McNutt Wins Top Student Office At Denison 'U'

Robert C. McNutt, a junior at Denison university, Granville, O., has been elected to the highest student government post at Denison. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. McNutt, 1250 Vaughan road, Bloomfield Hills.

McNutt will be installed as co-president of Denison Campus Government association and give his acceptance speech March 24 at the weekly convocation. He will serve during the coming academic year.

A member of Phi Delta Theta fraternity, he has served on the student senate for three years and is currently treasurer of DCGA.

YMCA Tops Goals In Membership Enrollment Drive

Well over their goals in the Birmingham YMCA 1958 membership enrollment, the drive's chairmen attended a victory luncheon of Metropolitan Detroit 'Y' branches in Detroit yesterday.

Harold Kalldleisch, general chairman, said 904 members were obtained on a goal of 900, and the goal of $5500 cash was exceeded by more than $700 during the February drive. The enrollments give the local 'Y' a total membership of 2072.

Attending yesterday's event with Kallfleisch were Arthur Blakeslee, Leslie Fletcher and Edwin Kirbert.

LEND AN EAR

The Case of the Split Personality

By MADELEINE HARRIS
Special Writer for The Eccentric

An old idol of mine, Edward R. Murrow, currently appears to be developing very large feet of clay. Or perhaps he is gradually evolving a case of schizophrenia, becoming two totally different TV personalities who function independently of each other.

I refer, on the one hand, to the eloquent Edward R. Murrow who has created the almost omnipotent series "See It Now." And on the other, to the trance-like Edward R. Murrow who presides over the often innocuous and sometimes tasteless program, "Person to Person."

There are few individuals in the communications industry today who are capable of the quality of content and presentation that Murrow has consistently displayed in "See It Now." Whether he concerns himself with the Arab-Israeli dispute or with the anachronistic methods used for mail distribution by far too many of our country's post-offices, he has made the TV screen the noble instrument for dissemination and understanding that it should be, but too rarely is.

NOW LET us turn sadly to the automaton of false smile and eternally-poised cigarette—to "Person To Person." Here, Murrow goes on, week after week, somehow reducing almost everyone he interviews to a faceless, spiritless nonentity, no matter who that person may be. It takes genius of a perverse order to force conformity and anonymity upon such diverse individuals as Mrs. Wendell Wilkie, June Havoc, or Frank Lloyd Wright.

Such people as these, whose homes are visited each Friday night by CBS Veep Murrow, have newsworthy names associated with a talent, a variety of genius, or an interesting political background. Instead of following a line of questions which would be most flattering and interesting to them, and of great concern to their admiring and curious public, our puzzling MC permits himself the luxury of a leisurely visit into the carefully prepared homes, turned TV stages, asking oftentimes innocuous questions involving their mundane domestic affairs.

BECAUSE science has not as yet devised a scheme to split schizophrenics directly down the middle so that each independent half can go its separate way, we must accept the fact that the personality capable of the splendid reporting on "See It Now" must somehow belong to the same man who presides over the frequently pointless peek-a-boo of "Person To Person." His better half somehow becomes the unwilling dupe of a side of his character that waits only for this program to involve the whole man in its nefarious doings.

Personal interviews need not be viscera-destroying bouts as fought by Mike Wallace. Not even terribly intimate little affairs such as those practiced by Martin Agronsky.

All we ask is that we may be able to distinguish between Lassie and Dean Martin. And as "Person To Person" is often practiced now, we might be hardput to accomplish even this.
