NEVER UTTERED

Gleanings from the trail of an Eccentric staff member's brain storm and in no way connected with the persons whose names are profaned.

George Mitchell, Brown street: "That great big derigible they had tied to the dock down here reminds me of the first automobile that came to Birmingham about 50 years ago. That was just as great an event, what with confetti in the air, steam and whistles blowing and all. Ah me, that was an event."

Robert McClelland, village assessor: "There are several ways of doing almost anything. Take golf for instance. Some persons accomplish great, long drives with left handed clubs while others can knock the ball just as far from the starboard side. This analogy which is forceful illustrates the subject to a tee. It came to me one day on the links."

Mrs. Hazel E. Lawler, village clerk: "When one stands on a Sunday afternoon and also on Woodward avenue one certainly must admit that Yes, this truly is a mechanical age, as the many persons automobile their automobiles on Sunday afternoon on Woodward avenue."

Lloyd L. Stanley, scout executive: "Friction causes heat. It causes, in some cases, fire. It also causes in some cases a heated and fiery disposition. Friction does that, don't you see?"

H. B. Clement, architect: "The difference between architecture and another art, say dancing, is the difference between a kinetic and a static art. One never sees architecture tripping about on its toes."

L. E. Colgrove, president, Birmingham Real Estate board: "It will not be long now until winter with its snowy sidewalks and sleety sidewalks and slushy sidewalks and uncleaned sidewalks and sidewalks that are being cleaned, as I say, winter is coming and it will not be long now."
