SHUBERT-DETROIT

The Earl Carroll Vanities, America's greatest revue, fresh from New York, opened at the Shubert Detroit Opera House, Sunday, Sept. 26, for an engagement of two weeks (matinees Wednesday and Saturday) with the original production from Earl Carroll's Theater. The girlie musical revue played for 13 months in New York and earned the reputation for having "The Most Beautiful Girls in the World." The last performance is Oct. 9.

The new seventh annual edition of the Greenwich Village Follies, heralded as the most entertaining and extravagant show yet offered in this spectacular series, comes to the Shubert Detroit Opera House on Sunday night, October 10th, for a two week's engagement, with matinees on Wednesday and Saturday. Seats may be ordered by mail now.

This is the same Greenwich Village Follies, both as to cast and production, which played all of last season at the Shubert and Chanin Theatres in New York. Detroit is but the second city outside of New York in which the show is presented. Following its local engagement it proceeds to the Apollo Theatre, Chicago, for an eight week run. There are now in the two companies playing this revue, and no other shows masquerading under its title.

This newest edition of the Greenwich Village Follies is particularly extravagant in its comic phases. No less than ten sketches punctuate the gay exercises, embracing in scheme travesty, satire, caricature, antic episodes in song and dance, pantomine and grotesquerie. Interlaced with the hilarity are opulent scenic numbers, spectacle and exquisite tableau. The show is presented in two vivid acts and twenty-six resplendent scenes.

In the populous company are Tom Howard, Irene Delroy, Natasha Natova, Joe Penner, Evelyn Hoey, Sam Hearn, Mae Baird, Archie Thompson, Bailey and Barnum, Kendall Capps, Alice Wellman, Joe Lyons, Arnold Gluck, Paul Russell, Claire Hooper, Marcella Donovan, Gretchen Reinhart, Margaret Walsh and many others. A significant item in the cast is The Sixteen American Rockettes, a group that has been dancing as a unit for two years and the members of which dance with a uniformity and precision that is praiseworthy.

The background for the entire performance is formed by forty lush and distracting beauties, graceful figurantes who add a high pictorial quality to the song and dance numbers.

CASS

The second week of the limited engagement of the international musical comedy success, "Queen High" which is featuring those well-known favorites, Julia Sanderson and Frank Crumit, starts the next Sunday evening at the Cass Theatre, Detroit.

"Queen High" is now playing to capacity houses at the Ambassador Theatre, New York, Queens Theatre, London and the Alcazar Theatre, San Francisco.

Supporting Miss Sanderson and Mr. Crumit in Detroit are such well-known musical comedy favorites as Robert Pitkin, Mildred Brown, Joseph Wagstaff, Nine Olivette, Esther Mitchell, Tom Tomkins, Jack Leslie, Lucille Moore and Joslyn Lyle.

A decided feature of the performance is the sparkling chorus which has been aptly described as containing more pretty girls than a beauty contest.

Twenty lilting melodies go to make up the highly captivating score of the song and dance numbers.

Another decided innovation is the symphony orchestra of twenty musicians that are carried by the company.

Directly after this engagement this organization goes to Chicago for an all-season run.

GARRICK

A ripple of mirth at first, speedily developing into a gale of laughter and eventually growing into a tornado of hilarity which engulfs an audience and tosses it about until it virtually cries for surcease from seemingly endless attacks on its risibilities, such perhaps, best describes "Abie's Irish Rose," which will be the attraction at the Garrick Theatre, Detroit, for one week, beginning next Sunday night.

The play is the creation of Anne Nichols, to whom several previous successful plays are credited. The author herself, is the producer—one of the few independent producers in these days of combines and amalgamations.

The story of "Abie's Irish Rose" in brief, has to do with Able Levy, a war veteran, who fell in love while overseas with Rosemary Murphy, a war nurse. They returned home and are surreptitiously married by a Jewish rabbi, although Able is an Orthodox Jew and Rosemary a fervent Catholic. When the play opens Able is introducing Rosemary to his father as his fiancee, but to assuage suspicion of Rosemary's nationality and religion is forced to add a "sh!" to her name, and as Rose Murphy-Sh! Able's father welcomes her and arranges for a fitting wedding according to the Jewish rite. Just as the ceremony is being performed, Rosemary's father, Patrick Murphy, arrives on the scene, accompanied by a Father Whalen, who, as they imagine, is to bind Rosemary and Michael McGee in wedlock according to the Catholic rituals. The fathers meet, discover each other's racial and religious status, and the complications that develop provide the comedy situations.

The company of players that will present "Able's Irish Rose" in Detroit is the same that played long engagements in St. Louis, Cincinnati, Columbus, Dayton, Indianapolis, Louisville and Kansas City, and includes Elsie Nichols, William A. Powell, Joseph Greenwald, Philip Lord, George Callahan, Charles W. Guthrie, Mildred Elliott and Harry Marks Stewart.

SHUBERT-LAFAYETTE

"The Big Parade," King Vidor's picturization of Laurence Stallings' story of the American doughboy in the world war, returns to the Shubert-Lafayette Theatre, Detroit, for a limited engagement beginning next Sunday night, at 8:30 sharp. Two performances daily will be given thereafter at 2:30 and 8:30. Much interest is manifested in the return of this super-picture which was presented at the Shubert Detroit last season to record-breaking audiences for twelve weeks.

Those who had the advantage of seeing "The Big Parade" on its previous visit, predict that motion pictures will take another step forward with the showings of this production which contains a great love story and abounds in humanity and humor.

The theme deals with a phase of the World War, but that mighty theme is handled for the first time not politely nor as melodramatic spectacle, but the intimate drama of the individuals who struggled, fought, loved and suffered.

This method of treating the personal side of epic events was brought to the fore by the Southern story, by "The Birth of a Nation," and for the Eastern locale it was developed by "Way Down East." In "The Covered Wagon" the fortunes of the Wingate family in their cross-Continent pilgrimage formed the exciting interest. Now in "The Big Parade" Stallings and Vidor have a theme enthralling to all Americans, in the story of three doughboy musketeers and a French girl during the American push across the Argonne.

John Gilbert, Renee Adoree and Tom O'Brien appear as American buddies, while the farmhouse Melisande is enacted by Renee Adoree, herself a Frenchwoman. In filming the story Mr. Vidor enjoyed not only the counsel of Stallings (himself a veteran of the Great Events) but also had the ample resources of the big Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer concern which is presenting the picture.

VILLAGE POLICE DUMP LIQUOR

Birmingham police Saturday observed their regular clean-up, dumping a large quantity of intoxicating liquids which have been confiscated during the past few weeks.

With a member of the state police present they dumped 72 pints of beer, 15 gallons of moonshine whisky, two gallons of hard cider and one quart of wine. All had been taken either from transporters or from those who sold liquor in places.

Birmingham Lodge Guests At Detroit

Birmingham Lodge No. 44, F. and A. M. were the guests of Oriental Lodge, Detroit, at a banquet and initiation in the Crystal ballroom of Detroit's new Masonic Temple, Tuesday. Birmingham Lodge performed the initiation ceremonies.

The principal speaker of the evening was C. S. Evans, of Palestine Lodge, the Detroit man, who with Linton Wells, went around the world in 28 days and 19 hours last spring. Mr. Evans told about his trip and showed moving pictures taken enroute. He spoke of his companion, Mr. Wells, who is a newspaper man, as being "known and recognized and even knowing the best hotels in 150 of the 208 recognized countries of the world."

Stanley Nicholas, Worshipful Master of Oriental Lodge, acted as toastmaster to the 456 guests and welcomed the visitors. Dr. Lynn Harold Hough, of Detroit, was another speaker. Rev Robert Marenus Atkins is a member of Oriental Lodge.
