Manhood.

Barnum said "The American people like to be humbugged." This may be true in the line of entertainment, but not where life is at stake. A man with consumption, or any lingering disease, looking death in the face and seeking to evade his awful grasp, does not like to be tricked with. He with confidence we place before our readers Nature's great remedy, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, a sure relief for that dread disease, all lingering maladies from impure blood, such as Consumption, Chronic Nasal Catarrh, Liver Complaint, Kidney Disorder, Dyspepsia, Sick Headache, Eruptions and General Debility. Thousands tried and thoroughly tested, it stands without an equal! All druggists.

"Not Built, but Bestirred"

is the way a Western man puts it in expressing to a friend his complete satisfaction in the use of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets. So small and yet so effectual, they bid fair to supplant entirely the old-style pill. As a vegetable remedy for Sick and Bilious Headache, Biliousness, Constipation and all disorders of the blood Pellets are unequaled. Mild in action, wonderful in effect! Put up in vials, convenient to carry. They use altogether no discomfort. These sterling merits account for their great popularity.

JEALOUSY.

DR. TALMAGE'S SUNDAY DISCOURSE.

The Great Divine Grapples an Old Sin.

It Combines All That Is Obnoxious in the Races Human—It Debauches, It Blasphemes, It Damns—Verily, It Is the Rage of a Man.

BROOKLYN, April 15:—The hymn sung by the congregation in the Tabernacle this morning began:

> Let me secret be human blood be spilt.
> Vain sacrifice for human gin."

Professor Henry Drummond rendered the Second Sonata in E minor by Ritter. Having expounded passages of Scripture in regard to the backsliding of the people, the Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage, D. D., preached on the subject of "Jealousy," taking his text from Proverbs vi. 34: "Jealousy is the rage of a man." He said:

Some subjects a religious teacher touches a thousand times, now coming on them from one direction, now from another. But here is a Bible theme that for some reason is left teetotally alone. This morning asking your prayers and in the strength of God, I want to grapple it.

There is an old sin, haggard, furious, monstrous and infernal, that has for ages walked and crawled the earth. It combines all that is obnoxious in the races human quadrupedal, ornithological, reptilian and insectile, horrid, hideous, poisoned, fanged, stinged; the eye of a basilisk, the tooth of an adder, the jaws of a crocodile, the crushing folds of the anaconda, the sting of a scorpion, the tongue of a cobra, and the coil of the worm that never dies. It is in every community, in every church, in every legislative hall, in every monetary institution, in every drawing-room level, in every literary and professional circle. It debauches, it blesses, it lies, it debauches, it blasphemes, it damns. My text names it when it says "Jealousy is the rage of a man." It is grief at the acknowledged superiority of another in talent or wealth or beauty or elegance or virtue or social or professional or political recognition. It is the envy of one man or other people's success. It is the shiver in our pocket-book because it is not as fat as some other man's pocket-book. It is the twinge in our tongue because it is not as eloquent as some one else's tongue. It is the flutter in our heart because it is not as lustrous as some one else's robes. It is the earthquake under our house because it is not as many feet front as that other man's house. It is the thunder of other people's popularity rousing the ire of our displeasure. It is the father and mother both of one-half of the discontent and outrages and detractions and bankruptcy and suicide and murder of the human race.

It was antediluvian as much as it is postdiluvian. It put a rock a stick in the hands of the first boy that was ever born and said to him: "Now, Cain, when Abel is looking the other way, crush in his skull; for his sacrifice has been accepted and yours rejected." And Cain picked up the stick as though just to walk with it, and while Abel was looking for some bird in the tree-top, or gazing at some water-fowl, Cain gave the club to the first assassination, which has had its echos in all the fratricides, matricides, uxoricides, homicides, infanticides and regicides of all ages of all the nations. This passion of jealousy so disturbed Caligula at the prosperity of some one of his men of his time, that he cut a much-admired curl from the brow of Olympian Jupiter and took the embroidered collar from the neck of Torquatus, and had Ptolemaeus killed because of his purple robe which attracted too much attention. After Columbus had placed America at the feet of the Spanish crown, jealously set on the Spanish cruelty to depreciate his achievements and around animosities till the great discoverer had his heart broken. Piled on by this bad passion, Dionysius slayed Damocles while he was wiser than himself, and Philoxenius because his music was too fine. Aristotle made Korah lie about Moses and Socrath the drink cicuta.

Jealousy made the trouble between Jacob and Esau. That hunter and Joseph into the pit. That struck the twenty-three full sons of Jacob to Julius Cesar. That banished Aristides. That fled Anthony and Cleopatra to Actium. That exiled an architect because of the fame he had for a beautiful statue. That put to death the six fine tragedy. That cut Abel in a rage against David. How Saul feels about it the Bible puts it when it says: "Saul eyed David." It seems to take possession of both eyes and makes them look more like the two eyes of hell. "Saul eyed David." That is he looked at him as much as to say: "You don't die upstart how dare you ascend the throne and I will stand you under my feet and I will exterminate you, I will, you miserable homunculus. Crouch, crawl, slink into that retreat, I will tend you under my feet." And in another song, instead of "Saul has slain his thousands but David his tens of thousands." When Voltaire heard that Frederick the Great was forgetting him as author and the literary admiration on Bacaulard, d'Arnaud, the cold-blooded leaped out of his bed and danced the floor of his chamber in a rage, and ordered his silliest horses hooked up to carry him to the Prussian palace.

Jealousy debauches the passion of jealousy led Napoleon the First to divorce, at the request of five thousand francs the ruffle Josephine. Wellington when the victor of Waterloo was passing through Paris. That stationed the grouchbrushed soldiers of the Old Guard to the dead when the Prodigal Son returned, and acted cold on the fatted calf. Jealousy made the older brother complained, saying: "Who ever heard of giving a banquet to such a prodigal!" Aye, that passion rose up and ordered the darkest cloud that ever shadowed the soul and the heart of Omnipotence to be hung on the most luminous star that ever shook the mountains and amid the wildest storm that ever howled. Jealousy made the Herods and the nations, hung up on two pieces of painful timber the two most illustrious life in history, longest nature that heaven could delegate, and stopped not until there was no room left on the cross for another victim to hurt the dead Son of God.

Jealousy blasphemes. Jehovah, hungry, unbaked, rages on, and it now pierces the earth's ruffle, and Jehovah is insulted by a fiery circumference. It wants both hemispheres. It wants the heavens. It would, if it could, dethrone the Most High, and dethrone Jehovah, and chain the Almighty to the eternal cliffs. And the exhibition of the universe would cry: "Satisfied at last! Envy is dead! Jealousy is bandaged and everlasting! Me, Miss, Myself!" That assassin keeps all Europe perturbed. Nations jealous of Germany, of England, of France, and those jealous of each other, and all of them jealous of Russia.

In our land this passion of jealousy keeps all the political world a-boil. Men who at least five hundred people who are jealous of Governor Hill and would like to be his successor, about five thousand who are jealous of Grover Cleveland and would like to relieve him of the cares of office. The many aspirations of next summer have been made, a wide, pandemonium of envy, backbiting, scurrility, hatred, revenge, falsehood, profanity and murder. Jealousy has turned upon the people of this land. The tariff, which is a raising or lowering or reformation of which many of other have nothing to say to the effect on votes, will be discussed from a thousand platforms, and the people will be told that the taxes must be taken off woolens, and they will be told that the taxes must be taken off tobacco, and the people of Pennsylvania will be told that the taxes must be taken off iron, and the people of Kentucky will be told that the taxes must be taken off whiskey, and the people will be told that the taxes must be taken off wool, while Massachusetts and Connecticut will be the unrelated protection for manufacturers, and all the world will be invited to come, north, south, east and west, will be told in vain. Whether the taxes and tariff will be fixed to suit them, the political world is all a-boil with the presidential election over, all will settle down as it was heretofore. If such jealousy of opposition in public places is from any desire of the public good, like dear papa's pills for political effect, you are grievously mistaken.

Go into all occupations and professions, and if you will look closely you will find jealousy is not yet to be extirpated, ask master builders what they think of the carved work of their apprentices, and what their opinion is of merchants in the same line of business, and ask lawyers and ask doctors what they think of doctors, and lawyers and ask authors what they think of lawyers, and ministers what they think of ministers, and artists what they think of artists. As long as a man or woman is in competition with down and have a hard struggle, they will be fairly judged and the verdict will be: "Oh, yes; he is a good, clever sort of a fellow." "Yes; she is a smart woman, but, quite—well, I may say, tolerably sanctified a woman." But let him or her get a little too far ahead, and then the jealousy will be open or commercial decapitation.

Remember that envy feeds more on small deficits of character than on great forces, makes more of the flaw of a face than the symmetry of the whole. Why do you suppose that Absalom was selected for the rebellion? Was he the best man for the place? Was he the most capable? Was he the most popular? Not so great are the mental qualities that Dr. Watts once described as the so great those by him every morning, thus keeping off starvation. Blessed are they that are persecuted, although persecution is a terrible thing. Blessed are they that have the wound before healing it. What a soft pillow a sick bed is when we know the world we can feel that, though a thousand people may have wounded us, we have revenged on only one man. Envy made envious and jealous attack on others, we have repented of it and have made it right, and all is forgiveness. The good resolution of Timothy Poland in his epitaph: "Here lies Timothy Poland, who intend to teach you how to accompany me."

> Oh, you dear man, how charming!
> Where is the ee—er—what do you call it?"

"Mrs Brindle, I remember to have said distinctly a guitar. Guitar, g-u-i-t-a-r, guitar. Now do you know what I said?"

And Mr. Brindle's face began to wrinkle like the crust on an apple pie.

"O," said Mrs Brindle, "and did you bring a plush covered stool embroidered with red-tails to put your feet on?"

Mrs. Brindle, I did nothing of the kind." Mr. B's face turned a deep crimson. "I simply brought a guitar home with me. What do you suppose a guitar is, anyway? Here it is; look at it. How in the name of gentle Jesus were you going to get a guitar under it? Just you show me how, that's all."

"And can Mr. Brindle play?" inquired Mrs. Brindle, in a tone of deep interest.

"Play? Mrs. Brindle, play checkers, any goshdinged thing you can," howled Mr. B as he kicked the cat out of the window. "Wait a minute, will you? Wait till I get my fiddle, can't you? Put down that guitar. Can't you tell a gentleman from a band organ? Wait'll I get the crank and turn it for you and then, by the jumping Methodist, you will hear it! I know as much about a guitar as you do, I'd tie strings across my mouth and pass as a band of Spanish students. Ah—er," Mr.B. grew black in the face. He reached for his violin and opened a music book at the scale of C natural. "Look here now. Can you read notes?"

"O, yes, dear. I read four or five that dropped out of your pocket on the floor last night. One of them was signed——"

"O, you did, did you? Well, madam, I'll just thank you to read no more of my private papers. Now, here, tell me if you know what this means," pointing to C natural in treble.

"Um-er-let me see"—and up went her finger to her mouth—"six and eight are fourteen—six into—no—eight into six can't go—er——"

"That's it, Mrs. Brindle; you've solved the sphynx's riddle! You've hit the combination. If I had your sense and arithmetical calculation, I'd go on the box and mask as the fifteen puzzle. No, Mrs. Brindle, that six and that eight don't mean any such thing. Music ain't quite nor a problem in applied mechanics for some gosh-binged fool to sweat over. That six means that you are to play the first note on the second line of the treble staff, and that eight means that you are to play the fourth note on the second line of the same staff. Now, listen and pay attention; one, two, three, four, five, six," and he counted along according to time on Mrs. B's head. And Mrs. Brindle, in sympathetic motion, bobbed her head up and down, looking at him all the time as if she thought him crazy.

"What in the glory of Gideon are you bobbin' your head up and down in that way for? Can't you count? Count, I tell you."

"One, two, three, four, five, six," sang Mr. and Mrs. Brindle in unison, "one, two, three, four, five, six, seven, eight, nine, ten, eleven, twelve."

"By the blood of Boswell, what are you doing? Count on, Mrs. Brindle; don't stop or you'll break the charmed circle. Count on, dear," cried Mr. B. "If I could count as well as you I'd hire out as a lightening calculator."

"Well, I don't care! You told me to count," whispered Mrs. Brindle.

"I told you to count but six." Mrs. Brindle's head her way this time, but pretty successfully through two measures.

"There, that's all right. Now, Mrs. Brindle, we will try the chord C," and he smiled benignly. "C" is a natural key and has no sharps or flats in its harmonious family."

Mrs. B. took up the guitar and tucked it under her chin, as she had seen Mr. B. do before.

"Now, dear, give me the stick and I am ready to play," she said.

"Give you the what?" asked Mr. B., looking up in a fright, "what in the names of Bethlehem's bounteousness do you want a stick for? Take the dad binged thing from under your chin; do you take it for a napkin? Take it away. I tell you! what do you want a stick for? You don't knock it like a cow in our pasture, do you, glorious Gulliver, go on, play it with a stick, beat the immortal inside out of it; wake the realms of glory and good tidings out of it! Say what the Lord a new song! Hallelujah!"

And Mr. Brindle grabbed the guitar and standing on it rushed from the room saying:

"If I know as much about the guitar as you do, I'd paint the notes on myself and parade as the Spanish fandango."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Who Shall be Fairest?

> Who shall be fairest!
> Who shall be rarest!
> Who shall be first in the songs that we sing!
> She who is kindest
> Who is gentlest, blindest,
> Bearing through winter the blooms of spring:
> Charm of our gladness,
> Friend of our sadness,
> Angel of life when its pleasures take wing!
> She shall be fairest,
> She shall be rarest,
> She shall be first in the songs that we sing!
> Who shall be nearest,
> Noblest and dearest,
> Named but with honor and pride evermore!
> He, the undaunted,
> Whose honor banner is planted
> On Glory's high Ramparts and battlements hour
> Of danger,
> To falsehood a stranger,
> Looking for evil where duty before!
> He shall be nearest,
> He shall be dearest,
> He shall be first in our heart's, evermore'

A Curious Marine Monster.

Not long ago a curious marine monster was captured near Tampico, Mex. For several days a school of unknown creatures were seen disporting in the Gulf, a short distance from shore; but all efforts to capture any of them proved futile, till one was caught by accident in a fishing seine. Ropes were thrown around the struggling monster, and by the aid of horses it was dragged to land. It was a gigantic specimen of a very rare fish, the cephalotera sagrymus, also known as the "devil fish," or ocean vampire. It weighed fully two tons, and when spread out on the beach, dead, presented every appearance of an enormous bat or vampire. It measured 15 feet long and 17 feet wide from the edges of the immense fins, and its mouth was 6 feet across.

The Great Eiffel Tower.

Your correspondent climbed the Eiffel tower this morning. There was not a person on the huge structure when I approached it. I stood off a little distance and took a good look. It is finished to the height of 170 feet, which comprises the first story. Two more will be added to the foundation. At this height the four parts of the framework that curve in from the four corners meet and form the support on which the tower will rest. The tower itself will rise 860 feet higher. From a foundation framework a stone masonry, which go down to great depths below the surface. The four parts will rise at the same time the downward and outward pressure of the ponderous structure portions of the framework are raised and curved in under the outward curving columns at points where the resistance is most needed. The space covered is about 1 acre. The ordinary block in an American city—that is, were the portion already finished placed in that area each of the four supports would project from each of the four corners.—*Pan Cor. Was Learning.

A white man who owed a small amount to a negro fish dealer and who had been repeatedly dunned, went into the negro's dimelling place of business, and handing over the amount of his indebtedness, remarked:

"Here's your money, Casper. I suppose by this time you have learned one thing."

"Whut's dat, sah?"

"You have learned that when I owe you anything it is of no use to bother me about it."

"Yas, sah. I's l'arned dat, an', I tell you, I's l'arned erndudder thing."

"What's that?"

"I has l'arned, sah, nebber ter let you hab ernudder peice o' fish tell you put de money right down yere on de slab. Oh, I's er right smart man, I tell you. I'm l'arnin so fas' dat atter w'ile folks'll p'int at me an' say, Dar's de mos' l'arnedest pusson in dis town."—Arkansaw Traveler.

It Was Not an Earthquake.

At Vidosta, Ga., Mr. Terry's family were awakened at midnight, and it was thought that the house was being shaken by an earthquake. Mr. Terry arose and got a lantern to examine the premises, and he found that the grain in the crib had left open, and that a mule entered the yard and crawled under the house for shelter. How she got under would not tell, but she could not stand up the long way between the sleepers, and was jarring the house with her back and horns. He could not get her out, and had to get a spade and pick and dig a ditch for her.

The Canary Died of a Broken Heart.

Several days ago the Rev. Eugene Peer, of Washington, D. C., was walking while walking on the tracks of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad in that city. Mr. Peck had a canary which was very fond of him, and when Mr. Peck was brought home after the accident the bird seemed to realize the situation, and grew melancholy and refused all food. At the first sound of the church bell at the next Sunday service it turned on its back and very tragically ended it little life.—New York World.

Why We Win

Because Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best spring medicine and blood purifier.

Because it is a concentrated extract of the best alterative and blood purifying remedies of the vegetable kingdom.

Because, by a peculiar combination, proportion and preparation, it possesses curative power peculiar to itself.

Because it is unequaled for the cure of scrofula, salt rheum, blotches, boils and eruptions.

Because it is the only medicine of which can truly be said "100 Doses one dollar," an unanswerable argument as to

Strength and Economy

Because it effects remarkable cures where other preparations entirely fail.

Because there is nothing equal to it for curing dyspepsia, biliousness, sick headache, indigestion.

Because every article entering into it is carefully selected, none but the best is used and all the roots and herbs are personally cut from growing plants, which makes impossible the use of anything impure or deleterious.

Good Name at Home

There being more of Hood's Sarsaparilla sold in Lowell, where it is made, than of all other sarsaparillas and blood purifiers combined.

Because it is clean, clear and beautiful in appearance, and contains the active medicinal principles with the nicety, gritty make up of other preparations.

Because when given a fair, practical trial according to directions it is reasonably certain to effect the desired result.

$500 REWARD

is offered by the manufacturers of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, for a case of Chronic Catarrh which they cannot cure.

SYMPTOMS OF CATARRH.—Dull, heavy headache, obstruction of the nasal passages, discharges falling from the head, sometimes profuse, watery and acrid, at others, thick, tenacious, mucous and purulent, the eyes are weak, watery, and inflamed; there is ringing in the ears, deafness, hawking and spitting to clear the throat, expectoration of offensive matter, the voice is changed and nasal, the voice is changed and has a nasal twang; the breath is very offensive, the sense of smell is impaired; there is a sensation of dizziness, with mental depression, a hacking cough and general debility. Only a few of the above-named symptoms are likely to be present in any one case. Thousands of cases annually, without manifesting half of the above symptoms, result in consumption, and end in the grave. No disease is more common, more deceptive and dangerous, or less understood by physicians.

Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy cures the worst cases, no matter what stage they may be.

Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy cures the worst cases, no matter what stage they may be.

"Untold Agony from Catarrh."

Prof. W. HAUSNER, the famous mesmerist, of Salina, Kansas, writes: "I have given you a sample bottle free to convince you of the merits of this great remedy. Large bottles 50c. and $1.

"Constantly Hawking and Spitting."

THOMAS J. HUSHING, Esq., 2302 Pine Street, St. Louis, Mo., says: "I was a great sufferer from catarrh for three years. My disease was rapidly developing into consumption. I was constantly hawking and spitting, and feared I was in the last stages of consumption. I thought nothing could be done for me. By the use of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, and I am now a well man. I feel that I owe my life to this wonderful remedy for catarrh now manufactured, and can cheerfully recommend it to every sufferer from catarrh, as I have experience astounding results and a permanent cure.

Three Bottles Cure Catarrh.

ELI ROBBINS, Runyon P. O., Columbia Co., Ga., says: "I had been afflicted with catarrh for years, when she was five years old, very badly. I saw Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy advertised, and as it cured a bottle for her, and soon saw that it helped her much, I got three bottles more and effected a permanent cure. She is now eighteen years old and sound and well.
