SATURDAY CLUB TO RESUME MEETINGS

Wood Working, Clay Modeling, Sewing, Art, Dramatics To Be Taught

The Saturday Club, organized a year ago under auspices of the Birmingham unit of the American Association of University Women, will resume its meetings Saturday at the Community House for children of eight, nine and ten years of age.

The first gathering will be in the form of an organization meeting when the various groups will be formed. The Club, which is a recreational project, will offer instruction in wood working, clay modeling, hand sewing, puppets, dramatics, art and folk singing.

Mrs. Marjorie T. Casson who is now conducting evening classes in physical education at the Barnum School under auspices of the Barnum P. T. A., will be in charge of the club as director. Mrs. Casson is familiar with the work of the club, having been in charge of dramatics a year ago.

Assisting in the organization of the club will be Theodore Czerkowski of Brookside School, formerly of the Merrill Palmer School of Detroit, who was active in directing the project a year ago. Mrs. Casson will have as her assistants, also, a group of members of the A. A. U. W., including Mrs. W. O. Jeffery, Mrs. William E. Essery, Mrs. L. E. Daniels, Mrs. H. E. Jackson, and Mrs. C. Howard Donnelly. Mrs. Robert F. Watt, who acted as chairman a year ago, will serve this year in an advisory capacity.

Girl Scouts To Win Honors At Winter Court of Awards

Birmingham Girl Scouts will receive the various distinctions and merit badges for which they have been striving, at the midwinter Court of Awards to be held Friday evening at the Community House, following a dinner for 300 guests including Girl Scouts, their parents and friends.

Mrs. F. W. DuBois, Girl Scout Commissioner, will introduce Charles S. Kinnison, who will be the only speaker at the dinner. Another feature of the dinner hour will be the singing of the Girl Scout hymn. The committee in charge of dinner arrangements includes Mrs. Charles S. Kinnison, Mrs. Lee A White and Mrs. Floyd A. Franklin, the latter is in charge of the sale of tickets. Assisting also with the dinner will be members of Troop One, who will arrange the table decorations.

First Class Scouts

At the Court, which will begin at 8 p. m., four girls will be promoted as First Class Scouts. They are Doris Franklin, who will also receive a merit badge as housekeeper; Dorothy Prussing, who will receive a merit badge as hostess, also; Barbara Myers, and Phyllis Porter, who will receive a merit badge as child nurse.

A recommendation for the Golden Eaglet award, the highest tribute paid in the Girl Scout ranks, for Dorothy Steffee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Steffee of Davis street, has been sent to the National Girl Scout Headquarters in New York, and it was hoped, according to members of the Commission, that the Eaglet would arrive in time for the Court.

Twenty-six girls will become Second Class Scouts in addition to receiving other marks of honor. Arranged according to troops, the Scouts to be decorated are:

In Troop One, Betty Brockway will be the only member to receive merit badges, and she will be given two, for music and as insect finder.

In Troop Two, Deborah Parry will receive the awards of artist, hostess, cook and photographer; Elizabeth Moore, canner, cook and hostess; Barbara Eddy, observer and hostess, and four other members will become Second Class Scouts, including Susan Williams, Nancy Kirn, Katherine Williams and D. Peterson.

Merit Badges for Troop Three will be given to Joyce Webster, for scholarship, and as an artist, hostess and needlewoman. Joyce also will become a Second Class Scout. Others in the troop winning badges are Phyllis Sander, as hostess, artist and Second Class Scout; Marion Gilbreath, as artist and hostess; Betty Stoll as hostess and scribe and Mary Gardner as artist, hostess, healthwinner and Second Class Scout.

Badges will be awarded in Troop Four, to Cynthia Adams for life saving, scholarship, and as swimmer, cook and Second Class Scout; to Maryline White in life saving, and as swimmer and healthwinner; Sally Saunders for life saving and swimming; Patricia Daniels as swimmer and photographer; Nancy Lee Clark as artist, Second Class Scout and for scholarship.

Roberta Brown, scholarship and Second Class Scout; Betty Marck, scholarship and as Second Class Scout; Muriel Parsons, scholarship and as Second Class Scout; Ruth Warrilow and Florence Smith will also receive merit badges for scholarship, and become Second Class Scouts. Two others in the troop to reach the second class in Scouting, are Lillian Brown and Yolanda Papa.

Heads Troop Five

Doris Franklin, one of the four First Class Scouts, heads the list of honors in Troop Five. Peggy McBride, Dorothy Butler, and Alice Robinson will become Second Class Scouts. Jean Heinmiller will be awarded a merit badge as artist and become a Second Class Scout, and Esther Smith will become a Second Class Scout, receiving in addition, badges as healthwinner, swimmer and musician.

In the same troop, Ruth Roberts will receive badges in woodcraft and homemaking; Leah Davidson in art and scholarship; Jean Forest, musician, and Nancy Plumstead and Loretta Hall will be awarded badges as artists.

In Troop Six, 31 members will be decorated with badges and awards, of which, three will become First Class Scouts. They are Dorothy Prussing, Barbara Myers and Phyllis Porter.

Badges will be awarded to Cameron Biggers as hostess, horsewoman, life saver; Lucille Chaminade, hostess, healthwinner, observer; Carol Clark, hostess, needlewoman, swimmer, observer; Mary Clark, hostess; Jane Collins, Second Class, hostess, observer, healthwinner.

Ruth Cowen will receive badges as hostess artist, athlete, observer; Charlotte DuBois, hostess and photographer; Merlyn Dunn, Second Class, hostess, healthwinner, observer; Marjorie Ann Elliott, child nurse; Barbara, Jane and Nancy Fletcher will all receive hostess badges; Peggy Hadjisky, hostess and world knowledge; Alice Lee Heinmiller, hostess; Marion Hoover, hostess; Marion McBurney, Second Closs and hostess.

Candle Service Feature

Marion Kirk will be awarded badges as hostess, craftsman and in First Aid and world knowledge; Joan MacAskill, hostess, observer and healthwinner; Beth Newvin, hostess, photographer, cook; June Osborne, hostess; Ann Parker, hostess, horsewoman, athlete, artist, swimmer, life saver, and observer; Martha Phelps, Second Class, hostess, healthwinner; Helen Lounds, Second Class, hostess, healthwinner and observer; Laura Smith, hostess; Shirley Smith, hostess; Mary Ann Sprague, hostess; Yvonne Thompson, hostess, cyclist, needlewoman, observer and and Gloria Wagnitz, hostess.

Mrs. Eric Hyde is chairman of the badges and awards committee for the Court. A feature of the evening will be the candle lighting service, at which tenderfoot Scouts will light their candles from those of the Golden Eaglets. There will be also demonstrations by the Troops of various activities in Girl Scouting.

A Lot of Bones

Teacher — How many bones have youin your body, Percy?

Percy—About 25,000.

Teacher — That's impossible, Percy.

Percy—No; it's the truth. I ate sardines for lunch.

RUBENS EXHIBIT AT ART INSTITUTE

One of Largest Collections Open to Public February 12th

The first large exhibition of the paintings of Peter Paul Rubens ever held in America, and one of the most extensive in the history of art, will open at the Detroit Institute of Arts on February 12, and continue until March 15. Included in the 50-odd paintings to be exhibited will be the large "Holy Family With St. Francis," loaned by the San Diego Gallery of Fine Art; portraits of King Louis XIII of France and Vladislav, King of Poland, from the collections of Lord Millbank and the Metropolitan Museum; and sketches of "The Rape of the Sabine Women" and "Return of the Sabine Women", from the Philadelphia Widener and Johnson collections.

If Rubens had not been a painter he would have featured in the history of 17th century Europe as a diplomat. He knew and painted almost every important person in Europe between 1600 and his death in 1640. Acting as a statesman for Spain, the protector of his native Flanders, he opposed Cardinal Richelieu, who sought to keep England and Spain at war. He wrote and spoke five languages, and he made archeological studies which are of value to present-day students. Yet he found time to paint hundreds of pictures, known and loved throughout the world for their rich, flaming color, and masterful design.

Bouquet With a String

Music was prohibited during certain hours in the precincts of the college, but one undergraduate found the saxophone more engrossing than his studies. Next day he received a note from the higher authority: "Much against my better judgment, and for purposes of discipline only, I am compelled to regard your saxophone playing as music."—Christian Register.
