A FEW LOCAL OPINIONS REGARDING 3 BOND ISSUES

ham and giving to its citizens that which is very necessary to our progress and for our protection."

Mrs. Clayton Kennedy, 708 Bates street, member of the Community House Association: "To cultivate a discerning reading habit in children and young people, worth-while books must be readily accessible. This obvious fact should be sufficient reason for supporting the Library project. If the fire department needs better facilities, I am going to vote for them, and if a civic pride can be fostered in Birmingham by developing a civic area, I want that, too."

Mrs. Raymond Reilly, Oak street, member of the Community House Board: "I believe in the future. Hence, I believe that the future to be successful must be planned. My home has always been in New England where people have great pride in their villages. Arlington, Mass., fifteen years ago, began to develop a center for civic uses. It now has a stunning area with beautiful statuary, memorials, and buildings. I am glad to have had acquaintance with a village that thinks as much of itself as Arlington."

Mrs. Harvey Whalen, Greenwood avenue, member of the Community House Board: "If you have not decided for yourself upon the advisability of voting 'YES' on these three issues it would be best to show your faith in your duly elected leaders by sustaining these projects they have so carefully planned."

Miss Jennie Keyes, of 221 W. Maple avenue, the last one remaining of the nineteen women who founded the Ladies' Library Association: "I am very glad that we are to have a chance to vote upon a beautiful new library and I feel that Martha Baldwin, who led the women for so many years in their efforts to establish and maintain a village library, would be delighted with their new building and its site. It was much harder for us to build the former building in 1893, in our little town than it will be for Birmingham to raise the money for the new building, but the new library will never be loved any more than the little struggling library was by the people of the town who were hungry for books and magazines. Some folks thought we did not need a library and I suppose there are still people who think that, but most everybody was glad to use it after we got it and everybody will be proud of the new building."

World Survey Shows One Car To 71 Persons

There were 24,589,249 motor cars in operation throughout the world on Jan. 1, 1926, according to figures released by the Department of Commerce through the Detroit district office. These were divided as follows: 20,837,146 passenger cars; 172,617 busses; and 3,463,866 trucks.

This gives an average of 71 persons for each automobile.

Not only has the United States the greatest number of motor vehicles, but it has a higher ratio of automobiles to population than any other country, having one car to every six people.

Hawaii has the second highest ratio with one car for every 11 people, while Canada is third with 13 persons for every automobile. The ration of automobiles to population in New Zealand which is next in the order of margin is 1 car to 14 people; that of Australia 1 to 20; while that of Denmark, which is sixth, is 1 car to 51 people.

Ratios for other countries vary from 1 to 53 for France to 1 car to 1,120,000 people in the case of Afghanistan, which has the lowest ratio.
