TOM GORDON BOUND OVER

Bail For Former Villager Set At $2,000 Supplied

Tom Gordon, formerly of Birmingham, is bound over to circuit court today under bail of $2,000 on a charge of specific sale of liquor following his examination here Friday before Justice Floyd S. Buck. The bail was furnished.

Attorneys for the defense assailed the testimony of deputy sheriff's that they had purchased six drinks of beer and whisky and a quart of whisky from Gordon in his home on the Elizabeth Lake road, Pontiac.

A raid, following the alleged purchases, resulted in the confiscation of several thousand dollars worth of expensive liquors.

Gordon served a sentence of five months in the Detroit House of Correction a year ago on a similar charge.

Two other alleged liquor law violators faced Justice Buck this week.

Glenn Wesley, of Waterford Township, is at liberty under bail of $500 on a charge of keeping a place where liquor is sold. He waived examination in justice court and was bound over to circuit court.

William Buch of Orion Township will have an examination next Friday before Justice Buck on a charge of selling whisky. His bail was set at $1,000.

The three arrests were made by Deputy Clayton Stokes, attached to the liquor squad.

IN HE GOES

The young man you see doing an Annette Kellerman into the pond above is Jack Shaffner, of Wimbleton Drive. His hands are just touching the water, as the Graflex lens snapped the action so that you folks may see what a portion of today's boys do during summer vacation time. The Eccentric hopes that the publication of this picture will not result in any parental misunderstandings in the Shaffner home—because a young chap who dives as gracefully as the lad in the picture does ought to be given something better than strap oil—don't you think? Can you pick out the other boys in the picture? Perhaps one of 'em is yours.
