

General Hyppolite, mt of Hayti, is a full-blooded and a man of considerable, ability and resource. His hair dy white and his picture shows the shows and shows in a great heasure anets the price of cattle. This is a valuable suggestion to the committee, and one they should not fail to make use of in on inning their inquiry into the drossed beef in-eighty-one thousand and eight hundred and forly-eight dollars, leaving a balance in our favor of about six mil-lion dollars. Canada, in the same year, purchased of England goods to the amount of about forly million dollars, and sold the mother country forry-two million, ninety-four thousand and nine hundred and eighty-four foodlars' worth. It is easy to discern from this report that our trade relations with Canada are more extensive than Canada maintains with England, and in the light of these figures annexation seems the more desirable.
