover that single women their habits will be but small barriers to their winning a wife whenever they choose.

Miss Della Stewart is home from Bay City on a visit.

Mrs. John McKinney is on Dr. Holcomb's sick list.

Henry Spicer has given his barn a new coat of paint.

Mrs. M. A. Thompson is creating a new hair.

Last Sunday at the R. P. church, while C. McCaig was in the act of getting his light, his horse became frightened at it, ran out of the yard, across the road into the ditch and upset the carriage. No damage done.

Girls' Letters. Who nowadays writes letters? We all dash off hurried notes, or hurriedly scribble a postcard, under pressure of immediate necessity.

It was not long ago that postage was so high that letters were a luxury rather than a necessity.
