On Tuesday, against a background suggestive of Flag Day, Billy Averill had 12 guests at his home on Poppleton avenue to celebrate his seventh birthday. Little flags decorated the tables at which the luncheon was served.

Mrs. R. G. Curtis, of Oak Knob, was hostess at a beautifully appointed bridge luncheon and miscellaneous shower Saturday for Miss Marion Condit, of Suffield road, who is to be married June 22 to Lowell T. Snell. Spring flowers made a lovely background for the event. There were 12 guests.

Mrs. Edward Harrigan, of Detroit, who is spending the summer with her mother, Mrs. William Blake, at her home on Harmon avenue, is entertaining her Detroit bridge club at luncheon and bridge today.

Mrs. E. G. Wasey, of Harmon avenue, is at home again, after spending two months visiting her mother, Mrs. Sue E. Willike, in Springfield, Mo.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Rainey were in Lansing for the graduation exercises of Michigan State College last Friday, when their daughter, Miss Eleanor Rainey, received her degree. Mr. and Mrs. Rainey arrived in time for the water carnival and attended the baccalaureate services the Sunday preceding commencement. Mr. Rainey returned that night to Birmingham, going again to Lansing Thursday with a number of guests for the commencement proper.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter O. Briggs, of "Wallpri," are planning to sail from New York June 29 for Europe. Their son, Walter O., Jr., arrived home last week from his studies at Canterbury School in New Milford, Conn.

With THE Women OF Today

BY MRS. LILIAN CAMPBELL

The National League to Abolish Capital Punishment is using the same tactics to do away with the death penalty that were successful in the early fight for woman suffrage, according to Miss Vivian Pierce, executive secretary.

"The work that the League has undertaken in the last three years is more political than organizational," she avers. "Like the woman suffrage leaders in the past, we are attempting to work through the state legislators, attempting to have representatives make a stand pro and con for the abolition of capital punishment."

Miss Pierce has held the position of executive secretary of the League for three years. She has made a close study of homicidal punishment, and declares that capital punishment should not only be removed from state penal codes for its demoralizing effect upon civilization, but for its frequent miscarriage of justice.

"The league for the Abolition of Capital Punishment believes very firmly in law enforcement," Miss Pierce says, "but it contends that capital punishment is more a millstone around the neck of justice than an aid. In the states and countries which have already abolished capital punishment, statistics show that murder has decreased. In no abolition state or country has there been an increase."

Juries may swear that they have no conscientious scruples against sentencing an offender to death, but—psychologically—it does affect their judgment in the case, Miss Pierce thinks.

Dr. George W. Kirchwey, former warden of Sing Sing prison, is president of the League, and many eminent men and women are members, including doctors, lawyers and penologists. The names of Warden Lewis E. Lawes of Sing Sing prison, New York, Dudley Field Malone, Clarence Darrow, Senator Copeland of New York, and many others are among the members.

Miss Vivian Pierce.

"First Lady" Gives Dress

Mrs. Calvin Coolidge has presented to the National Museum at Washington the dress she wore at the first diplomatic reception at the White House after her husband became president. It is made of white satin brocade.

Age Before Youth

Signora Benedetta, feminist leader of Italy, contends that age should be conscripted before youth in future wars. Men in the fifties and sixties should be conscripted first, she thinks, and the youth of the nation saved for peace time service.

Austrian President's Mother

Frau Marianne Hainisch, mother of the president of Austria, is 88 years old. She has always been a stanch liberal and inestigable charity worker. She corresponds with woman in other countries who are active in woman's rights movement and has declared herself at all times an ardent pacifist.

Careful Treatment Of Scalp Urged

By LUCREZIA BORI

Luxuriant hair is even more desirable today than in times gone by. With bobbed hair, it is impossible to cover natural deficiencies by the skillful use of false hair. Unhealthy hair can never be beautiful because of its faded appearance, while beautiful hair, which is really healthy hair, scintillates with life and brightness. Brushing is essential if one is to have beautiful hair. At least five minutes each day should be devoted to this. The brush should be taken not to "jab" the scalp, as it is very sensitive. Place the brush against the scalp gently and firmly, pull it through the hair to the ends. When the brushing is finished, massage the scalp for a few minutes with the finger tips.

If the hair is thin and inclined to oiliness the following treatment will remedy the oily condition, and will stimulate the growth.

Heat equal parts of olive oil and mange cure to a tepid warmth. Part the hair, dip a small bit of cotton in the solution and pat on the scalp along the part. Make a new part half an inch to one side of the first one and repeat. Do this until the entire scalp has been covered. Allow the preparation to remain on for one hour, then shampoo the hair carefully, using warm, not hot, water and liquid soap. Hot water cooks the oil into the hairs, which are porous, and so should never be used.

In case equal parts of olive oil and mange cure produce a stinging sensation on the scalp, change the proportions to one-third mange cure and two-thirds olive oil. Some scalps cannot stand as strong a solution as others. However, the one application will cause no harm, and the formula can be changed for the second treatment.

Repeat this twice each week for several weeks and you will be delighted with the improved condition of your hair.

If the hair tends to dryness follow the same treatment, including the brushing and massage, but use olive oil only, and shampoo the hair only once each week.

Woman In Carolina Is Ordinance Expert

The only woman "chief ordnance expert" in the United States is Mrs. Ida . Hornsby, of Columbia, South Carolina. This is the fifteenth year that she has been chosen as "armorer," of the South Carolina National Guard, in charge of military supplies for 35 units of citizen troops, including coast artilllery, infantry and medical units. She keeps house for machine guns and bayonets, and loves her work.

Mrs. Hornsby's husband was the state armorer until his health failed. For three years before his death he was ubable to go up and down stairs. Mrs. Hornsby began helping him with the work little by little, taking it up when he was forced to lay it down, untll at last she was doing it all—packing the boxes with guns and cartridges, and issuing ammunition to the National Guard companies stationed about the state.

"My worst trouble," she says, "is when they come in here with cigarettes. With all this powder and ammunition lying around, a lighted match might cause a terrible explosion. I have to watch the men every minute to see that they don't scratch matches. Sometimes one of them forgets, and—even if he's a major general—out he goes if he smokes."

Mrs. Hornsby lives upstairs over the Armory and there, in a couple of rooms, she prepares her meals and sleeps; but most of her time is spent among the army supplies, for which she seems to have developed something of an affection. Her inventories are kept with the system of a woman who is proud of her housekeeping.

Mrs. Hornsby's job is a big one, and she does it efficiently. She has been commended by officials higher up, and her opinion is respected by both privates and officers.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

BY MRS. MARY MORTON

MENU HINT

Salads are good and exceedingly healthful to eat at any season of the year. They taste particularly good when the weather is warm and appetites lag. I am including two very different salad recipes in today's menu hint. The pimento rings would be pretty to serve at a luncheon where the colors would add to the decorative scheme.

Macaroni and Cheese
Buttered Green Peas
Pimento Rings or Dandelion Salad
Strawberry Pie Coffee

Today's Recipes

Pimento Rings—A very delicious salad is made by steeping a few mint leaves; straining the boiling water on a package of lemon gelatin. Plain gelatin may be used. Add the juice of one lemon.

When nearly cold add a small can of pimento, cut in strips, pour in ring mold. When set, dip quickly in hot water and turn on lettuce leaves arranged on salad dish or set in individual molds and serve on lettuce. Dot with mayonnaise.

Dandelion Salad—Select tender young dandelions, wash and chop three pints and place in a mixing bowl. Add one-half cup of boiled, diced potatoes and salt and pepper to taste. Brown one-half cup diced bacon in a skillet, add one-half cup vinegar, one-half cup water, six tablespoons sugar and let boil up. Break in two eggs and stir with a fork until the eggs are cooked. Pour over the dandelion mixture, stir and serve hot, garnished with an egg that has been hard cooked and sliced. Lettuce or endive may be served in this way.

Strawberry Pie—Wash, pick over and hull fresh strawberries, allowing about one pint for a pie. Sprinkle generously with sugar and let stand while pastry is being prepared. Make a rich flaky pastry (sufficient for two crusts) and line deep pie pan. Fill with fruit and add more sugar if necessary, dab with bits of butter and cover with upper crust. Press edges of crust well together with fork, moisten crust lightly with milk or water, and bake in hot oven for first ten minutes, then reduce the heat and bake slowly until fruit is cooked. Some cooks prefer a lattice-work upper crust.

SUGGESTIONS

A Picnic Suggestion

Instead of taking linen or paper tablecloth for your picnic suppers, purchase two or three yards of table oilcloth and roll around a wood curtain pole or make a roll from newspaper as one cannot fold oilcloth without cracking. This is always ready and easy to carry and requires no laundering.

Will Not Fall

Add a pinch of cream of tartar to the eggs when they are half beaten and continue to beat until stiff. The whites will not fall, even if not used immediately.

Clean Chimneys

Be sure the chimneys are clean before any paperhanging is done in the house. Or when fall comes along and the furnace is started, your new paper will have to be cleaned.

Holes in Lace

A novel method of mending a hole in lace and one that proves very successful is to put a piece of paper under the hole and stitch on the machine until the hole is filled. Then pick out the paper. Use very fine thread for the stitching.
