Community Council Pays Its Tribute To Late Robert D. Lynd

At Tuesday's meeting and luncheon of the Community Council board of directors the following resolution in the death of the late Robert D. Lynd, board member, was adopted:

"Because Robert D. Lynd was a member of the first committee of twenty which organized the Birmingham Community Council six years ago, and because he so generously contributed his time and leadership to the Council as one of its most active members during all these years, and because of his esteem and affection in which he was held by his fellow workers,

"Be it resolved that the Executive Committee, acting in behalf of the Birmingham Community Council express its deepest sympathy for his untimely death to Mrs. Irma Lynd and her daughters, Mrs. Forbes McKay and Mrs. T. H. Scott."

Signed: The Executive Board, Birmingham Community Council,
Ross A. Wagner, President
Mrs. John K. Ormond, Vice-President
Mrs. George Forester, Treasurer
Mrs. Lucille Walcutt, Past President
Reverend A. F. Runkel

"God the Only Cause and Creator" will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Christian Science Churches throughout the world on Sunday, December 9.
The Golden Text (Isaiah 45:18) is: "Thus saith the Lord that created the heavens; God himself that formed the earth and made it; he hath established it, he created it not in vain, he formed it to be inhabited: I am the Lord; and there is none else."
Among the Bible citations is this passage (Isaiah 45:11): "I have made the earth, and created man upon it: I, even my hands, have stretched out the heavens, and all their host have I commanded."
Correlative passages to be read from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, include the following (331): God is individual, incorporeal, He is infinite Principle, Love, the universal cause, the only creator, and there is no other self-existence."

Junior Red Cross Campaign Is Moving In Splendid Fashion

Membership in the American Junior Red Cross which is conducting its annual enrollment for service in Oakland County at the present time is more than an opportunity to join a school organization, according to Mrs. R. A. Armstrong, chairman of Junior Red Cross of the Oakland County Chapter. It is the opportunity to become members of a youth organization which has approximately a membership of 20,000,000 members in the United States.

Junior Red Cross members of Oakland County during the war years just ended have added immeasurably to the comfort and welfare of soldiers, sailors and marines in all parts of the world.

Local Juniors have also contributed to the National Children's Fund which has provided clothing, food and medicine for children in war torn areas. Children in Britain, Russia, China, Greece, Iceland, Poland, Finland, North Africa, Czechoslovakia, Belgium, Austria, Italy, Yugoslavia and the Philippines are indeed grateful to the Juniors of the United States who have provided many of the necessities of life for them.

THE ECCENTRIC'S Camera Corner

You can greatly increase the effectiveness of your informal portraits if you take advantage of the suggestions made below.

THE effectiveness of any photograph is determined primarily by the amount of light available and the way the light is employed. A master of lighting can obtain better results with a box camera than a novice, careless about lighting, can get with five hundred dollars' worth of equipment. For this reason, whether you're just beginning your career as an amateur cameraman, or have years of experience behind you, it is important to check up once in a while and find out whether you're consciously using a few fundamental lighting tricks for the most effective photography.

One of these tricks, which is of particular value when making informal portraits of subjects with light hair, is back-lighting or side-lighting, with the light coming from the back or side of the subject instead of from in front.

The attractive snapshot above shows how this technique can be employed very skillfully with excellent results. In this case the fresh young faces of the children are given a beautiful halo-like effect by the crown of light which surrounds them.

Ordinarily, with the light coming from in back of the subject so that the faces are in shadow, it is necessary to increase the exposure about four times normal in order to make sure of good detail in the shadow areas. With the light coming from the side, it is best to increase the exposure to about twice normal.

In this snapshot, however, the photographer had utilized another trick to reflect light into the shadow areas, by using the brilliant white of the picket fence. This strong white reflects sufficient light upward into the faces to give them perfect modeling without objectionable shadow contrasts. This technique is consistently effective for informal portraits, since reflected light has the delicate quality necessary for subtle illumination of facial planes. If a natural reflecting object is not at hand, a piece of newspaper, a white sheet, or a blanket placed on the ground or hung at one side of the subject will usually accomplish the same purpose.

If you haven't been taking advantage of the exact control you can have over the depth of the area in focus by using larger or smaller lens openings, you have a lot of fun in store for you. Remember, the smaller the lens aperture the deeper the area which will be in focus. Don't forget to compensate for a change in lens opening by making a change in shutter speed.

However, the light you have available again determines what exposure you can use. So keep an eye on your light—if you know how to handle lighting you're on the way to becoming a first-rate cameraman.
