COUNTY VOTES 22% PAY SLICE

Supervisors Cut $131,282 From Salary List For Coming Year

The Oakland County Board of Supervisors last Thursday sliced $131,282 off the 1933 county payroll as compared with that for the current fiscal year, when it definitely adopted the revised recommendations of the committee on salaries.

The reduction, which amounts to about 22 percent of the total, will bring the salary budget for the year to $455,140, providing the Board of Trustees of the County Tuberculosis Sanatorium and the Road Commission, over which the supervisors have no control, agree to adopt the economies which were nevertheless suggested for those departments in the committee's report.

The most important single reduction was made in the sheriff's department, which the Board voted to cut from $103,010 to $80,000 by reducing the number of deputies from 34 to 20. The Board also proceeded to approve a letter to Gov. Wilber M. Brucker requesting him to establish a State Police post in Oakland County.

Every department over which the Board of Supervisors exerts salary control was affected in the reductions.

Eleven times President Hoover's special train, returning from Des Moines, Ia., to Washington, stopped as it passed through cities and towns of Ohio and 11 times the president stepped to the rear platform to greet waiting crowds and ask the politically doubtful Buckeye State to stay in the Republican column this fall. in assessing methods and the use of more modern assessing machinery.

6. Retention of the county system of poor relief.

7. Application through the Governor to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for a loan to aid the county in unemployment relief.

8. Introduction of an installment tax payment plan.

9. Establishment of a county department of public works to replace the present Road Commission and drain commissioner.

10. Abolition of the fee system as a method of payment for public officials.

Commends Poor Commission

The report also contains detailed recommendations concerning all county departments. These include the abandonment of the cement block plant, abolition of the dog warden's office, and salary cuts for the majority of county officials. (The report was completed before the 22 per cent county payroll reduction vote by the Board of Supervisors last week).

Professor Reed comments highly on the efficiency of the present Poor Commission, and declares that its sound business methods must be introduced into other departments if financial disaster is to be averted.

The most drastic recommendations concern the sheriff's department. Professor Reed would abolish the branch office in Royal Oak, discontinue the services of all full-time deputies outside Pontiac, invite the state police to set up an Oakland County post, and with other economies cut the cost of the department at least 50 per cent.

"We picture for Oakland County," Professor Reed says near the close of his report, "a simple unified government, except for the special institutions provided for cities and villages. We picture that unified government an organization as simple as that which exists in the better organized cities of the country.

Smaller Legislative Body

"There would be, if our plan is carried out, a small elected legislative body, to take the place of the unwieldy Board of Supervisors. This body, of not less than seven nor more than 15 members, should be elected either (1) by districts set up in such a way as to fairly represent the people of the county, or (2) at large by proportional representation. Under this latter system every considerable element in the county population would be represented. The board would not be, under this plan, the sole possession of any one political party or faction.

"The legislative body so constituted should have complete power over all the activities and services of the county as a unit of local self-government. There would be four departments—finance, welfare, public works, health—each with a single head appointed by the manager; (the director of finance might be appointed directly by the Board of Supervisors if it were thought necessary to have such a check upon the activities of the manager.)

Auditors Replaced

"The department of finance would possess the financial powers of the present Board of Auditors. This department would include the county treasurer; and the county assessor, the latter of whom would, under our recommendations, take over the functions now performed by supervisors and city and village assessors; this department would also have charge of purchasing and such activities as the garage, and the county manager.

"The department of welfare would have charge of the welfare work now performed by the Poor Commission, the probate judge, and the trustees of the Tuberculosis Sanatorium, and in addition would have charge of mothers' pensions, the contagious hospital, the juvenile home, etc. The probation officer and the friend of the court, though they would continue to be appointed as at present, would function within the department of welfare.

"The public works department would combine the functions of the Road Commission and the drain commissioner and also have charge of the care of county buildings and grounds. The health department would have excusive jurisdiction in health matters throughout the county, including the cities and villages, as well as the medical superintendence of county hospitals. In addition, there would be the offices of the register of deeds and the county clerk and sheriff, who would remain outside the scheme of organization and would continue to be elected by the people until other arrangements were made by the state.

"The form of government which we recommend is one which has worked well in many cities and is bound to work in Oakland County much better than its present confused and intricate form of government. The shortest route to this simple and business-like organization of the county is through a county home rule amendment to the constitution of the state."

cumstances. The work of the Poor Commission is an outstanding example of the application of business ability to the affairs of the community. It shows what can be done by putting public business in competent hands. Similar management applied to the other affairs of the county is the only means by which the present financial crisis can be met."

"Considering the many different functions which are performed, this office (Probate Court) seems to be operating efficiently, and it seems to be the general opinion that the staff is quite competent."

"While the cost of the prosecutor's office has failed to respond to the general movement for economy, the volume of its criminal business has been steadily declining . . ."

"The Oakland County Road Commission has steadily lived within its income."

"There is no office in Oakland County in need of more drastic reorganization than this (sheriff's office) . . . It is significant that there is no state police post in Oakland County. The sheriff's office undertakes to do the whole policing job on a scale which other similar counties do not consider necessary. The absence of state police activity in Oakland County is not due to unwillingness on the part of the state authorities but to the attitude of the sheriff's office."

"We have formed a very favorable opinion of the present management of the hospital (Oakland County Tuberculosis Sanatorium)."

"Oakland County is not conspicuously badly governed, but it is much more expensively governed than even other counties in Michigan, such as Genesee and Kent, with which it may be properly compared."

that their hands cannot perform their enterprise."

Chicago's "white way" is not so crowded as it used to be in the last twenties. The Loop District in the evening gets a fair quota of visitors, most of them bound for the picture shows, at reduced prices. Occasionally a man will shuffle up to you, especially if you stop and look at a shop window; what he wants is a quarter or a half dollar for cats and a room. A fairly well dressed chap gave me a half dollar's worth of political information last night when, to my question of "whom are you vote for on Nov. 8?", he replied: "I'm an iron worker, haven't had a job for months, but I'm for Hoover. I don't lay all the trouble to the President. I just came on from the west coast; couldn't get a job anywhere. But I think Hoover knows what it's all about, so I'll give him my vote. Most of the fellows out of work that I talk to feel about the same. They don't like the depression, but they're smart enough to know that it takes brains and experience to be President, and they ain't sold on Roosevelt."

Well, enough from Chicago this week. I'll have to save some of this typewriter ribbon for Republican editorial copy during the rest of the week. So, so long . . . for another seven days.

Robert Y. Moore

U. S. MAY PAY FULL COST OF HILLS P. O.

Recommendations for placing the Bloomfield Hills postoffice under the complete control and expense of the Federal Government instead of continuing it on the combined federal-city basis as at present were approved by the City Commission last night.

The recommendations were based on a tentative agreement reached between A. R. Glancy, Lone Pine road, and postal authorities. Mr. Glancy is chairman of a committee authorized by the Commission several weeks ago to investigate the postoffice department.

If the agreement is approved definitely in Washington, where Mr. Glancy plans to follow it up personally within the near future, the Federal Government will take over the entire 20 miles of highway represented in the Bloomfield Hills mail delivery route, instead of only the 11 miles on which it stands the expense at present.

It will also pay all other costs incident to the maintenance of the office on its present standards, except that special delivery letters will not be delivered outside a radius of a mile from the postoffice except in the regular delivery, 11 families will be forced to receive their mail at their front gates instead of at their doors, and the Government will pay the village in rent only what is allowed by statute for third class postoffices. The rent at present is approximately $522 above this standard.

Mr. Glancy estimated the new arrangement would save the city about $3,000 annually.
