Shopping In Birmingham
With Betty

The Birmingham Eccentric, in co-operation with village merchants, this week presents a few of the many food attractions for the season, particularly fruits and vegetables for the Thanksgiving Day dinner table.

Royal purple egg-plant, new on the Birmingham vegetable markets, is a delicacy more people should enjoy. Sliced, rolled in egg and in cracker crumbs like oysters, and fried, this vegetable is a treat as royal as its outer purple color on the counters.

And artichokes—try them again! Boiled 20 minutes in water, and served whole, and piping hot, with butter sauce, they're worth remembering. Much of the flavor of tender asparagus is noted. Just peel off one leaf at a time, and dip in butter sauce. Eat the tender yellow portion farthest from the tip. As you go nearer the center of the head of artichoke the leaves are more and more yellow, until at the very heart of the vegetable all but the very tip of the heavy leaf is yellow, and edible.

Broccoli, the new Italian vegetable, is also boiled like asparagus. Serve with Hollandaise sauce. The taste is half cauliflower and half-asparagus.

Celery-cabbage, plentiful on the vegetable market now, should be cut in half, the lettuce-like tops to be used in salads with 1000 Island dressing (for example), while the lower portion with the stalk more like celery should be creamed like cauliflower or cooked as a delicate cabbage for a corned-beef dinner.

Asparagus is marvelous in quality now. Big tender stalks are topped by large budded-tips that are still tenderer. Don't fail to enjoy asparagus this week end.

Mushrooms on the market rice the Ohio hothouse kind that don't have to be peeled. Fried in butter they are delicious. The usual use, of course, is with the beef roast for roast.

By all means try the small cucumber-squashes. Cut in half, and baked about 20 minutes with a strip of baron over the top, and served with butter,—what could taste better?

French endives, brussels sprouts, tomatoes, Kalamazoo golden-heart celery, green peas from the Pacific Coast, and Florida green beans, are plentiful goods on Birmingham vegetable market counters, too.

Besides, there are plenty of turnips, onion bargains from Indiana and Michigan, and rutabagas at economical prices. Potato growers are shipping heavily, because of the mild weather, and prices are very low. Heavy supplies of Round Whites from Michigan and Wisconsin, Long Rosers from Idaho, famous for baking, and Green Mountains from Maine, make potatoes a good thing to buy in 50-lb sacks.

For the thrifty who have storage room in a basement, the way to economy in buying these days lies in the purchase of 50-lb. sacks of onions, rutabagas in 50-lb. sacks, and Irish potatoes by the 100 lbs. All are selling at extremely low prices and offer real opportunities to save money.

Starting Saturday, California seedless navel oranges will be on the fruit markets, much to the delight of Birmingham food shoppers. Valencias from California made their last bow today, to clear the stage for appearance of the cheaper navels, in the meantime, Florida pineapple-oranges are very good, having more and sweeter juice than the California oranges.

Though "green as grass," the D'Anjou pears on the market this week are ripe, and "sweet as can be." Doctors recommend them for weak stomachs. Pears make a delightful gift for anyone who is convalescing and cannot eat heartily.

Boss and Howells are other pear varieties available.

Tangerine lovers are rejoicing over the first appearance, Tuesday, of this easy-peeling, sweet and juicy fruit. Many perfect tangerines to oranges are day.

Persimmons! You're puckering a wry mouth? Not so! Ripe soft and jolly persimmons have a sweeter taste than peaches and give a certain intangible taste-satisfaction. Serve with cream if you like.

And there are alligator pears, each pear equal to two dozen eggs in nourishment value, the fruit dealers say. They can be cut in half like grape-fruit, and served with a dash of vinegar, salt, and pepper. Many use this Florida fruit delicacy in salads, in much the same way as cantaloupe is used, combined with orange, banana, and apple cubes.

Grapefruit from the Indian River section of Florida proves particularly appetizing now. Properly segmented and cut from the skin, grapefruit is easy to eat and still proves a mental morning-eye-opener.

Bananas are golden in calories-value as well as in color, and are always welcome between-meals fruit, and good for the children's lunches.

For cooking snap and flavor, apples from New York state are best. Hubbardstons, Baldwins, Greenings, and 20-ounce Pippins, are varieties on the market, now. Jonathan eating apples coming from the northwest form lines of and glowing exhibits on the fruit counters.

With Thanksgiving only a week away, the question of mince meat for pies puts apples (and celery) on every market list. To give it time to mellow and ripen "just so," before it is packed between crispy dough covers and set in the oven to bake, Thanksgiving mince meat must be made ahead of the gain feast day. Soft-fleshed cooking apples are best for making mince meat, and the Greenings from New York seem ideal.

As for grapes, blue Cornichons, flame Tokays, Green Malagas, and Red Emperors, all appeal to the appetite incredibable. Prices are still reasonable, though the grape season is nearing an end.

HUNTING MISHAPS TOLL IS 15 SO FAR

LANSING, Nov. 20.—Fifteen have been killed and 22 have been injured in hunting accidents since the season on small game opened Sept. 16.

These figures, compiled by the Department of Conservation show practically the same causes of accidents as in previous years.

Guns pulled through fences after them or pulled carelessly from the bottoms of boats, were again frequent causes of accidents. Triggers catching on brush caused several of the accidents.

For a year ago practically all of the hunting accidents were from but a half dozen causes, that are considered practically "standard," this season the 37 reported gun accidents involved many peculiar circumstances. One man was killed when his gun discharged while he was using the stock to kill a snake. Another was killed when his gun discharged as he was using the stock to kill a rabbit he had wounded. Another fatality occurred when a man carrying a flashlight at night was seen by a "deer shiner" who mistook the flashlight for the eyes of a deer. A hunter was standing on a plank bridge, his gun leaning on the rail. The gun slipped through a crack in the floor boards, the trigger daught and the hunter was shot in the hip and one hand.

The Department will continue to compile reports on hunting accidents until the close of the deer season.
