No country in Europe better illus-trates the folly of a policy o' militarism and war expenditures than does Italy. The ambition of her rulers led to costly schemes of colonization and armament, followed by a heavy increase in the tax burdens of the peo-ple. In order to secure to the country that political recognition which it once enjoyed, an allian e was entered by pile. In order to secure to the country that political recognition which it once enjoyed, an ailian e was en'ered into with Germany and Austria. As a result of this man euter, France has given up a great parto fhe trade with italy, while Austria and Germany have not compensated for the loss of the French trade by the expected purchase of Italian eruits and wines. This fallings off in trade has resulted in many failures, and caused a greatly restricted market for labor. Italy cannot now recede from her foreign policy; the awdy-created army and navy must be supported; further taxation is impossible, and the burdened peasants are quiting the country, thousands of quiting the country, thousands of equiting the country, thousands of will be supported for the thirthy of the country of the country
