Bride's Home Is Scene of Brelsford-Langerman Rites

Wearing a dress of white shadow print marquisette she herself had designed and carrying an arm bouquet of white carnations, white roses, daisies, and gardenias, Mary Lois Brelsford became the bride of Rolland J. Langerman in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry E. Brelsford, of Pilgrim road, Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Langerman, of Dewey avenue.

Mrs. Langerman

The Rev. Charles C. Becker, of the First Methodist Church, read the service in an alcove of the home that was banked in greens and baskets of peonies, carnations, and delphinium with candelabra flanking the alcove. Lt. A. Shanley Rosso from Camp McCoy, Wis., played the organ.

Mother's Pearls

The bride's dress was floor-length made with close-fitting bodice and round yoke outlined in ruffling and high round neckline. The edge of the three-quarter length sleeves and the hem of the bouffant skirt were also outlined in marquisette ruffles. Seed pearls that had trimmed the wedding gown of the bride's mother also decorated the sleeves and yoke of the bride's dress. Her finger-tip veil of illusion fell from a starched marquisette coronet cap trimmed in seed pearls.

Elizabeth Jane Brelsford was her sister's maid of honor and only attendant. Her dress, also of marquisette, was a turquise blue made with gathered bodice, sweetheart neckline, and full skirt. She carried pale yellow carnations and daisies. Her headdress was a coronet of turquoise net.

Lt. Col. George C. Hale, of Washington, D. C., was best man for his brother-in-law.

Mrs. Brelsford chose a sheer print of grey and white for her daughter's wedding, and a corsage of pink carnations and roses. Her flowers were yellow carnations and roses.

Go to Chicago

A reception was held in the home immediately following the ceremony with the reception table banked in white snapdragons, baby breath, larkspur, and delphinium. The couple left for a short trip to Chicago, the bride in a one-piece dress of luggage tan trimmed in aqua and with aqua accessories. She wore a corsage of gardenias.

Mr. Langerman expects to be called into the service in August, and until that time, they will make their home in Birmingham.

Out-of-town guests present at the ceremony were the bride's brother, Lt. (j.g.) Clayton E. Brelsford, of Baltimore, Md.; Mrs. Lorna E. Peterson and daughter, Margaret, of Niles; Mrs. Harold Laberteaux, also of Niles; Barbara Brooks, of Ann Arbor; Betty Conway, of Dayton, O.; Mrs. Bertha Burrows, of Marshall; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Metro, of Rochester; Mr. and Mrs. Don MacFarland, of Milford; and several of the bridegroom's fraternity brothers from Ypsilanti and New York.
