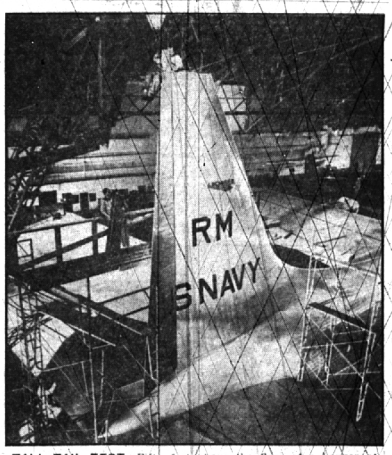
One of the latest contributions to television and atomic research reported from the electrical manufacturing industry is an electronic voltmeter that can measure electrical direct current down to a billionth of an ampere.



TALL TAIL TEST—Fifty feet above the floor of a hangar at Ames Aeronautical Laboratory, Moffett Field, Calif., technicians install pressure measuring equipment in the towering tail of the Navy's Lockheed Constitution transport plane. Research flights will provide valuable data on tail loads during flight of very large aircraft. The Constitution, with a wingspan of 189 feet, will have a maximum weight of approximately 80 tons during the tests.

PROPAGANDA BATTLE IN BERLIN—Latest weapons of the cold war in Germany's capital include match boxes and balloons, used in propaganda offensives and counter-barrages. The match cover, left, is one of many which were smuggled into Berlin's West Sector by Communists. On it are inscribed the words: "All Strength for the FDJ (Communist youth organization) . . . Willing to Work and Defend Peace." The balloon at right is one of hundreds released by anti-Communist Germans, bearing the letter "F" for "Freedom," and the words: "FDJ for whom are you marching?" Anti-Red leaflets are attached.
