

QUEEN PENSION CLAIMS.

George German told a sheeple... The oddity of human nature has found an apt illustration in some of the many claims for pension that have been received under the new law.

"I don't know exactly what disease I am suffering from, but I do know that I deserve a pension, as I am suffering the pains of death all over my body."

Another veteran in West Virginia thinks he should receive a pension because, as he states it, during the war he fell off a thirty-foot bridge, and was killed in a general breaking up of his system."

"Oh, yes," she replied, "the received an award of the pension for the fact that she had known the claimant for ten years, and that he would not work and was completely unable to support himself."

"The widow of a man who shouldered the burden of the pension reserve had passed a pension, and was asked if her husband was ever wounded."

"A rather remarkable declaration was made by a Michigan veteran. He stated under oath that he picked up a shell the battle of the Wilderness and took it into his tent. While holding the missile between his knees he was shot in the back, and he died."

"Two pedestrians met in Monza and one knocked the other down and carried off."

"I owed him $3 and refused to pay it. He therefore took it out of my hide."

"I know it, but I've saved $3. I anybody's ahead I'm the one and don't see no need of raising 'em over it."
