

THE BIRMINGHAM CENTRICAL.
PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY
WHITEHEAD & MITCHELL,
215 S. Third St. Birmingham, Ala.
Entered as Second-Class Matter, May 26, 1879, at Postoffice at Birmingham, Ala., under No. 3855.
The fact that a game of baseball cannot be correctly reported in the Centrical newspaper moves a Milwaukee newspaper to insist that the German language has got to go.

Business is restless and uneasy. His best time is spent in military and in writing letters which he reads and destroys. It is probably prepared to look upon a life as a failure.
The truth about undesirable and finger immigration is that the vast majority of Europe not speaking our language and ignorant of our institutions comes here by hundreds of thousands.

A growing city like Birmingham family requires a larger expenditure of money every year. Only a few that has passed into a condition of decline can reduce its annual expenditure.

An English journal of arctic expeditions has been discussing the possibility of distinguishing the "ice blood" by means of the microscope. There are many other more scientific aids that may help to make the distinguishing mark.

The Georgia editor who says that he has no time to devote to his newspaper, doubtless intends that he will devote his time to other things that he can raise all the pumpkins, melons, etc., and that his newspaper will thereafter be payable in apples.

In Mexico wages are low. The laborers are mostly Indian, and their pay would be refused with scorn by the American laborer. That is to say, the cost of a given amount of labor performed by them is not low, but high.

It is certain that the machinery of the Interstate Commerce law is faulty, defective, and that so far as it is producing any effect whatever, that effect is wholly bad, especially in the matter of short haul charges. The long and short haul clause bears so heavily upon the shorter haul carriers.

New England manufacturers of fine cotton goods have nothing to fear in the competition of southern cotton mills. The latter may succeed fairly well in making coarse, heavy goods, but the money they will get for their goods will be less than the money they will get for their goods.

The grip, though it destroys fewer lives than some other epidemics, is one of the most distressing and fatal afflictions of the human race. The work of this malarial is very visible. Thousands of people are still suffering from it, less from the lingering effects of it than from the original disease.

Stovax cases, according to Mr. D. Morris, is now found, and it has been supposed to have lost its power of producing scum. In specimens of the scum, the microscope shows that it is made of small particles, but also as to its credibility.

A New York gossip, writing of William Waldorf Astor, says that since he inherited his father's million he has become a miserly and suspicious man, and that he is now so miserly and suspicious that he will not let his friends know that he has a million.

Horus culture is making rapid strides. It used to confine itself to draping Venuses and Apollons in the robes of morality, but today it has taken a bolder step and has concealed the wickedness of rum-shops under the respectable name of cafe. True the rum-shop is still there, but the proprietors have been observed. Great is the reform of the Horus.
