A LONDON ROSE.

Diana, take this London rose,
Of crimson grace for your pale hand,
Which will unveil loveliness that grows:
A London rose—ah, no one knows,
A penny bought it in the Strand!

But not alone for heart's delight
The rose has yet a healing power.
For your kind eyes that, late by night,
Grew sad at London's motley sight,
Will you not take my rose, Diana?

And now again I fear you start
To find that sorry comedy
Re-written on a rose's heart:
'Tis yours alone to weep and smart,
Who have such eyes to weep and see.

Soon rose and rhyme must die forgot,
Then, Diana—ah, how soon!—for me.
May die, yet live on in your thought
Of London's fate, and his who bought
For love of you a London rose!

—Macmillan's Magazine.

Physicians' prescriptions have failed to reach many cases of rheumatism known to be of a malarial origin, except by Salvation Oil. That is the reason why the popular voice is practically unanimous in its favor. 25 cents.

Animals were granted to Noah as food, B. C. 2348.

A record of uninterrupted cures for nearly half a century tells the story of Piso's Cure for pain, that Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup is the best in the market. Why try new things, when you know that you have what you need. It is infallible.

In 1313 the price of an ox was $12; it comfort, $15.

Coughing Leads to Consumption.
Kemp's Balsam stops the, cough at once.

Ices were unknown before the seventeenth century.

Hemmwell's Cough Drops.
Use Brunnell's Celebrated Cough Drops. The genuine have A. B. B. on each drop. Sold everywhere.

In 1313 a lamb was worth 6s; two dozen eggs, 3d.

"Hanson's Magic Corn Salve." Warranted to cure, or money refunded. 25c your druggist for it. Price 15 cents.

Salmon was formerly believed to promote drunkenness.

FITS—All fits stopped free by DR. KLINE'S GREAT NERVE RESTORER. No fits after first day's use. Marvelous cures. Treatise and $2 trial bottle free to fit cases. Send to Dr. Kline, 931 Arch St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Bread was first made in England with yeast in 1634.

Coughs and Colds. Those who are sufferer-ing from Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat etc., should try BROWN'S BRONCHIAL TROCHES. SOLD ONLY IN BOXES.

In Iceland, codfish beaten to a powder are used as bread.

Referring to the finds of remains of extinct animals, none is more curious than that of finding the antlers and bones of an elk 108 feet below the surface, in a shaft that was being sunk on a ledge near Newbridge, Ore. They were found imbedded in a stratum of gravel.

Alaska covers an area of 575,000 square miles, and has 25,000 miles of coast line. The population is probably about 30,000 of which all but 5,000 are native Indians. The United States government derives a large revenue from its vast fisheries and fur trade. The fur seal and fur otter trade alone is worth $300,000 a year.

"August Flower"

Miss C. G. McCLAVE, Schoolteacher, 753 Park Place, Elmira, N. Y., writes: "This Spring while away from home teaching my first term in a country school I was perfectly wretched with that human agony called dyspepsia. After dieting for two weeks and getting no better, a friend wrote me, suggesting that I take August Flower. The very next day I purchased a bottle. I am delighted to say that August Flower helped me so that I have quite recovered from my indisposition."

AT BEDTIME I TAKE A PLEASANT HERB DRINK

THE NEXT MORNING I FEEL BRIGHT AND NEW AND MY COMPLEXION IS BETTER.

My doctor says it acts gently on the stomach, liver and kidneys, and is a pleasant laxative. This drink is made from herbs, and is prepared for use as easily as tea. It is called

LANE'S MEDICINE

All druggists sell it 25c. and $1 a package. If you cannot get it, send 25c. in stamps for a package. Large size, more economical. Medicine moves the bowels each day. Address

C. H. WOODWARD, LAMONT, N. Y.

Young Mothers!

We Offer You a Remedy which Insures Safety to Life of Mother and Child.

"MOTHER'S FRIEND"

Robs Confinement of its Pain, Horror and Risk.

After using one bottle of "Mother's Friend" I suffered but little pain, and did not experience that weakness afterward, usual in such cases.—MRS. ANNA GAGE, Lamar, Mo., Jan. 18th, 1891.

Send by express, charges prepaid, on receipt of price, $1.50 per bottle. Book to Mothers mailed free.

BRADFIELD REGULATOR CO.,
ATLANTA, GA.
SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

WANTED! MEN TO TRAVEL. We pay $2 to $100 a month and expenses. STONE & WELLINGTON, Madison, Wis.

Signs of Health.

You don't have to look twice to detect them—bright eyes, bright color, bright smiles, bright in every) action. Disease is overcome only when weak tissue is replaced by the healthy kind. Scott's Emulsion of cod liver oil effects cure by building up sound flesh. It is agreeable to taste and easy of assimilation.

SCOTT'S EMULSION

Prepared by Scott & Bowne, N.Y. All druggists.

DR. KILMER'S SWAMP-ROOT

THE GREAT KIDNEY, LIVER and BLADDER CURE.

Pain in the Back,
Joints or hips, sediment in urine like brick-dust, frequent habit or retention, rheumatism.

Kidney Complaint,
Diabetes, dropsy, scanty or high colored urine.

Urinary Troubles,
Stinging sensation when voiding, diffi-culty, pain, sore in the parts, urethral irritation, stricture.

Disordered Liver,
Blood or dark circles under the eyes, tongue coated, constipation, yellow in eyeskin.

Guarantee—The contents of One Bottle, if not beneficial, druggists will refund you the price paid.

At Druggists, 50c., Size, $1.00 Size, Pamphlet Guide to Health, free—Consult it.

Dr. KILMER & Co., BINGHAMTON, N. Y.

The Actor's Story.

BY JOHN COLEMAN.

CHAPTER IV—CONTINUED.

As the boat touched the beach a couple of fishermen held it fast, while a couple more carefully put the poor ferryman, who was still senseless and took him to the nearest cottage. Then Curly sprang forth and taking Flora in his arms lifted her ashore. Taking off his hat and bowing formally to M'Allister, he said, "I am at your service, sir." Meanwhile Deempster had followed the poor Gael M'Diarmid (the head man of the village) for the use of his cottage during the forthcoming interview. M'Allister, keeping a ballet-dress like bijou, indicated by an expressive gesture that she wished the lovers to precede him. Curly gave his arm to Flora and they were followed by Laird of Strathmines being in their own turn followed by M'Allister.

Standing on the threshold of the cottage was a tall, gaunt, ugly-looking woman with hair white as snow and large, dark eyes, with an eerie, faraway look in them. Elspeth M'Diarmid (for it was she) had only stepped a little, but when she encountered Deempster she straightened herself and stood erect, looking him full in the face as she muttered, "The evil een! the evil een!"

When she caught sight of Curly and Flora she exclaimed, "Fair laddie! pair lassie!" and then, with a smile of rare sweetness, she said to Flora:

"Come ben, my bonnie dearie!" Flora took the old woman's hand and went into the cottage with her. Next, Curly was about to follow when he was intercepted by Deempster, pistol in hand. Then M'Allister said, "Now, sir, I'm ready to receive you," and he drew his sword. Mad this man doesn't cross the threshold and don't lose sight of him until I am ready for him!"

"Trust me for that," said Deempster, his hand upon his trigger. The night was falling into darkness and the villagers had gathered, eager for the rivals alone together. As Curly made another step toward the door Deempster presented his pistol, remarking with a sneer, "Pistols, if you please, sir." Mr. Player-man this pistol is loaded with slugs and if you have any regard for your health you will keep clear of the muzzle."

Curly clinched his fist and gnashed his teeth at his own impotence. "If I only had a weapon! If I only had a weapon!" he muttered while he paced to and fro and Deempster mounted guard at the gates of Paradise.

CHAPTER V.

The White Feather.

Time wore on.

Presently the chaise and pair drove up—the relations had gone to take their orders from Strathmines. He gave them in a low tone of voice—Curly could not distinguish a word—he saw the man touch his hat to Strathmines's horse in front of the other two and he noted that they had saddled and bridled Deempster's horse. Then they sat down and began to smoke their pipes. What could it all mean?

Half an hour later M'Allister appeared at the door and spoke in an undertone to Deempster, leaving further orders to the postilions and then, turning to his rival said in a curt, insolent manner: "Hi! you sir, step this way, and look after Flora."

Curly paused a moment as one who would say, "Am I a man or a dog, to be thus spoken to?" But after all it is for her sake that he acted, so he entered the room. To his astonishment she was not there. The door closed after him with a bang, and he found himself entrapped. Flora was confronted on one hand by M'Allister, on the other by Deempster, both desperate men, with loaded pistols in their hands. He was a prisoner, alone, unarmed, defenseless! There was a moment's pause—then M'Allister handed Deempster a sheet of paper, on which a few lines were hastily scrawled.

"Will it do?" he inquired.

"Yes," responded the other.

"Now, you sir," said M'Allister, "listen to what I am about to say and don't interrupt me. Fifty years ago I'd a fellow like you—"

"Would one be, fellow, sir," replied Curly. "I am a Campbell."

"Campbell be d—d! They were aye a set of thieving caterans, the best of them, but they were men not sparging jacks, and I tell you that fifty years ago had the best of your blood gone to M'Allister's veins you have done to me and mine this day, my forbears would have given him Jedburgh law—they'd have hanged him first, and tried him after. You're not worth swinging for, else I'd think to spare of shooting you than wringing the neck of a mair fowl."

"You are Flora's father sir, and for her sake I endure those bitter words."

"Good. Now read this paper."

Curly took the paper and read these cruel words:

"These presents are to attest that Flora M'Allister is not my wife, and I call God to witness that neither now nor hereafter will I seek to become her husband.

"DONALD CAMPBELL.

"Dudhope Ferry, May 12, 18—."

"You have read it," said M'Allister. Curley assented in silence.

"Now your answer?"

"My answer is this" said the young man, tearing the paper to pieces, and casting the fragments to his feet.

"Justo," said M'Allister. "Don't copy you paper once more."

Strathmines locked the outer door, and putting the key in his pocket, began to smoke. As he wrote, not a sound could be heard save the scribbling of the pen on the paper.

While the old man locked the inner door Curley looked through the window. It was small—so small that there was no possibility of escaping that way. No human being appeared within sight or sound. Then he looked toward the fire-place. There lay the poker, a primitive and unromantic weapon. It is true, but if he could only reach it! Quickly as he moved toward the hearth-stone M'Allister was quicker still with the pistol at his head.

"No you don't, my mannie," said he grimly. "Is the paper done Dan?"

"It is," replied the other.

"Read it aloud, then, that there may be no mistake about it!" Deempster read it aloud. It was textually word for word with the document which Curley had destroyed. "Now," said M'Allister, "there's my watch, and he placed it on the table. "It is now five-and-twenty minutes past four; if at half-past you've not signed that paper by the living Dan I'll chance this world and the next, and put the contents of this pistol into your head the next minute!"

The young man darted toward the door, but was intercepted by Deempster, also pistol in hand. Poor Curly. He was anything but a hero, but a hero by reasoning might have felt daunted, placed between the pistols of those stalwart and desperate men. He loved Flora M'Allister better than any man in the world—better than his life. If by sacrificing his own life he could save hers, I think he would have found courage to do it. But he reasoned that she was safe enough for the present; besides, while there was life there was hope. These and a thousand other thoughts passed through his mind during five minutes. Five minutes, did I say? I should have said five ages of agony!

"Dan," said M'Allister, cocking his pistol.

"One moment," said Curly. "I will sign this paper on two conditions."

"Name them," said the old man sternly.

"First that you will promise me not to coerce her into marrying this" (indicating Deempster) "or any other man."

M'Allister ruminated a moment, and said, "I promise."

"Next—that you'll let me see her to say 'Good-by'—before you if you desire it but not before yonder man."

"Will you mark?" eyes flashed fire, and Curly heard the click of his pistol, but the hate in his heart gave him courage, and he faced the enemy four times and more.

M'Allister—was he thinking I wonder that he had been young himself?—interposed with.

"That's one. Don't. Confound it! we can't have it all our own way, and by our own way of having it, too. The lad shall say 'Good-by' to her."

"You promise that I shall see her, then?"

"I promise. Now sign."

"God help me!" exclaimed Curly, "I'm signing away her life and my own with my heart's blood." And he was poor wretch!

M'Allister took the paper, and turning to Deempster, said "Now, Dan!—see the other stage rogue."

Strathmines strode from the house, livid, but silent. M'Allister unlocked the inner door, and going to the foot of the stairs, called Flora.

In a moment's time she was in the room—there was no fear about her. She went straight over to her lover, threw her arms around him, and kissed him before her father's face. That kiss never left the unhappy man's lips till the day of his death. Afterward she remembered that he was cold as ice. At that moment, however, she merely thought that he was worn out with the strain of the voyage. As she took his arm, and leaned her head upon his shoulder, the hot blood rushed from her heart to her glowing cheeks while he stood pale as death, motionless as marble.

Not a word had yet been spoken. At length her father handed her the paper. She read it, and quick as lightning with a movement of disgust, as though she had been stung by an adder, she withdrew herself from Curly's arm.

"Did you—did you?" she inquired, looking at him. She might as well have spoken to the dead—the man was bereft of speech, paralyzed with grief and shame—he could not meet her eyes. Then she turned to her father, and said:

"Is it true? Did he do this shameful thing?"

The old man overawed by her great grief, bowed his head and averted his face in silence. She paused. It seemed as if the question of her beauty was gone—as if the lustre had fallen from her eyes and she had in that moment grown old and gray. No trace of the old majesty remained as she said, with scarce a tremor in her voice:

"How cold it has grown. Please, father, take me home."

And he? Poor wretch! For a moment he seemed to load a dual existence—his soul had left his body, and looked with loathing on the miserable thing it once inhabited.

Hark! What was that?

The clatter of horses' hoofs—the roll of carriage wheels!

The sound brought him back to life. Like a madman, he rushed from the house screaming: "Flora! Flora! My child!—my love—my life! It was for your sake—only listen—one word—one word!"

He heard—at least he always thought he did, for many days that he heard her voice calling to him for help.

He gained upon them. As he reached the summit of the hill, the moon burst forth from behind the clouds. A man on Horseback intervened as the carriage passed out of sight. Deempster, for it was he, as he rose from the stirrups exclaimed:

"I've been waiting for this ever since the night of the ball! Blast you! Take this—and this!" And he struck Curly twice across the face with the thong end of his heavy whip—almost blinding him, then, reversing his grip with the butt-end, a knife was unloaded buckthorn, he dealt him one tremendous blow on the head which laid him on the ground.

For a moment the Laird of Strathmines smiled upon the fallen man, then he growled:

"That's a quittance in full my bold play-actor, for all outstanding accounts 'twixt you and Dan'l Deempster."

With that he put spurs to his horse, and riding up to Flora, leaving his rival stunned, bleeding, senseless—all but dead!

CHAPTER VI

At Bay.

During the journey homeward Flora remained silent. It was in vain that her father tried to draw her into conversation. She remained obdurately cold and hard as the granite of her native city!

When they changed horses McAllister got out and left her to herself and sorrow, while he mounted and rode the rest of the way with Deempster, who by this time was savagely drunk. Decidedly Dan'l was not pleasant company. Black Care sat behind him, and a fair head, dabbled in blood, when he was not before him was beside him always—so like two men rode on in silence till they reached Aberdeen.

[TO BE CONTINUED.]

DISTINGUISHED BY HAIR.

Its Color in Relation to the Pursuits of Men.

Dr. Deddoo tells us that there is a direct relation between men's pursuits and the color of their hair. As an initial proposition he finds dark, straight hair enter the ministry, red whiskered men are apt to be given to sporting and horseflesh, while the tall, vigorous blonds are the real descendants of the Vikings still constitute a large contingent to our travelers and emigrants.

The phenomena of canaries can be considerably altered toward red or orange by feeding them on a stimulating diet of red pepper and though this may fail for human beings the general something might be done toward increasing the pigment in the hair, and give hope to many a melancholy owner of graying locks.

Suppose, for a moment, that a prospective color like that which obtains in the fields, woods, and hedgerows, in autumn could be seen in man. What a changed world would this of ours be! Men, like canaries or caterpillars, could but change their complexion once or twice in the course of their pursuit, then we might indeed imagine an aldermanic after years of callpash and fullness, assume the hue and shape of a turtle. The grizzly miser, after a life of secret hoarding, would turn as yellow as his guineas. Mr. Carcass, the butcher, would become as rubicund as the beef on his stall. Instead of appearing as a trim, dapper paleface in a frock coat and ferret, the poisoner, as black as the pitch anyone which he used.

But outside the limits of a nightmare dream no such world is possible, says the Nineteenth Century. We have to content ourselves with a medley of far more sober realities where, though, white spiders mostly come to grief, the confidence trick still flourishes and "men are men" to the end. "It is an age," says a profound thinker, "of weak convictions, paralyzed intellects and growing laxity in opinion." There is no end to the struggle for bare existence ever going on, but the fittest do not always survive. There are many wise men, but of many a wise man will it never be said:

This fellow's wise enough to play the fool,
And to the trade of wisdom deals with skill,
While the foolish world in cap and bells apes wisdom, and save in his own country, is not without honor.

CHINESE RIVER TRAVEL.

How the Celestials Navigate One of Their Streams.

O. L. Kilborn, one of seven Canadian missionaries who have gone to settle in Chen-tu, the capital of Szechuan, has written an account of Chinese river travel, says the Montreal Witness. At Ichang Mr. Kilborn and his companions embarked, with their belongings on two house boats and began a journey of 1,000 miles up the Yang-tse river.

The Chinese house boat is a flat-bottomed punt, of which the stern half is covered in. Rather more than the anterior third consists of open deck, where the fourteen rowers stand when they wield their oars, and where the whole crew spread their mats and sleep at night. Turning on a pivot at the bow is a long heavy oar, which, when skillfully handled, is more of the steering than the rudder. The boat is furnished with a tall and strong mast, and, with the least fair wind, up goes the Chinese equivalent for the main sail. When the wind drops eighteen men jump ashore, fifteen of them tow the house boat along with from 300 to 1,000 feet of bamboo rope, and the other three push with long poles, while two men keep the rope clear of projecting rocks along the river bank and the remaining one runs beside the boat, spurring them to their work by shouting waving his arms and clapping his hands.

Often the banks become too precipitous for the tracking, and the fourteen rowers take to the water. The mode of progression is changed ten or fifteen times a day. Often the boat crosses the river to gain quieter water or a smoother bank. Here it is carried down a quarter of a mile in the course of this manœuver though all hands assist, block fiercely, row with desperation, and fill the air with yells.

On reaching the rapids of Tatung two bamboo ropes were put ashore and seventy-five men and boys set to on them, to the accompaniment of a small barrel drum furiously beaten by a man on deck. The Chinese authorities have established life-saving associations which keep several well-manned boats constantly plying at all the dangerous rapids. Such a thing as an upset was never seen, though sometimes a pole was driven down through a hole in the bow but usually a rope was tied round a boulder or stake on the shore—by the way, Mr. Kilborn found a heap of small stones gathered for the purpose.

York Better as It Was.

On one occasion a congressman of a past generation not noted for his habits of personal tidiness, the visiting on Five Points, England, one day while out in a sloop with a sailing party he was swept overboard, but was happily rescued. When the excitement was over a young fellow rushed down into the cabin.

"Oh, love!" he exclaimed, "we've been having an exciting time on deck."

"What is it?" asked severely.

"Mr. Blank was washed overboard."

"In good sooth!" snapped a lavish lous New England matron.

Everybody was horrified.

"Well, I am," she explained. "Just think of that man being washed on board."—Detroit Free Press.

German Medical Students.

In the twenty universities of the German empire the medical students for last summer numbered 8,818. These were distributed among the various faculties as follows: Berlin, 1,186; Bonn, 325; Breslau 292; Erlangen, 424; Freiburg, 481; Giessen, 372; Gettingen, 290; Greifswald, 193; Halle, 394; Heidelberg, 774; Jena, 212; Kiel, 335; Konigsberg 256; Leipsic, 834; Marburg, 266; Munich, 1,448; Rostock, 158; Strassburg, 335; Tubingen, 230; Wurzburg, 743.

The Power of Wealth.

"This" said Mr. Liveyayte of Chicago pointing out a painting to his visitor, "is one of the old masters."

"Indeed" replied the guest with deep interest.

"Yes, I had it painted to order."

He Would Relieve Her.

She her first season—I have been shut up in a boarding-school so long that I feel awkward and timid in company. I don't know what to do with my hands. He—I'll hold them for you.

PADS AND FEATURES.

There are $12,500 telephones in use in the United States.

Switzerland's new census shows a population of 2,917,754.

In Sitka, when an Indian wife has lost her husband by death, she goes into mourning by painting the upper half of her face a deep black.

A Western traveler has a large collection of souvenir spoons which he secured in a peculiar manner. At every hotel and restaurant he stopped at he has made it a point to "hook" a spoon.

Capt. C. James of the Reddish, Eng., Town Cycling club died last week and in accordance with his last wishes, his coffin was borne to the grave on four bicycles and attended by his friends riding on their wheels.

An Englishman has just invented an apparatus whereby, instead of rolling and forming separately each strip in the manufacture of bands and hoops, several strips can be cut simultaneously at one operation from a sheet of metal.

A German newspaper contained this announcement: "I hereby declare, since Adelaide Schmidt, notice of the 6th August, 1892, and notwithstanding her refusal to accept the same, my betrothal with Franlein Emma Zigler is null and void.—Richard York." In the next number of the paper the following appeared: "I hereby declare that with respect to the advertisement of the annulment of my betrothal, written and published by me, both York I do not agree. I am and still intend to remain his betrothed."

The vandal woodcutters in the California sequoia forests used to cut the trees at a distance of from a dozen to twenty feet above the ground in order to avoid the gnarled and knotted base. But it has lately been found that these stumps are as valuable as the straight wood. The grain is the most beautiful figurings and the wood is sawed into thin sheets and used for interior decorations.

The only place where any of the treasure of the famous pirate, Captain Kidd, was ever found is Gardiner's island, at the east end of Long island, a famous rendezvous for sea rovers. There were found 783 ounces of gold, 633 ounces of silver, besides silk, satin, bullion and jewels. It was long a superstition that whenever Kidd buried money he killed a sailor to bury with it, that his ghost might guard the treasure and scare away intruders.

Lucy Booth, General Booth's youngest daughter, who is about to go to India at the head of mission work in that land, will dress and live as the native women do while she remains among them.

Baron Hirsch is said by a London newspaper to be the richest man the world has ever known, the statement being that he is worth £5,000 000 sterling a year. This implies a capital of about $300,000,000.

Emperor William, of Germany, recently intended to decorate Count Taaffe with the black eagle, but he sent him a red eagle by mistake, and as etiquette would not allow him to take back what he had once given, he was obliged to let the count have both decorations.

Mrs. Ella L. Knowles, who went to Montana after studying law in Manchester, N. H., found in that country wealth a status prohibiting women from practicing at the bar. Her efforts to have the law repealed by the legislature were successful, and she has now been elected attorney general of that state.

Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes suffers somewhat from asthma, and it is noticeable in his verse, but otherwise he seems to be in excellent health. He is a great walker and is often seen in Beacon street, in Boston, taking his constitutional. He always wears a nicely polished silk hat and carries a large cane.

Mrs. Ralph Waldo Emerson's death draws attention to two facts—her unmarried daughter's beautiful devotion to her bild parent these many years and the undoubted superdition of Mr. Emerson's study since his death. In fact the whole house and its furnishings have undergone little change in a decade.

Jade's Medicine Moves the Bowels Each Day. In order to be healthy one has to move the constipation, headache, biliary and liver troubles arise. Jade's Medicine moves the bowels. Price 50c and $1.00 at all dealers.

Oliver Cromwell loved veal seasoned with orange juice.

Important to Fleshy People.
We have reduced your article to the price of Ripans Tabules, which are sold at 72 cents per gross, or one cent a box. Druggists will supply you, or send to the Ripans Chemical Company, 10 Spruce Street, New York City.

Hippocras mentions fritters, fruit cream and cheese as desserts.

One or Two Friends.
I have been using Dr. Deane's Dyspepsia Pills for a short time with marked success and upon my recommendation have induced one or two friends to try them with equally good results. BENEDICT,
Editor Ellenville (N. Y.) Journal.
Write Dr. J. A. Deane & Co., Catskill, N. Y.

The peacock and swan were famous old German dainties.

THE MOST PLEASANT WAY
Of preventing the grippe, colds, headache and fevers is to keep the blood pure, the liver active and the bowels regular, use the only laxative remedy, Syrup of Figs, when ever the system needs a gentle, yet perfectly effective cathartic. Therefore one must get the true remedy manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., only when you find the name of the well-known firm printed on the front of every package, as it is a medicine that safely and certainly builds up, strengthens, regulates, and cures.

If it doesn't, if it even fails to benefit or cure, you have your money back.

PUT TO FLIGHT
all the peculiar troubles that beset a weak woman by the only guaranteed remedy for her, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Every woman suffering from any chronic "female weakness" can be restored to perfect health and strength by its use. Sold by druggists the world over, or sent by mail on receipt of $1.00. Large treatise (1008 pages) on Diseases of Women, illustrated, sent for 10 cents in stamps. Address World's Dispensary Medical Association, No. 663 Main Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

The Egyptians cooked meat as soon as the animal was killed.

There are a large number of hygienic physicians who claim that disease is always the result of a transgression of Nature's laws. The Proprietors of Garfield Tea are both physicians, and have devoted years, to the following Nature's laws. They give away the very best remedy for Garfield Tea is that tood which they claim will enable all persons to live in health up to the limit allotted to mankind all kinds, and to have no need for the use of any other medicine.

King Noung, B. C. 1998, taught the Chinese to make tyrant.

Bad taste in the mouth or an unpleasant breath, when resulting from Catarrh, are overcome, and the nasal passages which have been closed for years are made free by the use of Ely's Cream Balm. I suffered from catarrh for twelve years, experienced the nauseating dropping in the throat, and to that disease, and nose bleed almost daily. I tried various remedies and finally used Ely's Cream Balm. I saw Ely's Cream Balm advertised. I procured a bottle, and since the first day's use have had no return of the disease. I am entirely cure.—D. G. Davidson, with the Bee Building Co., Omaha, Neb. Journal.

Apply Balm into each nostril. It is quickly Absorbed. Gives Relief at once. Price 50 cents at Druggists or by mail.

ELY BROTHERS, 56 Warren St., New York

Pork was the most highly esteemed flesh in Homer's time.

In 1890 oranges were first imported into England from Italy.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury,
As mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

Sold by Druggists, price 75c. per bottle

Churches built in America in 1891 numbered 8,508.

The speed of a wild duck is ninety miles an hour.

Fayetteville, North Carolina, says clam tea is a good cough syrup.

It is said that Kansas is the only state in the union which produces reeled silk.

The population of many South sea islands manufacture their own cure suits from the products of palm trees.

An 803-pound baby elephant arrived in New York the other day from India, for W. A. Conklin, ex-director of the Central Park menagerie.

Signal's Lily Fag, a Jersey cow belonging to General Moore of Hunterville, Ala., has the greatest butter record of any cow now living—1,040 pounds in less than a year.

DO YOU COUGH
DON'T DELAY
TAKE KEMP'S
BALSAM
THE BEST COUGH CURE

SHILOH'S CURE.
TAKE IN TIME. SOLD BY DRUGGISTS ON A GUARANTEE. 25 CTS. 50 CTS. $1.00
Cures Consumption, Coughs, Croup, Sore Throat. Sold by all Druggists on a Guarantee. For a Lame Side, Back or Chest Shiloh's Porous Plaster will give great satisfaction.—25 cents.

If afflicted with sore eyes use Thompson's Eye Water

OPIUM Morphine Habit Cured in 10 to 20 days. No pay till cured. DR. J. E. STEPHENS, Lebanon, Ohio.

$525 A party to purchase a Piano or Organ, can hear of something to their advantage by addressing at once, with stamp, CHICESTER & SON, 178 Broad St., N. J.

KIDDER'S PASTILLES A sure cure for Asthma

$1000.00 Paid in prizes for Puzzle on Enterbrook's Pens. Send 10c. for sample card. Enterbrook & Co., 23 John St., New York.

PROGRESSIVE EUCHRE,
The most popular game of cards. Illustrated. Rules. Tricks. Counting. Terms. Etc. Sent postpaid, 10 cents. Address, U. S. PUB. CO., 810 Broadway, New York. Agents wanted in each locality. Send for particulars. Enclose stamp for one of our Handsome Calendars. Terms liberal. For full particulars call at Whitehead & Mitchell's Real Estate Agency.

LADIES! Brown's on your French Bosom and Dressing Sacque.

PENSION JOHN W. MORRIS, Washington, D.C. Successfully Prosecutes Claims. Late Principal Examiner U.S. Pension Bureau. 3 yrs in last war, 15 adjudicating claims, atty since.

FAT FOLKS REDUCED
Obesity, the cause and cure. Sent free. Dr. W. F. SWOPE, McVicker's Theatre Bldg. Chicago, Ill.

Patents! Pensions
Patents for Inventions, Trade Marks, Copyrights, Caveats, Interferences, Infringements, Rejected Cases, Appeals, Reissues, Extensions, Assignments, Infringements, Opinions as to Validity, Searches, Transfers, Licenses, Decisions, Rejected Claims, Pensions, Etc. Send for circulars. Patent Office Examiner, 15 years. PATRICK O'FARRELL, WASHINGTON, D.C.

"ORANGE - BLOSSOM"
Cures All Female Diseases.
Dr. J. A. McGill & Co., 74-76 Fifth Ave., Chicago, Ill.

DOUBLE breech loaded GUNS BICYCLES $15 WATCHES GRIND $5 HAND MILL

WORN NIGHT AND DAY.
ELASTIC TRUSS

At Price gold and Silver Watches, Diamonds, Jewelry, Clocks, Silverware, Guns and Pistols, Tents, Awnings, Flags, Canvas Goods, Harness, Saddles, Whips, Harness Goods, Cart Tops, Robes, Blankets, Fly Nets, Horse Clothing, Trunks, Satchels, Bags, Valises, Rose Bits, Bridles, Martingales, Boots, Shoes, Rubbers, Overshoes, Leggins, Mittens, Gloves, Mufflers, Underwear, Hosiery, Shirts, Collars, Cuffs, Neckwear, Suspenders, Hats, Caps, Furnishing Goods, Dress Goods, Cloaks, Shawls, Blankets, Flannels, Quilts, Comforts, Carpets, Oil Cloths, Curtains and Curtain Materials, Lace Curtains, Portieres, Upholstery Goods, Furniture, Stoves, Ranges, Refrigerators, Baby Carriages, Lawn Mowers, Base Ball Goods, Fishing Rods, Tackle, Guns, Ammunition, Sporting Goods, Bicycles, Tricycles, Safeties, Velocipedes, Express Wagons, Road Carts, Buggies, Phaetons, Carriages, Surreys, Road Wagons, Spring Wagons, Farm Wagons, Delivery Wagons, Trucks, Scales, Etc. Etc. Etc.