Many a man has prophesied that by himself, optically remarking, "It's a long road that has no return."

It matters not to a workman whether he is paid in gold or greenbacks. It is the security of either that both him most.

Mosquitoes in Siberia have bills that place through the thickest clothing. Overcoats and winter gloves furnish no protection against them.

Leading capitalists are getting to be more and more "millionaires" who they will next attempt to put into millions.

It is true, as a distinguished foreign scientist claims, that voices of human beings have color, it means that the voice of the "speck-bird" is of a rich and beautiful golden hue.

Cornell University has given up the task of manufacturing journalists as a bad job. As a matter of fact, it is a great demand and it hardly pays to turn out a fine article.

An general order has been issued by the German emperor that in future all civilians appearing at any court must be arrayed in knee breeches, silk stockings and shoes with buckles.

The wife of the Brunswick, Me. Baptist church was torn down recently because of falling on the ground, as was expected, the wife was thrown into the chaise below the sidewalk.

Erasmus Perce has become almost as expensive as war, and hence the tendency of so many hundreds of thousands of workers to emigrate to the United States, where the standing army is so small that its weight is not felt on the back of the people.

Wesley Gilbert of Indianapolis has been granted a pension for injuries received during the war in being thrown from the back of a mule. Whatever experts may say of his folly, loyalty and courage are fully proved by the fact that he had anything to do with an army mule.

The more or more of the survivors of the battle of Balaklava who have just been found in London poor houses and the other wares and hundreds of British soldiers who are being allowed to starve in their own country, show that it is monarchic rather than republic which is ungrateful.

The doctrine that work is the all in all of existence has few believers. Few spirits of the age is a desire for emancipation from the material of life. We should make work our slave instead of our master and abundant leisure the only thing incompatible with, but really constituting, the most substantial success.

Manufacturers of electrical machinery in every part of the country are crowded with work, some concerns are even without all the advantages having in prospect all the work which their capacity can take care of for a long time to come. Most of the large establishments have extensions of capacity now under way.

It is not unreasonable to expect that the centennial is to be more common than the future than in the past. The greatest advances of medicine are in the direction of prolonging life. For that the whole world calls out, and it will be one of the most desirable and the fruits of civilization, of science, and human advancement.

All told, there are today thousands of girls under collegiate instruction and counting for scientific degrees, and statistics show that they are strong in battle. It used to be prophesied that the world would be the levelled of womanhood in the future, and paralytic; but the event has proved that such baleful predictions were without justification.

Spain's queen-regent has two young heirs, who are described as healthy, strong children, one speaking fluently in Spanish, French, German, and English. The world should be rejoiced that the progeny of a long-lasting dynasty that princesses do not differ so very much from ordinary girls unless it be in the number of languages they speak.

In most colleges where coeducation has been tried it has been pronounced a success, though there have not been so many who are inclined to the opinion that in many instances there is more so than education. But this is only a popular superstition in colleges that is destined to be abandoned, the supremacy of the stronger sex, and like other superstitions, will not bear investigation.

The Panama canal, work on which was long since suspended, will probably be resumed in the near future, at least in the life-time of the present generation. vast progress, measured by the standards of the past, has been made toward its completion. No less than 100,000 men were expended in work and material before the enterprise came to a halt. Then it was resumed, and the company becoming bankrupt, it was taken into the hands of a receiver.

The attention at Hope, Okla., today centered practically exclusively on the explosion of a fire dam in a coal mine. Mrs. Mary Hildan grabbed an ax when a (Grand) (Grand) man came to her aid and struck him on the head with the ax.
