Bloomfield Recreation Program Growing Fast

By DICK ZEMMIN
Sports Editor

It was just four months ago, Sept. 1 to be exact, that Ed Wichert resigned his coaching post at Bloomfield Hills High School to become the city's Recreation Director.

In that short span of 120 days, Wichert has molded a recreation department that now encompasses a total of 1,283 participants and shows signs of still growing.

THE ONE-TIME Baron basketball coach who, incidentally, led the school to its best mark last year (13-8), stepped into the newly-created post to assume sole responsibility of the recreational system.

The Hills recreation program started in the fall and included after-school activities, creative activities, youth activities and adult evening classes.

Since then, plans have increased and starting Saturday, 5th and 6th grade basketball, high school wrestling and basketball, and a men's night will be added to the calendar.

Future plans include junior and senior high ski programs, bowling leagues and natural ice rinks. Day camps during the summer will also be featured along with a Christmas vacation program for youngsters in the school district.

"WE ARE TRYING to offer things the schools can't offer and at the same time, utilize school facilities that would otherwise not be used," Wichert said.

The after-school program includes 16 groups that total 231 youngsters. It encompasses six elementary schools.

Adult evening classes are fast becoming popular. Approximately 240 parents attend classes in bridge, antiques, dog obedience and conversational French.

Youth activities for junior and senior high students offer bowling, teen clubs and fencing which attract 581 pupils.

Thirteen classes of creative activities including dance, art and knitting are offered to 231 members. The new program beginning Saturday will last to the Christmas vacation, coordinating with the school term.

ALL BOYS interested in 5th and 6th grade basketball and high school wrestling, weightlifting and basketball will be able to register from 9 a.m. to 12 a.m. Saturday. High school boys should report to Bloomfield Hills High while 5th and 6th graders may register at East Hills or Bloomfield Hills Junior High.

Men's night is an evening of activities designed to keep adults in good physical condition. It begins at 7:30 every Thursday night at Bloomfield High.

A second semester of activities will be offered late in January, according to Wichert. The Bloomfield recreation department will be closed on Saturday during the weeks of Dec. 16 and 23.

AS A physical education instructor supervises, two Bloomfield youngsters learn the art of fencing in one of the many activities offered in the growing Bloomfield Hills recreation program. In its first year of operation, the recreation department has broadened its range of activities. Recreation Director Ed Wichert estimates that 1,283 persons participate in the program's athletic and creative classes.

Victory

substituted freely in the second half, but the Maples still widened their margin to 20 points in the third quarter.

Their biggest lead, 21 points, which was intact at the end, repeatedly hit the scoreboard in the second half.

Ferndale could not hit when they had to. Rodwan, though high-point man for the game with 21, repeatedly missed earlier in the contest. The Eagles hit on only 23 of 85 field-goal attempts for 27 per cent.

Seaholm, on the other hand, connected on 30 of 70 tries for 43 per cent.

Ron Jacobson led the balanced Maple attack with 15 points. Mark Fritz, Bruce Nyberg and Harold Wilbur each contributed 11.

THE IMPRESSIVE victory boosted the Maples into a first-place tie with Hazel Park, 60-59 victors over Royal Oak Kimball earlier in the week.

But, the well-earned win also puts pressure on Seaholm. Just as in football season, after the Maples defeated front-running Ferndale, the victory labels Seaholm as the top contender. In athletics, the favorite is the prime target for all the other clubs.

It happened in the fall when the Maples met Roseville. Lew Parry will have to see it doesn't happen in the winter.

THE PACE was fast and furious at Kimball High School Saturday as 18 swim teams competed in the seventh annual Royal Oak Relays. When the water had finally quieted late at night, Seaholm had emerged the winner for the fourth time, though the margin was not so great as last year. This action took place in the preliminaries as Groves' Jim Heyden strained to qualify in the 400-medley relay. Groves did not fare too well here, but four other butterfly artists combined to give the Falcons a meet record in the 200-butterfly relay later.
