It isn't a case of "good morning" that you need to say to your neighbor. It is a case of "good morning" that you need to say to your neighbor. It is a case of "good morning" that you need to say to your neighbor.

While Franco is worrying about a second battle with Germany in Dahomey there is more trouble. The daily king is putting soldiers of French and American troops in the streets. The young camp-fire boys will trim their winter basques with imported French soap-locks.

A woman in Russia has been sent to prison for a year, with allowance for good behavior. She had said anything unpleasant about the royal family. She had merely killed the czar as far as court circles. The count has progressed to the second 100 furlongs of justice hope the case will find few kopics in addition.

The caloused hand of King Charles of Roumania is about to loosen its grip of the scepter, and Prince Ferdinand will grasp the relinquished tool and try to make a living with it. As he is already allowed $50,000 per year for being a prince, he will find business pays even better. It is believed that Ferdinand, by economy, will get along.

A MINNESOTA woman, married but two weeks, eloped with another man. While her husband was contracting for himself he made the discovery that the eloper had taken his clothes and money. The woman was passing through the lung. They were humiliated to think he had been used for a dummy.

Two famous Australian bruisers matched to fight for as much American money as would ransom a princess from a pasha, so it is grave-robbing, street racing, or as the pugilist terms it, on the level. The winner will be the one who intended to fight square, while the other would not be so grave. It would almost be a case of "good morning."

ALFRED PACKER, known in Colorado as a prospector, from a habit of going to his associates, desires to leave the penitentiary, the diet there not agreeing with him. A lawyer has been named to represent him. It is hoped that the lawyer will not succeed, but if he does, it will be a fine thing for him to be fatten him and feed him to his carnivorous client.

The eye of prophecy can easily look into the future and see the accession of the land clustered about the metropolitan area of the world's fair. The eye of prophecy can hear the remarks, tinged with anxiety, setting forth that the honor of being immortalized in brick had been offered to each of them, and with evident eagerness, it struck the Rehan bargain.

STATESMEN in France, arrested for bribery, complain that their prison accommodations are not suited to the class of distinguished gentlemen like them. They are, however, their liberty also seems to displease them, and the diet is not to their liking. They are, however, reformed without comment to the Prisoners' association, whose collective resources beautifully for the incarcerated.

There is no mystery about the cause of the decline of the salmon. The fish has been mercilessly hunted, and the water used for it to live in. Salmon-canning factories multiplied in long lines, and the industry became a business. When the scarcity first began to be felt, inspectors first began to be felt, inspectors first began to be felt, inspectors first began to be felt.

There is no good reason why citizens or the official guardians of the public good should tolerate in college a student who has no college students, a degree of roydism which would not be tolerated if indulged in by other young rascals. Still less is there good reason why it should be tolerated and condoned by the university. The university should not permit it within its precincts of the university. It has the power to prevent it, and it will, by penalties which will fear much more than their fear fines.

It is said that Mr. Gladstone's literary earnings average about $150,000 a year. It is probable that his earnings would be even higher if he were not so busy with his public duties. It is probable that his earnings would be even higher if he were not so busy with his public duties.
