CHURCH PLANNING SPECIAL SERVICE

'Loyalty Week' To Be Observed By Institution Here; Speaker Comes From N. Y.

Beginning with the service the evening of Oct. 21, and continuing each evening until Sunday night, Oct. 28, special services will be held at the Baldwin High School under the auspices of the First Baptist Church of Birmingham. During this Loyalty Week the pastor and officers of the Baptist Church will be assisted by one of the leaders of the Northern Baptist Convention, Dr. John S. Stamp of New York City, who will speak each evening.

The purpose of these special Loyalty Week services is to arouse the entire church membership to a higher degree of devotion and to help each member and friend of the church to realize more fully the opportunities and responsibilities relative to the new church building being constructed, Rev. D. L. Woodward said. The services will be both educational and devotional, and no collections or offerings will be made at any of the meetings, he said.

Dr. Stump is the head of the Church Edifice Board of the Northern Baptist Convention, New York. He has served 40 years of service and comes to the Birmingham Baptist Church highly recommended.

The minister and officers of the local church are anxious to secure the attendance of every member and friend of the church at these services during Loyalty Week, it is announced.

The WORLD and All

By CHARLES B. DRISCOLL

REMEMBERING

Just a few old men are left out of hundreds of gay youngsters who made up a certain regiment of volunteer infantry in the Civil War. A few days ago four members met in a reunion. There was talk of disbanding, but the motion lost. The organization goes marching on. The old men of the war, those who are gone as well as those who are still here, are not forgotten. The greatness of a nation today is the reward of their sacrifice and service in holding it together. . . .

WHY WHISPERS?

There is not the slightest good reason for a "whispering campaign" this year. There is no reason for a whispering campaign any year. Issues should be talked about freely and openly. Candidates should be discussed in full voice. Whether a man's religious belief is an issue or not, there is no reason for whispering about it, for being mysterious about it. If it weighs with you, why be ashamed to admit it? If you think the type of a man's creed is sufficient reason for voting against him we ought at least to have the courage to say so. We ought not to be ashamed to whisper about anything we don't dare give voice to. . . .

WHY THE BATTLE?

One reads that the Ohio Federation of Labor is pledged to help striking miners as the winter approaches. What a sad reflection on the general intellectual level of the times is to be found in the apparent inability of coal miners and coal mine owners to agree on wages and hours that are fair. Does side destroy the reason that is not fair, or are both sides too unintelligent to see where their real interest and the interest of the public lie? Why this childish persistence in fighting a year-in and year-out battle?

SUFFRAGETTES

The spirit of the militant suffragettes of old seems to go marching on. Women have pretty well worn out on their fight for rights—whatever those are—in America and England. They seem to be bent on getting something or other in France. Following the rejection of a suffrage bill in the French senate the women parade with placards. . . .

We still play games with each other instead of settling down and arranging our affairs in a decent, dignified, sensible, grown-up way.

CROWNS AND TYRANTS

You don't have to wear a crown to be a tyrant. Check up on the way you treat your employes, your servants, your associates. Are you moving up stage toward the throne? Come on back with the folks.

STAR GAZING

Exclusive Central Press Dispatch to The Eccentric

New York.—New York is made up of movie press agents and other people.

I committed a faux paux the other day.

"Are you the press agent for such and such?" I asked a press agent the other day. He drew himself up in haughty dignity.

"This is the publicity department," he frosted me.

But that's lower strata. The upper call themselves public relations counsel.

Here's some stuff from both classes (they don't intend to be funny, you know):

Ernst Laemmle, Universal director and nephew of Carl Laemmle, president of the Universal Pictures corporation, sailed . . . for Germany. While abroad he plans to make a picture for the Matador Films. . . . Ernst Laemmle has been recuperating from an automobile accident that kept him in the hospital for many months. He will wear an iron brace for some time to come. The accident was due to the locking of the front wheel brakes of his car while traveling at a rapid speed. . . .

Carl Laemmle, president of the Universal Pictures corporation, arrives in New York Sunday on the Twentieth Century. He will be accompanied by his daughter, Rosabelle, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Kleckles and Jack Ross, secretary. . . . Colyer's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clayton J. Heermance, as well as New York friends of the young Fox Film star, have just received photographs from Hollywood showing her with Prince George, youngest son of King George of England. The pictures were caught my news photographers when the Prince of Wales' brother visited Hollywood, nominally incognito. . . . And yet, as her friends point out, she is still democratic.

(Editor's Note: This latter has nothing to do with Al Smith.)

All creatures in distress appeal to the tender hearted Malcolm McGregor. While on location for the Jack London South Seas pearl fishing story "Tropical Nights," which Tiffany-Stahl is now making, a baby goat fell off a dock into 35 feet of water. Its pitiful cries were heard by McGregor, who, though rehearsing a scene on shore, ran to the dock removed his shoes, and dove in. After a struggle with the frightened kid, he came out with the goat tightly clutched in his arms, with clothes dripping and with a broad smile. . . . Mamma and papa goats "baa-ed" their thanks from a jutting rock above. . . .

Dressed in her costume as an oldtime burlesque queen—tights and bodice—Belle Bennett, who is playing the title role in the Tiffany-Stahl production, "The Queen of Burlesque," rushed to a Hollywood hospital, where a boy protege of hers, 15, was suffering from blood poisoning in one of his legs. The boy, who was sinking into a coma, at first did not recognize the lovely lady who appeared before him, but when he discovered it was Miss Bennett he got over his fever and a change for the better was immediately noticed. . . .

It is rumored publicity man get large pay. Well, they've broken into this column—for once.

Many of the numerous temples throughout China are painted bright red.

BE IT HEREBY RESOLVED, that in all instances when property owners request the removal of living trees or permission to remove living trees, and in all instances when officials or employees of the Village of Birmingham deem the removal of living trees from any public property expedient or necessary, the matter be referred to the Village Commission for public hearing, notice of such hearing to be published in a local paper at least in the week prior to such hearing, at a regular meeting, or at a special meeting called for that purpose; and that no permission or authority for the removal of such trees be granted without the affirmative vote of a majority of the Village Commission; and
