Detroit Artist Will Display Paintings At LaBelle's March 4th

Art lovers of Birmingham and vicinity will have an opportunity to see and hear Griswald Adams, well known artist of Troy, Michigan, at LaBelle's store, 157 W. Maple avenue, on Saturday, March 4. A number of Adams' paintings have been on display at the store for the past several days. On Saturday Mr. Adams will explain his style of painting, which he explains as the dimensional study of scenes. In his works he tries to capture the scene before the eye in as truly an exact perspective as does the eye itself.

Becoming interested in the dimensional theory of the art of painting several years ago, but having no experience in drawing and no knowledge of paints, Mr. Adams attempted to develop his ideas along these lines. He will explain his theory of the dimensional art, and his progress in developing it, at LaBelle's on Saturday.

The public is invited.

Before the war, industrial management didn't have to worry about welders and riveters who forgot to disconnect their electric irons at home.

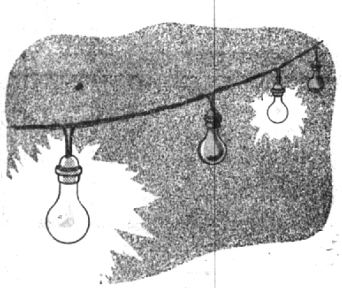
An easy way to SAVE COAL—



... turn out every other light!

If you operate a business establishment using electric lights for outdoor display, here is a simple and practical way to conserve electricity. The plan is already being followed by some users of electric signs, theater marquees, show windows, etc.

The Government asks you to save electricity in every way possible, to conserve fuel, transportation, manpower and other critical resources. Even though electricity is not rationed and there is no shortage in this area, SAVE voluntarily wherever you can, as much as you can.

"Man" will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Christian Science Churches throughout the world on Sunday, March 5.
The Golden Text (Genesis 1:27) is: "God created man in his own image, in the image of God created he him; male and female created he them."
Among the Bible citations is this passage (Psalm 100:3): "Know ye that the Lord he is God: it is he that hath made us, and not we ourselves; we are his people, and the sheep of his pasture."
Correlative passages to be read from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, include the following (p. 332): "Father-Mother is the name for Deity, which indicates His tender relationship to His spiritual creation. As the apostle expressed it in words which he quoted with approbation from a classic poet: 'For we are also His offspring.'"

Birmingham Boy In Naval Service Asks Heavier Bond Buying

William G. Merz, son of Julius Merz, 227 Pierce street, writes The Eccentric from "somewhere overseas" where he is serving with the American fleet. His letter follows:

February 7, 1944.

Gentlemen:

Today my first copy of the Eccentric reached me since I departed from the States two months ago. It was the January 13th issue, but needless to say, I read each page with great interest as though it was printed but yesterday. Naturally the "Men in Service" column is of primary interest to me, as I like to check up on my friends and acquaintances to find out where they are and what they are doing. I enjoy the "Bits of Birmingham" because many of the people mentioned therein are known to me. To me, anything about Birmingham is of interest, because I think there is no finer residential city in Oakland county. The fact that within the city itself there are no large factories or manufacturing plants; no low-class residential sections; and no bars, night clubs, or beer gardens make it a clean, wholesome environment in which to bring up children. If night life is desired by Birmingham residents, it is a short distance to places where those things are in evidence. I don't say that Birmingham people are not appreciative of the benefits of Birmingham, but I do think that they should exhibit outward pride that there is such a city as Birmingham in which to live.

I noticed that the Oakland county quota in the 4th War Loan drive is $14,000,000 and I hope that the people of Birmingham and environs will contribute substantially to the county quota, for now is the time that the purchase of bonds is really going to count. It's our ball, now, and we're in the opponents' territory, and it still is going to take some smart quarterbacking and a lot of good old teamwork to push through for a touchdown. When, and only when that winning goal is made, can we go to the showers and then take a rest and say, "What a tough game that was, boys, but we licked 'em." If the people at home could only half realize what a tremendous undertaking, and costly thing in equipment and men that this present and future aggressive warfare is, they would not hesitate to back it to the fullest of their ability. I have been a few places since I have been in the service, and I have seen large numbers of men in training and enormous stores of equipment and supplies, and it takes a lot of bonds to pay for that kind of program. Page six in your January 13 paper just about hits what I'm trying to say, right on the head. I realize that U. S. Citizens are practically snowed under by such posters, placards, and ads, but they speak the truth, and are not to be passed over lightly as propaganda but should speak as a warning and as encouragement to get behind the men who are doing the real dirty work, and get the messy job done and done in a hurry. Remember, there are hundreds of men and young fellows far away from home who darn well want to get back and enjoy the sweet taste of civilian life again. As an example how service men back the war effort—while I was at storekeeper school at Toledo, O., over 90% of the Naval personnel at that station were having war bond deductions taken from their service pay each month! Here's hoping we'll all be home again in the not-too-distant future.

WILLIAM C. MERZ, Sk 3/c.
