Summer Clothing Needs Winter Care

Good winter care of summer clothes forms a special wartime activity of economy and patriotism, members of the home economics extension staff at Michigan State College suggest.

Here are some of the pointers useful to homemakers and endorsed by the college and by home economists of the United States Department of Agriculture:

Check dresses, coats, and jackets. Mend them if they need repair. Try to remove any stains from washable garments before laundering. Tub washable dresses and iron. Put these frocks away in boxes or on hangers in protective bags. See that non-washable dresses are clean, and hang them in garment bags that will keep out the dust.

Launder washable coats or jackets before storage. If soiled, non-washable types need dry-cleaning. Put the garments on hangers, padded if possible, and store in protective bags.

If the garment is wool, or partly of wool, safeguard it against clothes moths and carpet beetles by putting paradichlorobenzene crystals balls or flakes in the pockets and a bag of these preventives over the neck of the hanger. Then seal or fold the edges of the bag so this or beetles cannot get in. Hang the bag in a cool closet.

If wool or part-wool garments are not soiled enough for dry cleaning or laundering, brush them thoroughly, air, and fold out and air them well before storing. Store as described above.

Wash a bulbing suit in warm suds, rinse and dry thoroughly, and store in a box. If it is wool or partly of wool, put moth crystals, balls, or flakes with it and either wrap the box well or seal it. Wash and dry a bathing cap and put a little talcum powder or corn starch inside it before storing. Put it away in a dark, cool place.

MOTH LARVA SMALL

A yellowish-white larva can crawl through a crack only four thousandths of an inch wide. What means that tight fitting bags, packages, closets or chests are no defense against moth invaders.

Airing, dry cleaning, brushing and the use of flakes or mothballs to repel the invaders are suggested as wise protection for woolens or any other time.

BIDDIES LAY BILLIONS

Michigan hens proved their patriotism, with the aid of Michigan housewives, in the first nine months of 1942. The hens in the state laid an estimated 1,185,000,000 eggs.

Our Great America ☆ by Tryon

Even Innocent Dolls May Bring Trouble

Lansing—Another example of how easily infestation may be spread has just been discovered in Michigan and innocent-appearing Indian dolls about three inches high are the unwitting culprits.

The dolls have acorns for heads, sticks for bodies and legs and lima beans for feet. Then lima beans feet are the reason for whether he is an ordinary alley cat or one of thousands of exceptional ability.

Kitty was neither punished for the kittens nor caged up to keep him from doing more harm. Instead, he was kept under the closest possible observation so that game he might measure rather than guess at the startling toll of wildlife taken every summer by hordes of thousands of house cats thoughtlessly pampered or allowed to roam.

Let Tomcat Hunt To Watch Results

East Lansing—An yar-tailed black and white tomcat answering to the name "Kitty" at Rose Lake wildlife experiment station is expected to have acquitted for at least 14 young cottontails during two months this summer, and station field men are wondering whether his is an ordinary alley cat or one of exceptional hunting ability.

Kitty was neither punished for the kittens nor caged up to keep him from doing more harm. Instead, he was kept under the closest possible observation so that game he might measure rather than guess at the startling toll of wildlife taken every summer by hordes of thousands of house cats thoughtlessly pampered or allowed to roam.

Not Bad

Waiter: "I'm afraid we can't cash a check, sir. You see, we've a little agreement with the bank that we cash no checks, and you don't belong to our club."
Customer: "Oh, I don't mind. I'm a member."

Perfect Harmony

"Daughter," said the father sternly, "I don't like that young man you go out with."
"Well, I don't like your daughter, either," said the young man.

It's Here

Probably the airman and the soldiers when they meet refer to suitable autumn weather as "Air Force's Lathe." The Lansing State Journal.

Sporting Career?

In the case of a neighborhood tot who swallowed a whistle, its people don't know whether to operate or let it grow up and become a basketball referee.—Detroit News.

Records Indicate Farm Hazardous

Michigan agriculture, with its unmatched variety of production, provides its farmers with an unmatched variety of physical perils. Industrial records indicate agriculture in general is more hazardous than trade and service, construction, transportation, manufacturing or mining.

Which leads staff members at Michigan State College to point out some of the pitfalls on the average farm.

The very equipment that unbends the backs of the farmers also proves the most perilous. The tractor leads the tragedy list on the farm. Safety specialists remind farmers to use some of the automobile driving experience in making tractor operation more safe.

Livestock comes second. Runaway teams, an old bull, a boar or a sow with pigs comprise the leading hazards.

Wells, pits, silos and cisterns offer another source of danger to farmers. In construction involving digging, a two-man crew is expected. If that a man in trouble has some help in avoiding a cave-in of earth. The danger of gases in a confined area also give reason for having help at hand.

Insect control should be confined to kill insects and not persons or valuable stock. Employment of sprays or dusts should take note of the perils of the application.

Other safety factors can be used. Testing of the water supply and the prompt treatment of injuries can reduce some of the common causes of trouble on the farm. Hurry and worry should be avoided, for these often contribute to carelessness and accidents.

Ladders, guns, electric wiring, fire hazards and fuels all add hazards to the occupation of farming.

Utah hunters are asked by the State Fish and Game Department to turn in all deer fat from the game they bag in order to swell the State's waste fats collection by about 100,000 pounds.
