"Visions of sugar plums"—or tired aching feet? In either case, it must be admitted that this Christmas season is a busy and happy one.

The members of St. Dunstan's guild launched the Christmas season with their traditional festivities last Tuesday evening, when they gathered in Christ Church Cranbrook to sing familiar Christmas carols and to hear the Biblical reading of the Christmas Story by Henry S. Booth.

They then proceeded to the Pavilion on Lone Pine road for a party traditionally given for the membership by the board: President Maurice F. Smith and board members John H. Warner, Richard T. O'Reilly, L. James Schneider, Mrs. Winston T. Kellogg, Mrs. Templin Licklider, Mrs. Albert Remington, and Mrs. Zoltan Sepeshy, who was responsible for the decor. Otis C. Thompson and Winston T. Kellogg assisted the board with refreshments.

On Christmas eve the Carl Bradts of Abbey road are having a small open house just for neighbors from 7 to 11 p.m.

Mrs. Jasper Reid and her son, Jasper of North Glengarry are having an Open House Dec. 26 from 4 to 6 p.m.

Last Thursday afternoon Mrs. Joe Whitley of Raynale road invited her neighbors and friends in for tea.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert G. Surridge of North Glenhurst drive, entertained at a dinner party for 21 guests last Friday evening. Their son, Steve, came home from Yale university last weekend to spend the holidays here and attended the Yale Glee club concert Saturday night.

The Surridges' other son and his wife, Lt. and Mrs. William R. Surridge, will remain in Williamsburg, Va., over the holidays; however, her parents, the Clyde L. Reeds, and their other daughter, Lynn, of Cedar street, are spending Christmas in Williamsburg with the young couple.

Mr. and Mrs. Uri B. Grannis of Fairway drive have known for some time that they would be moving to Rockford, Ill. So they rented a house at 1805 Oxford street, in Rockford, transported all their ski equipment and much luggage, thinking they would celebrate Christmas in their new location. However, due to this season's many activities, they find it impossible to leave until some time after Christmas.

Their son, Alexander, arrived home last Thursday from the Loomis School in Windsor, Conn. After the holidays, their other son, Uri B. III ("Balky") will return to Cranbrook school where he is a boarding student.

Mrs. Grannis' mother, Mrs. Alexander Banks, of New York City is visiting them for Christmas.

The Benjamin Brewsters of Brookdale road are awaiting daughter Betsy's arrival on Christmas eve from New York City, where she is a secretary at the Geological Society of America. She will remain here for a week. The Brewsters have invited their neighbors, the A. Phillips Streeters, to share Christmas dinner with them.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis T. M. Loud of Villa road have invited the John C. Finegans of Crabtree road, for Christmas dinner. The Louds' three children, Martyn, Gordon, and Francis, and the two Finegan children, Mardi and Chris, will all be present, too, comparing their new toys that Santa brought them.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey B. Bushnell of Larchlea, are going to visit their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. William A. Busch, in East Grand Rapids for three days at Christmas. Son Bill Bushnell, who is in his last year at Culver Military Academy, will accompany them. Bill arrived home Friday for Christmas vacation and will leave for Culver Jan. 3.

Also arriving home last Friday for the holidays from Culver were Michael and Richard Handren, sons of the Frederick C. Handrens of Puritan road. Thursday their older brother, Fred Jr., arrived home from Yale university where he is in his third year.

The Handrens, their three boys, and their daughter, Carol, are expecting their relatives from Flint to join them for Christmas dinner: Mrs. Handren's mother, Mrs. Lulu Finton, and Mr. Handren's brother and his family, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Handren and children, Beverly and Bradley.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Perry and their two boys, Robert Jr. and Sherman, of Larchlea are expecting a visit from Mrs. Perry's parents, the I. H. Putnams, of Shaker Heights, Ohio. They will arrive tomorrow and remain with the Perrys for a week.

The W. Whiting Raymonds, of Willits street, are expecting their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Getz Jr., for a short visit after Christmas. They will come from Shaker Heights, Ohio, on Dec. 28. Mr. Getz's mother, Mrs. Margaret M. Getz of Scarsdale, N. Y., is spending Christmas with them in Shaker Heights.

Mrs. J. R. Ackerman of Colonial court has returned from Webster Groves, Mo., where she has been visiting with her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Holt Ackerman and five-yearold Linda and five-year-old Linda and Ackermans of Grand Rapids are coming here to spend Christmas with his mother.

Mr. and Mrs. Ossie Tower, Jr., of Fairfax road, have Mrs. Tower's father, Mr. Roy Daniels, visiting them for Christmas from his home in Andover, Mass. After Christmas the Towers and their four children, Charles, Jack, Ellen and Judy, are planning to go skiing at Otsego.

The Winston T. Kellogg family of Northlawn road will be all together for Christmas. Daughter Connie arrived Thursday from Tufts university in Boston, Mass. Emily came from the Solebury School in Hope, Pa., and Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Ulry (the former Jolly Kellogg) will arrive Christmas day from New York City. The Kelloggs have reason to be proud of their son-in-law, Mr. Ulry, whose lyrics to a new popular Christmas calpyso song recorded by the King sisters are being played often these days by the disc jockeys.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Elmes of Fairview Lake, Pa., have been visiting here for a month at the Lake Park drive home of their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Carl A. Elmes and children, Carl Jr., Sandra and Douglas. They will remain here until after Christmas. Mrs. Carl Elmes' mother, Mrs. H. B. Stone, just arrived from Baderwood, Pa., to spend the Christmas holidays here and will stay until the middle of January.
