Mrs. Booth Fetes Cranbrook Staffs, Senior Students

The George G. Booth residence on Lone Pine road will be the scene today of a large tea, which Mrs. Booth is giving for the seniors and post-graduates of Cranbrook and Kingswood schools and for the faculties and staffs of these institutions and of the Brookside school, the Cranbrook Academy of Art and the Cranbrook Institute of Science. Also honored at the tea will be the staffs of Christ church Cranbrook and of the Cranbrook Foundation, the trustees of Cranbrook Foundation and the resident students of the Academy of Art. Over 300 guests are expected to attend the affair.

Commencement June 8

Commencement exercises at both Cranbrook and Kingswood are set for Saturday, June 8.

About 300 members of the American Association of Museums, which is holding a convention in Detroit this week, are to be entertained today at the Cranbrook Institute of Science. They also will visit the Cranbrook Academy of Art museum.

Saarinens Entertain Before Exhibition

Mr. and Mrs. Eliel Saarinen entertained 34 guests at dinner Friday evening prior to the opening of the Exhibition of Contemporary American Painting, held in the new studio building by the Cranbrook Academy of Art and the editors of Life. Included among the guests were the heads of the five institutions of the Cranbrook Foundation, the staff of the Art academy and the New York staff of Life magazine.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar R. Thom of Franklin road, also were hosts at a dinner preceding the exhibition's opening and their guests included many connected with the Detroit Institute of Arts.

The exhibition of student work in the Cranbrook Pavilion is open to the public until June 30, daily from 2 to 3 p. m.

Bits of Birmingham

Mrs. Richard C. Streb, of Pierce street, brought in to our office this week a box of pecans grown off her groves seven miles south of Albany, Ga. That old custom of bringing in apples, nuts and similar delicacies to the editor's desk is one that we'd like to see encouraged!

—o—

Tuesday of this week marked the 25th year, to the day, of Mr. and Mrs. Fred S. Ross moving to Birmingham. The Ross's moved to Willits street, the very house that they occupy today. And never in their 25 years in Birmingham have they regretted moving here. Mrs. Ross said this week. More than just living here for 25 years, they have taken The Eccentric during the entire period, which should be some kind of a record.

—o—

Photographers for Life magazine took pictures last week of Stephanie Buckeridge's dance recital at the Village Playhouse. Let's hope that the press of war pictures doesn't crowd out presentation of those photogshots made here.

—o—

It will probably be some time before prospective used car buyers will get so much freedom from Winningham's. A man and woman came there Friday, asked to drive a used car. When Deputy Cole, of Southfield Township found it at 10-Mile road and Southfield, some hours later, it was stripped of its removable parts. The man-woman angle probably disarmed the salesman at the agency.

—o—

They are organizing a new "alumni group" or high school fraternity, whatever you want to call it. The TLS frat is headed by Bob Quail, president; Jack Pearce, vice-president; Bill Robertson, secretary; Jim Dolan, treasurer. Other members are Keith Parmenter, Dan Swartz, Doug Thom, Don Upward, Ed Good, Bruce Wise, Jim Atkins and Hugh Denyes, the group has informed us. Some of these boys are in school, some are graduates.

—o—

"Joe," this Wanderer addressed Postmaster Byrne the other day, "despite all the splendor of your new post office, do I understand it that the post office pens will be just the same?"

He shook his head sadly, "I doubt if there will be much improvement."

—o—

A row of elm trees has been planted along East Maple near the railway station. Elms outnumber maple trees on this street, we have observed.

—o—

In the new post office, everything is practically fire proof except the rafters in the roof which are of wood, the same as in the Municipal building. The maple floor in the workroom is set in concrete. Wainscoting around the workroom is of birch.

—o—

One of the really-old time mail workers here is John P. Faurot, of 586 Westwood drive. Fifty years ago he worked around the station, and carried a sack of mail to the post office eight times a day.

—o—

At the school board meeting a week ago, President Joslyn said it was a good thing the schools' coal bunkers are full because he expected higher prices in the fall. Turning to The Eccentric reporter, Mark Hardin said, "Now be sure you print that statement in the paper this week!" Mark, as most of our readers know, happens to be in the coal business.

—o—

They are tearing down the old ice manufacturing plant on East Maple.

—o—

These Stinson boys seem to be everywhere. There are five of them, all working within a quarter of a mile of each other in the middle of Birmingham. Fred is a compositor at The Eccentric, and puts the type in the forms every Wednesday. Jim is a Linotype operator here. Chet works at the post office. Sam is a policeman, while Bud is the cook at Wilson's. That's almost a record of some sort.

—o—

Word reaches us that Holy Name P.-T. A. has purchased six roadside rustic tables for use by the children on the school grounds so that their lunches can be eaten out of doors.

—o—

This Wanderer had a brief chat with Gov. Dickinson last Saturday afternoon. He revealed that George Averill once was a good customer for maple syrup. "Crop was only fair this year," said His Excellency.

—o—

The U. S. post office department makes provisions to spy on its workers and makes no bones about it.

An interesting feature of the workroom is the observation runway hanging from the ceiling, and connecting with an iron ladder and tunnel to the office of the postal inspector in the basement. From this runway, an inspector can watch everything except the women's lavatory and the postmaster's office—even the "swing" room and men's lavatory in the basement. A private outside entrance is provided for use of the inspector so that he can arrive unnoticed. The inside of the runway is painted black and narrow slits are provided for the official to peer out. However, these facilities are seldom used in post offices, for dishonesty is rare.

Pine Lake Starts Bridge-Luncheons

The first bridge-luncheon of the season and the spring fashion show will be held at the Pine Lake Country club on Tuesday afternoon, June 4. From that date, bridge-luncheons will be held regularly throughout the summer on the second and fourth Wednesdays of each month.

The women's entertainment committee for 1940, in charge of the parties, is as follows: Mrs. W. Russell Eames, chairman; Mrs. J. Lester Brown, Mrs. Louis H. Cole, Mrs. Forrest H. Kane, Mrs. Bernie F. Beach, Mrs. Fred A. Carey, Mrs. William C. Howe, Mrs. Charles O. Ball, Mrs. Harry D. Wise, Mrs. Tom S. Edwards, Mrs. Raymond E. Davis, Mrs. William H. Hoghen, Mrs. James B. Dunkel, Mrs. John E. Thompson, Mrs. W. F. Crotty, Mrs. Walker Bray and Mrs. Edwin G. Hollenbacher.

Antique Fair Opens At Franklin Friday

The semi-annual antique fair to be held at the Franklin Town-Hall will open Friday and continue through Sunday. Refreshments will be served during the fair by members of the Franklin Friendly circle with Mrs. E. C. Skinner in charge of serving arrangements. On Saturday members of the Girl Scout troop will hold a baked goods sale in front of the Town Hall. Mrs. Beecher W. Compton is in charge of the sale.

Young People's Class Sets Date for Dance

The Young People's Dancing class, which has met at the Community House on Wednesday evenings throughout the winter and spring, will bring its season to a close on June 19, when a special party will be held from 8:30 to 12 o'clock. All the young people of the city, of high school age and older, whether members of the class or not, are invited to attend.

An attractive bathing suit was one of elasticized satin, with full circular skirt, and an inset girdle of contrasting color. It was zippered up the back, with straps that hooked in front. Easy to put on and become in the wearer.
