BIRMINGHAM, MICH.

It is a singular fact that we are indebted to Pompeii for the great industry of canned fruits. Years ago, when the excavations were just beginning, a party of Americans found in what had been a pantry of the house many jars of preserved figs. One was opened, and they were found to be fresh and good. Investigation showed that the figs had been put into the jars in a heated state, an operation left for the steam to escape, and then sealed with wax. The hint was taken, and next year fruit canning was introduced in the United States, the process being identical with that in vogue at Pompeii 2) centuries ago. The old ladies in America who can tomatoes and peaches for domestic use do not realize that they are indebted for this art to a people who were literally ashes but a few years after Christ.

Jas. M. Swormstedt, the noted "Holy Prophet" of Cincinnati, in an interview states that the recent earthquake was caused by bad spirits in the bowels of the earth. The spirits are as intelligent as men and have complete knowledge of the uses of dynamite, gunpowder, etc. They have been trying to blast a passage to the surface of the earth and thus escape from bondage. The explosions incident to these operations have caused the earthquakes. "I have foretold this phenomenon," said the prophet. "It is a sign of the end of the Christian age. The United States will be destroyed within two years and all the wicked people will die and the others will go to Palistine."

Rapid City, Dakota, papers declare that the country thereabouts will distance Nebraska, Iowa and Illinois as a corn growing district, while in the little matter of garden truck the rest of the world pales and glimmers in comparison. Evidence to back these loud claims are nine-foot corn stalks, cabbages too large for a barrel, twelve-pound rutabagas, seven pound potatoes, eighteen inch turnips and 10) pound pumpkins. Watermelons are raised over the fence and cantelo pes are too common to mention.

Twelve years ago John Wendell went west, leaving his three year old boy with relatives in Milton, N. H. Nothing being heard of Wendell the boy was finally sent to the almshouse until he was 12 years old, when he was bound out to a farmer. A few weeks ago a letter was sent from Lincoln, Ill., to Milton, saying that Wendell had died there, leaving $25,(00 to be divided between a daughter by a second marriage and his son in New Hampshire. The boy has gone west to look after his legacy.

The chestnut gong proves to be a chestnut itself, according to the Buffalo Commercial, which says that over twenty years ago, in a well known beer saloon, hung, well balanced, a big knife. To the point was attached a bell, and to the handle a cord. When the boys became too argumentative the proprietor would solemnly pull the cord, the sound would ring and the knife chopping up and down cut short the remarks of the disputants.

Mr. Gladstone takes every day two glasses of claret at lunch and two at dinner, with a glass of port wine. His alcoholic consumption has been estimated by his son at seven gallons a year, which would be three and a half times the average consumption per head in England and four and a half times the average in Europe

Albert Wampler of Indianapolis thinks that he has been made whole by the prayer cure. He claims that he for five years suffered with rheumatism, which bent him double and otherwise deformed him, and that in answer to special prayer he had his crutches and stood erect a well man.

An orthodox preacher in Storm Lake, Ia., thinks that the Universalist preacher of the same place is objectionable. So he prayed the other day in church that the Lord would either change the heart of the Universalist, or kill him. Storm Lake citizens are watching him closely and curiously.

United States Marshal Nelms of Cobb county, Ga., is not envied by his neighbors. The moonshiners have threatened to kill him, and the marshal thinks that they mean it, and that they are quite likely to succeed. But he doesn't weaken a particle.

Queen's Victoria's fiftieth anniver sary of her accession to the throne will be celebrated in June next, and already the Anglomaniacs in New York are considering what will be just the proper thing to do, doncherknow.

A Wife's Victory.

From the Voice, N. Y.

It beats all—this determination of the women to do all they can to help their husbands to. My income being limited, I asked my wife to practice economy in the management of her affairs, so that when the time came for me to build a home, I would not be compelled to part with every penny of my income. To be doubly careful, I asked her not to be a victim of our washerwoman's every now and then we would look over the accounts, to cast up what we had and judge thanoccasionally. The first bitch we had was in the matter of Pearline. I found that it was not in the line of economy to put Pearline into the dish-water; Pearline into the boiler; Pearline into the rinse; the clothes-soaking water, or to use Pearline for most anything purposes and from the arguments of my wife, I succeeded in convincing her that Pearline was a humbug. Things seemed to go all right for a little while, until soon I noticed that my shirts, cuffs and collars were not getting as white as get out, and my wife kept complaining about the loss of her dishes, that were "greasy," and gave me a genuine blast, that I thought would last our economical home. I been as economical as I supposed. My shirts were wearing from the hard rubbing on the washboard, and the use of common soap was just about finishing things. Almost disgusted with matters, I consented to give Pearline a chance to show its wonderful superiority, for wife would only answer to every complaint about the dishes with "Jesse, There's nothing that beats Pearline." You'll see when you have a change it wrought; I found that my new shirts came back perfectly white, and I heard her the complaint about the fearful backache, and after wash-day. No more complaint about the greasy dishes; and our neighbors, who didn't use Pearline, sat with her she managed to keep her visits short. I'm convinced, for economy, to let wife have full sway in the house, while I'll do outside affairs for the house. Wife said, I'd come to my senses some time.—Jogger.

STATE CROPS.

The Total Yield of Wheat Placed at 26,634,

For the September crop report returns have been received from 369 correspondents, representing 30 townships in each of one hundred and five of these returns are from 930 townships in the southern four tiers of counties.

The number of acres of wheat thrashed up to about August 25, in the southern four tiers of counties, as shown by the returns, is 1,026,279 acres; that the yield from which was 2,668,736 bushels, an average of 16 and 23 hundredths bushels per acre.

The number of acres thrashed in the northern counties was 15,751, yielding 360 bushels; average, 15 and 57-hundredths bushels per acre.

Independent of the record kept by thrashers, correspondents have made a careful report as follows: From the southern four tiers of counties, acres thrashed, 79,259; bushels, 1,289,077; average per acre, 16 and 28-hundredths bushels. From the northern counties, acres thrashed, 7,699; bushels, 180,000; average per acre, 15 and 45-hundredths bushels. The yield per acre as above, 23 hundredths greater than the 3 hundredths of a bushel more in the northern counties than the average as shown by thrashers' records.

The yield per acre in the southern counties is one and thirty-five hundredths bushels, and in the northern counties one and eighty-five hundredths bushels, greater than the August estimate.

Multiplying the acres in wheat in each county of the southern four tiers by the average yield per acre in the same county, and the acres in the northern counties by the average yield per acre in those counties, and adding the figures so found, we have 26,634,900 bushels, as the probable total yield in the state.

Reports have been received of the quantity of wheat marketed by farmers during the month of August at 26 elevators and 20 mills. Of these, 363 are in the southern four tiers of counties, which is 98 and 6 per cent. of the whole number of elevators and mills in these counties. The total number of bushels reported by these is 1,266,681, of which 321,919 bushels were received in the first or southern tier of counties: 268,846 bushels in the second tier; 272,407 bushels in the third tier; 295 bushels in the fourth tier; and 64,404 bushels in the counties north of the southern four tiers. At thirty-one of these mills or thirteen per cent. of the whole number from which reports have been received, there was no wheat marketed during the month.

In the southern four tiers of counties 53,336 acres of oats thrashed yielded 1,069,542 bushels, an average of 20 and 5-hundredths bushels per acre, and in the northern counties 7,051 acres thrashed yielded 200,196 bushels, an average of 28 and 39-hundredths bushels per acre.

The number of acres of barley reported thrashed in the state is 4,190, yielding 108,329 bushels, an average of 25 and 9-hundredths bushels per acre.

Reports promise eighty-nine per cent. and late peaches fifty seven per cent. of an average crop.

Building Stone.

The building stone industry of Houghton county promises to assume large proportions in the future, if present indications are to be relied upon. At Portage lake and Portage entry quarries are being opened and worked which now employs over one hundred men, and the product there is now being shipped stone to New Orleans for use in the custom-house being built there, and also to San Francisco on the Pacific to the territories. This stone is of the color and finish of the Berry sandstone. In addition to the Jacobs company, now at work, a party of other capitalists has taken an option on adjoining lands hanging to East Osgerton and L'Anse, and for several days has been testing the rock formation and finding it with the diamond drill, with a success that promises to equal anything in the state. Immense cores have been lifted from the rock strata, which indicate a ledge of fine stone of great in thickness, without reaching the limit of the foundation. Indications point to an extensive development, and it is understood that the stone can be quarried to the best advantage. The ledge lies in the operators to handle, that its cleavage in any direction is favorable, and that it can be worked with great freedom, hardens upon exposure to air, and is rich in appearance. Specimens of it have been sent to Chicago and Milwaukee, and in each instance its value can hardly be over-estimated. The stone is of a dark color, and on the Travethan farm, about one mile west of Portage lake, it appears in the outcrop in equal quality of stone. A large force of men are at work stripping and quarrying, but the rock is so near the surface as to permit of it great length.—Houghton Gazette.

A Proclamation by Gov. Alger

To the people of Michigan:

A great calamity having befallen the city of Charleston, I suggest that the mayors of the various cities call public meetings of citizens to aid in gathering contributions for the relief of the sufferers. Let us remember that in former years Charleston has been most generously visited with disastrous fires other states have responded large sums for our suffering people. When the city of Chicago was smitten with fire, we responded liberally with money, provisions and clothing for the immediate and generous relief of the homeless and destitute sufferers. Let us now show that we are not unmindful of the kindness shown us in the hour of our need.

Given under my hand and the great seal of the state of Michigan, at Detroit, this 31st day of August, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eighty-seven.

Russell A. Alger.

By the governor:

Fred M. Warner, Secretary of State.

Nearly 600 of these fine horses, 1,000 horses, were in line, and the procession was headed with a carriage drawn by twelve of the largest and finest Percheron horses in the country, representing a cash value of over $20,000. Senator Palmer, Gov. Oglesby, Mayor Harrison, and President of the Board of Trade Lawrence Landrigan occupied it. The second carriage contained Senators Logan and Cullom, the Marquis de Rochefoucauld and George C. Loring. The procession was headed by a band of thirty pieces, and all grade and thoroughbred Percherons owned by the state of France, and the finest animals for draft purposes. The wagons and trucks were gayly decorated with American flags, bunting and evergreen, and displayed the advertisements of the manufacturing firms joining in the procession, as explained by an officer of the company. Following the parade, arrangements to let the farmers and small breeders who attend the fair see just how many of the Chicago horses use the Percheron for draft purposes, in the hope that they will take to breeding Percherons also. Commissioner of Agriculture George R. Canfield, with the assistance of M. Dupuy de Longe, Inspector General of the government studs of France, reviewed the procession as it passed the stand. The latter will place the 300 horses constituting the Percheron exhibit at the joint judging to parade and accompanied it to the grounds.

I ask it in the name of the thousands of lives that have been offered up as sacrifice to the reservation system. Finally, I ask
