IMPORTANT: When you visit Orleans New York City, save baggage, express and carriage hire, and stop at the Franklin Hotel, writes the local correspondent. About a year there "she is neglected." Those who want to hear her story, the greatly surprised that she is a nightingale in her eleventh hour in it is as fine voice as ever; all they hoped for was some traces of the Albatross of former times. She is three or four years older than she was when she was before she retired from the stage. The back, ample silk dress harmonized with her hair, and she had a look that was, did not look caricatured. Albatross advanced passing up the gangway from the green-room to the stage, to which she entered with her hands pressed to her heart. Her object to some of those near her was sonorous, and when she opened her mouth to sing the notes that rolled out were voluminous as those of a church-organ, and she sang as honey. I should have liked to hear her give an unpublished melody of Good-bye which initiates the easy, sultry of the song on a calm night. It would have gone well with her style and peculiar gifts. She is a great artist, trained in a great school, and endowed as no other woman is that any of us remember. Her delight at the reception the meet with was in Olympian laughter as she returned to the green-room. The handsome young Albatross, and by goodnature, whose wife she is, knew "that he was about when he married her several years ago. He is a polonaise, and her voice is almost exclusively composed to him. In summer he and she live in a country villa near St. Cloud, and in winter in a mansion that she built near St. Augustin's church. This captain adores her for her musical gifts, and is on the footing of jolly good "old wigmaw" with her.

Many of the study economy, our Remnant Dress Goods Tables are very attractive. Many entire patterns for ladies' and children's fall and winter dresses of very superior quality and at low prices are shown on them. In fact to many they are a source of pleasure and delight, so low are the goods remaining on them now offered.

The Ladies' white muslin ready-made Underwear supply still holds out, and the 15, 25 and 50 cent Garments offered are a marvel of cheapness.

200 more of these Ladies' large ready-made Nightgowns as long as they last at 50c each, which hardly the price of the bleached cotton in them, saying nothing about the making.

 The Union band has 16 members and Prof. Norton teaches.
 Dr. Holcomb's new house is ready for the plasterers.
 Three or four boys in district No. 4 thought they would have a little amusement of their own on school meeting night by stealing a march on a neighboring grape vine. Before starting, however, they each took one fast iron comb to stand by each other in case they should be caught or found out. The owner of the grape vine had heard of their intended visit and proceeded to lock the lock for "bar," and as soon as the boys got settled down to business in the grape vine he discharged the gun in the air. The boys forgot all about their promises to stand by each other and started off on a Jay-Bee-Say and Maud's gait combined. One poor fellow who was so badly frightened that he could not run, tried to hide under a pumpkin leaf, where he was found. When he asked if he was shot he said "I—don't know." As the other boys have not been seen it is supposed they are running yet.
 While recently being for water on Mrs. Thompson's Farm the workmen struck a large vein of gas.

 George Clark has got the boss flowing well. It is 84 feet deep and flows a three-quarter inch stream of good pure water. Mot & Akker did the work.
 Rev. Duke Whitley went to New Haven last week to fill the pulpit and to make arrangements for moving to his new field of labor.
 Great times for hunting the frisky squirrels now-a-days. Week days and Sundays you can hear the crack of the hunter's rifle. We would say that those who go with a horse and buggy and the same under the church shed, had better take a pack and lock up their dinner, and when they come out of the woods find out just how they will have something to satisfy the cravings of the inner man. There are two-legged dogs around the country that will not hesitate to take anything good when they see it.
 Mrs. Augusta Gregory is making a short stay at Mrs. Joseph Jennings.
