MICEL

The Fox, in Journalism, made an unusual in the New Testament as the miraculous healer of all the diseases to which flesh is heir, his fair to be credited by a muddy pool from North, known as "buffalo wall," Mrs. Williams Keller living near that place.

He had a confirmed invalid for many years, but when he was cured, he could suggest, was done to restore her to health, but without avail. The other morning the soon-to-be angel in the form of a woman, who appeared to be the night before as He did Samuel of old, and when she had answered as did "Samuel," "Speak, for thy servant heareth," "The message had been delivered to her to be cured the "buffalo wall," drink and be gone. The only condition imposed was that she should go alone and unattended to the magic spot. A desperate effort she succeeded in going to the pool, and took a long draught from the muddy water. In a few minutes she was up, and returned to her wasted frame, and she turned to the house declaring herself to be completely restored to health, and to be able to perform her domestic duties, and it is firm in the belief that she had direct communication with the Lord. Others do not believe her, however, and say that if she had only been cured, if months before she might have been cured.

The last of five ha-relief panels for the Garfield monument in Cleveland, is finished, and measures seven by ten feet. It is the only one which contains nearly twenty figures, some in bas-relief and some in alto-relievo. This last panel represents Garfield lying in state, as he lay in the city of Cleveland, and is a knight temperate, while a crowd of people press by to take a last look. The figures are real, of course, not all of them. Among them are a merchant, a sailor, a negro, two women, a little girl and a crippled old man, all of life size. The five panels will picture the phases of Garfield's life: the school master, the teacher, the president and the martyr. The first four have already been set in terra cotta. The monument will probably be unveiled in May or June.

Here is a fine specimen of red tape in the Indian service. It is the rule to give a soldier his pay for a month a certain date on the 15th of each month declaring he is alive. For two months one summer Gen. Dayton has not sent from his post traveling in the United States, and he has not sent a request for his salary for June and July he paid to his bankers. The state says that he is dead, and his pay had been credited to him but that there was no certificate to prove that he was alive in June and July.

Ten years ago Thomas F. Clark killed George Miss Julia A. Malcolm of New Haven, a daughter of certain Colorado land titles, and then he married her. She said that she'd keep the document to remember him by, looked it up, and has since been earning her living teaching in the city of New Haven. She received a letter from Colorado saying that there was a lead mine on her property, and $25,000 was offered for it. Miss Clark thought it a joke but finding that it wasn't she asked for the offer, receiving the check a few days later.

A dispatch from Victoria, British Columbia, says: "The Chinese again causing great trouble on the islands." It is noticeable, however, that the Chinese are the ones who cause the trouble. The Chinese from the Flower Kingdom are always worsted. The voice of Dennis Kearney, however, it seems, yet his aid not needed. The Chinese are being overabundant by the laborers on the shores of Puget Sound and Vancouver Island.

General Beale of Washington, is one of the largest landed proprietors in the United States. His estate, which embraces 25,000 acres, is located near north of Los Angeles, Cal., upon which he farms 40,000 head of cattle and horses, his farm is valued at several hundred acres, his land in Washington, where he has a stud of blooded stock. He is a possessor of a large estate in Chester, Pa.

Samuel Rapley, who lives near Cincinnati, claims to be 115 years old, and none of his neighbors who have known him for seventy years say that there can be a doubt about his being at least 105 years old. For years he has failed to attend church every Sunday until a week ago, when he became too feeble, and died in Burlington, N. J., and was a soldier in the war of 1812.
