"German Syrup"

I am a farmer at Edom, Texas. I have used German Syrup for six years successfully for Sore Throat, Coughs, Colds, Hoarseness, Pains in Chest and Lungs and Spitting-up of Blood. I have tried many kinds of Cough Syrups in my time, but let me say to anyone wanting such a medicine—German Syrup is the best. We are subject to so many sudden changes from cold to hot, damp weather here, but in families where German Syrup is used there is little trouble from colds. John F. Jones.

DR. KILMER'S

SWAMP-ROOT

CURED ME.

Had Torpid Liver For 14 Years. Biliousness, Poor Digestion, Loss of Appetite.

DEAR SIRS:—I have been troubled with Torpid Liver for 14 years and gone through all the usual remedies, but have not found many times it has been impossible for me to do any kind of labor. Dr. Kilmer's SWAMP-ROOT was first recommended to me by Hagelstein & Co., Druggists, Decatur, Ind. After taking one bottle I was uncertain whether I was really receiving any benefit or not; after taking the second bottle, however, I found that my health was improving, and I continued until I had taken 6 bottles. I can now cheerfully recommend SWAMP-ROOT

The Great KIDNEY, LIVER and BLADDER Cure to every one who has torpid liver, for it has completely cured me. T. W. CHRISTIANS, Jan. 16th, 1896. Decatur, Ind.

At Druggists 50 cents and $1.00 size. "Invalids' Guide to Health" free—Consultation free. Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

Dr. Kilmer's U & O Anoigtment Cures Piles Trial Box Free. At Druggists 50 cents.

CURES RISING BREAST.

"MOTHER'S FRIEND" is the greatest relief and child-bearing woman. I have been a mid-wife for many years, and in each case where "Mother's Friend" has been used it has accomplished wonders and relieved much suffering. I do the best remedy for rising of the breast known, and won't the price for that alone. Mrs. M. J. Brewer, Montgomery, Ala.

Sent by express charges prepaid, on receipt of price, $1.50 per bottle.

BRADFIELD REGULATOR CO., Sold by all druggists.

$100 A MONTH and expenses. Wanted: Men to travel for reliable established house. Salary $100 per month and expenses. Address, with stamp for reply, Manager, Box 1, Tea Co., 20 Michigan Ave., Detroit, Mich.

A MONEY-MAKER FOR AGENTS Just in Allen's Wife's New Book, "Samantha at the World's Fair" Sells rapidly. Big profits. Credit given. Freight paid. Outfit free. Write quick. Address, Globe Bible Publishing Co., Phila., Pa., Chicago, Ill., or Cincinnati, O.

WORN NIGHT AND DAY.

A Perfect ELASTIC TRUSS (PATENTED) Has the worst rupture perfectly retained night and day. Self-Adjustment. Comfort and Satisfaction guaranteed. Sent by mail. Circulars free. Send waist measure when ordering. Agents wanted. Liberal inducements. Address, C. O. BOWEN & CO., Box 284 Bowen Building, CHICAGO, ILL.

MARLIN Made in all styles and calibers. Light, strongest, simplest, most accurate, most compact, and most convenient.

Model 1891 Take-down Rifle, shown above, and Model 1891 Carbine, are the best and handiest guns for all-around use. Send 2c. stamp for 100 page illustrated catalogue, containing much information about guns and shooting. Mailed free.

Catalogue mailed free. REPEATERS

THE MARLIN FIRE ARMS CO., New Haven, Conn.

PISO'S CURE FOR Consumptives and people who have weak lungs or Asthma, should use Piso's Cure for Consumption. It has cured thousands. It has not injured one. It is not bad to take. It is the best cough syrup. Sold everywhere. 25 cts. CONSUMPTION.

Unlike the Dutch Process No Alkalies or Other Chemicals are used in the preparation of W. BAKER & CO.'S BreakfastCocoa which is absolutely pure and soluble. It has more than three times the strength of Cocoa mixed with Starch, Arrowroot or Sugar, and is far more economical, costing less than one cent a cup. It is delicious, nourishing, and easily DIGESTED. Sold by Grocers everywhere. W. BAKER & CO., Dorchester, Mass.

"COLCHESTER" Spading Boot

GOOD CHANCE! Odell No Typewriter for $10, if cash with order is received before Nov. 1st. The famous Odell Typewriter is used by Lawyers, Ministers, Doctors, Merchants, Editors and Government Officers, because of its clean print, simplicity and manifold copies. No teacher required. It will do your work in one hour's practice. Order now and take advantage of this exceptionality.

GOOD CHANCE!

Address FRANK ROHN, 88 W. Jackson St., Chicago.

THE FAIREST LAND.

"Tell me, gentle traveler, thou
Who hast wandered far and wide—
Seen the sweetest rose that blows
And the brightest rivers glide;
Say, of all thine eyes have seen,
Which the fairest land are seen?"

"Lady, shall I tell thee where
Nature seems most best and fair,
Far above all climes besides?
'Tis where those we love abide,
And that little spot is ours
Which the lovers's foot hath pressed.
Though it be a fairy prison,
Wide and spreading be the place
Though 'twere but a thousand miles,
'Twould become enchanted ground
With those we fondly wate would see.
The mar.in of Al Cawthar's stream
And then canst none have found a dimmer
A bower where now born roses bloom
Than the fairest land are seen!"

What's in a Name.

Naming a baby is, in my opinion, a more important matter than we really make of it. The poor little helpless thing has no voice or choice in the matter, but must take whatever we see fit to give him. Just think, too, a name is one thing that lasts through life and will be forever on our tongu s and dinned in our ears. Surely we ought to be careful in our selection. Of course what is musical to the ears of one might not be to another, but a little attention and common sense will show us as good advantage in the selection of a name as in any other place you could possibly use it.

Often a name really becomes pleasant to my ears from the affection and respect we bear towards the one to whom it belongs; but it will hardly follow that if we do not like any name it will grow sweet with us.

I know a man, says a writer in the Philadelphia Times, who cried the name Zollicoffer through life, and that with dignity; but I used to look at him and think what a hard name to be compared had when a boy, and I divided my pity between him and another poor fellow whose name was Cincinnatus. Two names are better than one, that is more musical, if they are well put together, and if they look well when written in full. This is especially true for one in public life, or if the surname is a very common one. Give your son a name that you would like to see written in full if he becomes a noted diving or senator.

Above all things, don't give a poor little helpless baby a name that will be a mortification and perhaps an almost insurmountable barrier to him all his life, for the sake of naming him for his grandfather, or some kind, well-meaning uncle. No one cares to buy a suit of clothes for him in return for the honor. Honor to whom, pray? What respect could I show to the departed or elder members of the family to give their names to your baby? I would show a better respect in the mind of the child.

Instead of handing a name down in a direct line from father to son of a name in a family is enough. Who has not heard "Big Joe" and "Little Joe," and Dave Harker, Sr., and Big Dave Harker? If you feel a great and perhaps a pardonable pride in the name of your grandparents or some member that the children of noted men seldom are as great as their fathers. Sometimes, indeed, they are quite the reverse, and in that case you not only do not add to the son's capabilities or character, but bring a disrepr ach to the honored name. Even should he excel, let him have the credit of doing so on his own merit because of his father's name. Then, too, how awkward in business or letter writing to write or adding the Sr. or Jr. to distinguish them.

I lost a sister, years ago, whose name was a very unusual one, and would bear repeating, but mother would never allow the name to be given to another in the family. To mother the name is as much a part of Aveilas her face was in a different mould for another would destroy its individuality and seem almost like sacrilege.

Another point in choosing a name to get one that cannot be nicknamed, or, at least, one that will not sound well when not like the colored woman who named her boy Napollo and called him Nap for short and her girl Virginia and called her Sin. For a second name nothing can be nicer than for one call the family name, or the mother's maiden name, provided it is a "comfortable" one. A name an be given for a second name that you think very pretty, but which is too long or hard to speak for common use. If you give a name that you like in a all means pronounce it properly. Don't call Alva Aivy, nor Julia Julie.

If the surnames is a garnished one, like Smith, Jones, or Brown, select some name that is not likely to be duplicated in this country. In economical, costing less than one cent a cup. It is nourishing, and easily DIGESTED. Sold by Grocers everywhere. W. BAKER & CO., Dorchester, Mass.

"COLCHESTER" Spading Boot

GOOD CHANCE! Odell No Typewriter for $10, if cash with order is received before Nov. 1st. The famous Odell Typewriter is used by Lawyers, Ministers, Doctors, Merchants, Editors and Government Officers, because of its clean print, simplicity and manifold copies. No teacher required. It will do your work in one hour's practice. Order now and take advantage of this exceptionality.

GOOD CHANCE!

Address FRANK ROHN, 88 W. Jackson St., Chicago.

THE FAIREST LAND.

"Tell me, gentle traveler, thou
Who hast wandered far and wide—
Seen the sweetest rose that blows
And the brightest rivers glide;
Say, of all thine eyes have seen,
Which the fairest land are seen?"

"Lady, shall I tell thee where
Nature seems most best and fair,
Far above all climes besides?
'Tis where those we love abide,
And that little spot is ours
Which the lover's foot hath pressed.
Though it be a fairy prison,
Wide and spreading be the place
Though 'twere but a thousand miles,
'Twould become enchanted ground
With those we fondly wate would see.
The mar.in of Al Cawthar's stream
And then canst none have found a dimmer
A bower where now born roses bloom
Than the fairest land are seen."

What's in a Name.

Naming a baby is, in my opinion, a more important matter than we really make of it. The poor little helpless thing has no voice or choice in the matter, but must take whatever we see fit to give him. Just think, too, a name is one thing that lasts through life and will be forever on our tongu s and dinned in our ears. Surely we ought to be careful in our selection. Of course what is musical to the ears of one might not be to another, but a little attention and common sense will show us as good advantage in the selection of a name as in any other place you could possibly use it.

Often a name really becomes pleasant to my ears from the affection and respect we bear towards the one to whom it belongs; but it will hardly follow that if we do not like any name it will grow sweet with us.

I know a man, says a writer in the Philadelphia Times, who cried the name Zollicoffer through life, and that with dignity; but I used to look at him and think what a hard name to be compared had when a boy, and I divided my pity between him and another poor fellow whose name was Cincinnatus. Two names are better than one, that is more musical, if they are well put together, and if they look well when written in full. This is especially true for one in public life, or if the surname is a very common one. Give your son a name that you would like to see written in full if he becomes a noted diving or senator.

Above all things, don't give a poor little helpless baby a name that will be a mortification and perhaps an almost insurmountable barrier to him all his life, for the sake of naming him for his grandfather, or some kind, well-meaning uncle. No one cares to buy a suit of clothes for him in return for the honor. Honor to whom, pray? What respect could I show to the departed or elder members of the family to give their names to your baby? I would show a better respect in the mind of the child.

Instead of handing a name down in a direct line from father to son of a name in a family is enough. Who has not heard "Big Joe" and "Little Joe," and Dave Harker, Sr., and Big Dave Harker? If you feel a great and perhaps a pardonable pride in the name of your grandparents or some member that the children of noted men seldom are as great as their fathers. Sometimes, indeed, they are quite the reverse, and in that case you not only do not add to the son's capabilities or character, but bring a disrepr ach to the honored name. Even should he excel, let him have the credit of doing so on his own merit because of his father's name. Then, too, how awkward in business or letter writing to write or adding the Sr. or Jr. to distinguish them.

I lost a sister, years ago, whose name was a very unusual one, and would bear repeating, but mother would never allow the name to be given to another in the family. To mother the name is as much a part of Aveilas her face was in a different mould for another would destroy its individuality and seem almost like sacrilege.

Another point in choosing a name to get one that cannot be nicknamed, or, at least, one that will not sound well when not like the colored woman who named her boy Napollo and called him Nap for short and her girl Virginia and called her Sin. For a second name nothing can be nicer than for one call the family name, or the mother's maiden name, provided it is a "comfortable" one. A name an be given for a second name that you think very pretty, but which is too long or hard to speak for common use. If you give a name that you like in a all means pronounce it properly. Don't call Alva Aivy, nor Julia Julie.

If the surnames is a garnished one, like Smith, Jones, or Brown, select some name that is not likely to be duplicated in this country. In

Story of a Spoon.

THE ceremony was over. It had not seemed very hard or very long. Yet other brides had warned her that it would be both.

"I, Anna, take thee, David"—she had been unconscious of effort in the saying. Tongue and throat acted automatically, following the smooth voice of the rector, much as she followed responsive his intoned prayers each Sabbath. Only now there was no stained-glass window to watch, nor could she ponder upon the memorial tablet just above the pew, her frequent occupation while she joined in the general confession of having followed too much the devices and desires of the heart. Yet was her mind no more fixed, or definite than then. Her eyes wandered and saw that a picture hung slightly askew above the mantelpiece; she even made a step forward to set it straight when she noticed the rector was saying: "Anna, will thou have this man?" and her answer was given at the idea of an admonition. She glanced downward, and observed how rosy were the grasses showing through the white lace angular gap just above the first button of her glove. She must get a new pair made too foolishly large, that distorted that portion of the hand, she wondered? And all the while the rector was dwelling on words that she did not understand.

They knelt, and he, David, this tall, straight man looked so boyish that she feel how cold was her hand within its glove, since he pressed it tenderly, reassuring her. She must get a new pair of this confusion of shadows. She turned in the direction which her husband had taken. The shadows were all about her: "She cannot loose sight of him even a moment. Oh, Anna, won't you be loving to him as a bride should be and a tenderer than the rest murmured: "How she must love him!"

But Anna did not follow her husband beyond the first door. Crossing a waiting-room she opened a second door and reentered into the outer air again, and upon a second platform. She knew the place well. Here was but a single track and less light and fewer people. Here she could be more quiet to think the problem out—why the voice kept saying she was "bad." She placed her hands on her head, and blew her silk-lined mantle into clinging, classic folds about her. Still it could be all a dream, and clearer her head would become.

Why was she bad? Had she not kept her promise of years? Had she not irrevocably sent away "the man of the man who had made vows even as hers now were? She had suffered; so, doubtless, was he. At the time she thought the old cruel pain clutched at heart and throat—but she had done right. Through all the years of her life had appeared pure, spotless, blameless she had that other man had drifted into loving almost with out knowing, but upon realization of their folly they had given each other up, had done their duty singly. This, then, could either of them be "bad"? But the voice kept saying it and Anna Irwin—no, Anna McIntyre—cringed as she grew conscious of her father's when once as a child she had sobbed to see a debased and cursing wretch dragged along the streets by a policeman. "She is a bad woman, my darling." But she—Anna—how could she be "bad"? Surely her only sin in thinking of that other man—a thing which had only become a sin at the marriage ceremony—was that of a day-dream. "But the voice kept saying it and Anna Irwin—no, Anna McIntyre—cringed as she grew conscious of her father's when once as a child she had sobbed to see a debased and cursing wretch dragged along the streets by a policeman. "She is a bad woman, my darling." But she—Anna—how could she be "bad"? Surely her only sin in thinking of that other man—a thing which had only become a sin at the marriage ceremony—was that of a day-dream. "But was it a sin?" Like a flash came to her memory of the sermon on the mount.—"Whosoever looketh," said Harold "What does it seem to say?" he whispered. The clear girl listened a moment and answered softly, "It says thick, tick, tick, tick, Harold."

TOO LATE.

"I am a bad woman—a bad woman."

"—Life everlasting—Amen" the last word drawn out, sonorous, resonant, the rector's deep bass. The ceremony was over. They rose to their feet. A brief pause followed, then the rector began saying something. She knows enough not to "give away" all the funny confidences the boys reveal to her, and she knows how to listen particularly good, and she knows how to cook when they are stranded on an island, and she knows how to tell fairy tales She knows enough to keep silence and she knows how to talk well.

She knows how to dance, swim, row, sail a boat, play the piano and banjo, sing negro melodies and college songs. She knows enough not to "give away" all the funny confidences the boys reveal to her, and she knows how to listen particularly good, and she knows how to cook when they are stranded on an island, and she knows how to tell fairy tales She knows enough to keep silence and she knows how to talk well.

She knows how to dance, swim, row, sail a boat, play the piano and banjo, sing negro melodies and college songs. She knows enough not to "give away" all the funny confidences the boys reveal to her, and she knows how to listen particularly good, and she knows how to cook when they are stranded on an island, and she knows how to tell fairy tales She knows enough to keep silence and she knows how to talk well.

How Old Are You?

The physical beauty of women should last until they are past fifty.

Beauty reach its zenith under the age of thirty-five or forty. Helen of Troy, comes upon the stage in the age of forty. Aspasia was thirty-six when married to Pericles, and she was a brilliant figure thirty years thereafter. Cleopatra was past thirty when she met Antony. Diane de Poictiers was thirty-six when she won the heart of Henry II., and she was forty-seven but his devotion never changed. Anne of Austria, was thirty-eight when de scribed as the most beautiful woman in Europe. Mme. de Maintenon was forty three when united to Louis and Catherine de Medici was forty-four when she seized the throne she occupied for thirty-five years. Mlle. Mar ie Mancini was thirty-six when she left Mme. Recamier between the ages of thirty five and fifty-five.

Uses of Hairpins.

Hairpins are very valuable. They cost only a few cents a box, but they are worth a great deal when you don't happen to have one

Here are a few uses for them:

They make splendid corset-steels.

They are unrivaled when it comes to straightening out tangled shoestrings.

They aren't bad paper-cutters.

They are invaluable when you lose the key of your desk or trunk. With a little ingenuity, plenty of patience and persistent scratching with one of them the lock will snap back with sheer desperation.

They are very handy to pin veils.

They have been known to keep detached ruffles in place.

They can be used as hat-pins—in a pinch.

They are superior to any shoe or glove buttoner ever invented.

A Handsome Jar.

A smelling jar made of a solid piece of glass, the bowl and stopper each measuring about two inches in diameter and three and one-half inches high is a novelty exhibited at present. The inside of the bowl is cut in diamond dust by an immense coring machine. The stopper is embraced in one quarter inch of solid gold, top mounted with two small jade butterfly ornaments and jade drop pieces. The whole is enclosed in rubies and sapphire imbedded in the jade without any metal mountings.

The Pudding of Long Ago.

Four large tart apples, half of a nutmeg grated, one pound bread crumbs, half teaspoonful of salt, one teaspoonful of cinnamon, four eggs. Pare and core the apples very fine; mix them with the bread crumbs. Beat the eggs separately until very light, then add the yelks to the apples, sift in the whites carefully, and the salt cinnamon and nutmeg; mix carefully and boil in a greased mold two hours. Serve hot, with foamy sauce. Good

Baked Chicken.

An appetizing way to cook chicken is to cut it in pieces, as if for a fricassee. Dip the pieces in beaten egg and then in fine bread crumbs. Season with salt and pepper and lay loosely. Put them in a dripping pan with bits of butter over them, and a little water in the pan. Bake slowly until tender and done. Put the chicken upon a hot dish, make a rich gravy of the contents of the pan and pour over them. Garnish the dish with parsley.

Unique and Beautiful.

The Empress Frederick of Germany possesses a unique tea service. The tea tray has been beaten out of an old Prussian half-penny. The teaset is made out of a German farthing, and the tiny cups are made from the coins of different German principalities.

THE ceremony was over. It had not seemed very hard or very long. Yet other brides had warned her that it would be both.

"I, Anna, take thee, David"—she had been unconscious of effort in the saying. Tongue and throat acted automatically, following the smooth voice of the rector, much as she followed responsive his intoned prayers each Sabbath. Only now there was no stained-glass window to watch, nor could she ponder upon the memorial tablet just above the pew, her frequent occupation while she joined in the general confession of having followed too much the devices and desires of the heart. Yet was her mind no more fixed, or definite than then. Her eyes wandered and saw that a picture hung slightly askew above the mantelpiece; she even made a step forward to set it straight when she noticed the rector was saying: "Anna, will thou have this man?" and her answer was given at the idea of an admonition. She glanced downward, and observed how rosy were the grasses showing through the white lace angular gap just above the first button of her glove. She must get a new pair made too foolishly large, that distorted that portion of the hand, she wondered? And all the while the rector was dwelling on words that she did not understand.

They knelt, and he, David, this tall, straight man looked so boyish that she feel how cold was her hand within its glove, since he pressed it tenderly, reassuring her. She must get a new pair of this confusion of shadows. She turned in the direction which her husband had taken. The shadows were all about her: "She cannot loose sight of him even a moment. Oh, Anna, won't you be loving to him as a bride should be and a tenderer than the rest murmured: "How she must love him!"

But Anna did not follow her husband beyond the first door. Crossing a waiting-room she opened a second door and reentered into the outer air again, and upon a second platform. She knew the place well. Here was but a single track and less light and fewer people. Here she could be more quiet to think the problem out—why the voice kept saying she was "bad." She placed her hands on her head, and blew her silk-lined mantle into clinging, classic folds about her. Still it could be all a dream, and clearer her head would become.

Why was she bad? Had she not kept her promise of years? Had she not irrevocably sent away "the man of the man who had made vows even as hers now were? She had suffered; so, doubtless, was he. At the time she thought the old cruel pain clutched at heart and throat—but she had done right. Through all the years of her life had appeared pure, spotless, blameless she had that other man had drifted into loving almost with out knowing, but upon realization of their folly they had given each other up, had done their duty singly. This, then, could either of them be "bad"? But the voice kept saying it and Anna Irwin—no, Anna McIntyre—cringed as she grew conscious of her father's when once as a child she had sobbed to see a debased and cursing wretch dragged along the streets by a policeman. "She is a bad woman, my darling." But she—Anna—how could she be "bad"? Surely her only sin in thinking of that other man—a thing which had only become a sin at the marriage ceremony—was that of a day-dream. "But was it a sin?" Like a flash came to her memory of the sermon on the mount.—"Whosoever looketh," said Harold "What does it seem to say?" he whispered. The clear girl listened a moment and answered softly, "It says thick, tick, tick, tick, Harold."

OUT OF THE ORDINARY RUN.

A New York stock exchange seat sold recently for $27,000.

The latest ocean steamship suggestion is a submarine trolley.

The children of the Aleutiaki islanders are born with the left leg an inch shorter than the right.

Wilson Harnett, the most bowlegged boy in Greene county, North Carolina, has had his legs made entirely straight. A Raleigh surgeon got on to it.

The mountain of Fujisan, in Japan, is actually in motion. It is 12,400 feet above sea level, yet the power of the winds in those quarters causes it to sway from side to side.

"The power to wag the ear," writes Eugene M. Aaron in Science, "is common among the West Indian half breeds and the Mexican half breeds, natives of Mexico and Central America, and many whites have the power who hardly realize the fact.

Fayette county, Pa., reports a spring whose waters make the drinker hilarious. A sportsman from Connellsville found a crowd of hilarious dungarians at the bubbling mineral spring. They let him drink but swore him to secrecy as to its location.

The Congo is the most wonderful water-way in the world. It is twen y-five miles wide at its mouth, so that vessels may pass one another and yet be out of sight. It has twice the extent of the navigable waters of the Mississippi and its tributaries and three times its population.

BRAINS AND BRAWN.

The hotel keeping business has assumed enormous proportions in the United States. There are now over 50,000 hotels, excusive of inns and taverns.

A mosaic portrait of President Cleveland is on exhibition in Yonkers, N. Y., which contains 300,000 pieces of Italian marble of various colors and weighs three tons. It is the work of Marienne Gilbert, an artist at Rome.

A company is being formed in Philadelphia by several piano manufacturers for the pur ose of putting on the market an electrical device, which, it is said, will automatically turn leaves of music. The invention is intended to do away with the necessity of turning the leaves by hand, and operates upon pressing a button.

Jasper Van Nette of Tiffin, has invented a sewing machine which bids fair to revolutionize the manufacture of that important article of household economy. It dispenses with the shuttle, the loop being taken from the needle by means of a compound gyratory lever, and secured by a knot in form of a triangle, thus allowing the bobbin to pass through it without friction. The complete device is very simple.

A Child Enjoys

The pleasant flavor, gentle action and soothing effects of Syrup of Figs when in need of a laxative, and if the father or mother be costive or bilious, the most gratifying results follow. It is true, that it is the best family remedy known, and every family should have a bottle on hand.

Farthworms have done more to benefit man than elephants

There are more than a thousand ways in which some people can tell the other people that they are proud

A single trial of Dr. Henry Baxter's Mandrake Bitters will convince any one troubled with constipation, torpid liver or any kindered diseases of their curative properties. They only cost 25 cents per bottle.

Downs Elixir will cure any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing.

The only opinions that weigh much are those we have the courage to express.

There are men with natures so small that, if there is anything in transmigration, they will probably appear as microbes.

Tarrytown, N. Y., Jan. 20, 1896. Having been a sufferer for some time past with biliousness and constipation, I was induced to purchase a box of Ayer's Cathartic Pills. I did so and am pleased to find that they are the best cathartic for all such ailments. I therefore subscribe myself very thankfully to recommending them to any who may suffer with those complaints

News Editor True American.

Write for J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.

Londoners are trying to show that Benjamin Franklin was not the first experimenter in atmospheric electricity or the inventor of the lightning rod. It is said that a Catholic priest named Procopius Divisch, as early as June 13, 1754, noticed that lightning was an electric spark and worked out a complete theory of atmospheric electricity. At the time he was living in a small Bohemian village, and he constructed a rod having 324 needle points, connecting the bottom of it to the earth. Why he didn't advertise the fact at the time is not mentioned.

QUIPS AND CRANKS.

Clara—How has your new dress maker been treating you? Maude—Oh, splendidly. But she has been so rude to me.

"Does she sing?" asked the young man. "Oh, yes," replied the girl to whom he was talking. "Why, all her neighbors stay awake nights listening to her."

"He them all your children, Mrs. M'Sorley?" "Phwat! them all moine? They'd be behavin' themselves better ef they weren't children I'm paid to take care of."

A SURGEON'S KNIFE gives you a feeling of horror and, often, of dread. Many persons fear it. Its use in many diseases formerly regarded as fatal, is without cutting. The Triumph of Conservative Surgery is established by the fact that RUPTURE or Hrrach, is now radically cured without the knife and without pain. Clumsy, chafing trusses are no longer worn. They never cure but often induce inflammation, strangulation and death. TUMORS Ovarian, Fibroid (Uterine) and others, are removed without the perils of cutting operations. PILE TUMORS, larger, larger than Hazel Nuts, and other diseases of the lower bowel, are permanently cured without pain or resort to the knife. STONE in the Bladder, no matter how large, is crushed, pulverized and the parts perfectly removed without cutting. STRICTURE of Urinary Passage is cured without cutting in hundreds of cases. For particulars, terms and all other matters, send 20 cents (in stamps to cover postage) for Dr. Sherman's Book of Advice, 665 Main St., Buffalo, N. Y.

Afflicted with Thompson's Eye Water.

$10,000 OFFERED Bold Headed or Scalp Diseased People, send for circulars, Seneca County Medical Association, Ovid, N. Y.

Patents, Trade-Marks, Examination and advice as to Patentability of inventions. Send for "Inventor's Guide" or how to obtain a patent. PATENT SOLICITOR, WASHINGTON, D. C.

A.P.A EXPOSED. 32 PAGE Price 10c; 3 for 25c. Address A.P.A. P.O. Box 132, Toledo, O.

W. N. U., D.—XI—48.

When writing to Advertisers please say you saw the advertisement in this Paper.

ST. JACOBS OIL IS THE KING-CURE OVER ALL.

FOR SCIATICA IT HAS NO EQUAL, NO SUPERIOR. ALONE THE BEST.

WORK THIS WINTER

For us. Cash pay weekly; business men, professional men, mechanics, farmers—their sons, daughters and others, work for us the year round—because nothing else brings them so much cash quick. Spare hours profitable. Send for free particulars. Address, with stamp, H. E. Johnson & Co., Boston, Mass. Agents wanted everywhere to sell the Improved Common Sense Family Scale. Weighs accurately from 1 oz. to 24 lbs. Every family will buy one. Sells at sight. Every scale warranted. Big profits. Permanent employment. Exclusive territory. Write for terms and free sample scale. Address, Improved Common Sense Scale Co., 1 Barclay St., New York.

Cream of Tartar and Soda

Have uses in cooking well known to every housekeeper; but the method of refining them to make them chemically pure, and of mixing them together so as to produce their greatest leavening power and best results when combined, is a matter of great exactness, requiring the most expert knowledge and skill.

Royal Baking Powder

Is the product of this knowledge and experience and the expenditure of many thousands of dollars in patents and appliances for its preparation. It is a compound of strictly pure grape cream of tartar and absolutely pure soda, combined with exactness and care by famous chemists, and it will produce more wholesome and delicate bread, biscuit, cake, rolls, etc., than can be had where this modern agent of cooking is not used.

Beware of the cheap compounds called baking powders to catch the unwary. They are made with alum and are poisonous.

CHEAPEST ASSORTED SURE TO PAY HANDSOMELY FROM THE VERY START.

Above is a picture of WILLIAM H. GARRISON, SALEM, Mass., before he began using Dr. Shoop's Restorative. He says: "I was at work on a farm for twenty dollars a month, I was discouraged, had no hope. I was a victim of Kidney Troubles, and other male troubles dating 20 years. To-day I am a well man, and am working for $2.00 per day, and am happy." Dr. Shoop's Restorative is the kind that does make people well. It makes them strong. It makes them full of vigor. It makes them full of ambition. It makes them full of life. It makes them full of health. It makes them full of strength. It makes them full of energy. It makes them full of power. It makes them full of vitality. It makes them full of manhood. It makes them full of womanhood. It makes them full of everything that makes people well. It makes them full of everything that makes people strong. It makes them full of everything that makes people happy. It makes them full of everything that makes people joyful. It makes them full of everything that makes people cheerful. It makes them full of everything that makes people glad. It makes them full of everything that makes people rejoice. It makes them full of everything that makes people sing. It makes them full of everything that makes people dance. It makes them full of everything that makes people laugh. It makes them full of everything that makes people smile. It makes them full of everything that makes people live. It makes them full of everything that makes people love. It makes them full of everything that makes people hope. It makes them full of everything that makes people believe. It makes them full of everything that makes people trust. It makes them full of everything that makes people pray. It makes them full of everything that makes people worship. It makes them full of everything that makes people obey. It makes them full of everything that makes people serve. It makes them full of everything that makes people live. It makes them full of everything that makes people die. It makes them full of everything that makes people rise. It makes them full of everything that makes people ascend. It makes them full of everything that makes people enter heaven. It makes them full of everything that makes people sit at the right hand of God. It makes them full of everything that makes people reign with Christ. It makes them full of everything that makes people judge the world. It makes them full of everything that makes people judge angels. It makes them full of everything that makes people judge devils. It makes them full of everything that makes people judge themselves. It makes them full of everything that makes people judge one another. It makes them full of everything that makes people judge nothing. It makes them full of everything that makes people judge everything. It makes them full of everything that makes people judge God. It makes them full of everything that makes people judge Christ. It makes them full of everything that makes people judge the Holy Ghost. It makes them full of everything that makes people judge the Father. It makes them full of everything that makes people judge the Son. It makes them full of everything that makes people judge the Holy Spirit. It makes them full of everything that makes people judge the Trinity. It makes them full of everything that makes people judge the Godhead. It makes them full of everything that makes people judge the Deity. It makes them full of everything that makes people judge the Divinity. It makes them full of everything that makes people judge the Supreme Being. It makes them full of everything that makes people judge the Creator. It makes them full of everything that makes people judge the Maker. It makes them full of everything that makes people judge the Preserver. It makes them full of everything that makes people judge the Redeemer. It makes them full of everything that makes people judge the Saviour. It makes them full of everything that makes people judge the Lord. It makes them full of everything that makes people judge the King. It makes them full of everything that makes people judge the Prince. It makes them full of everything that makes people judge the Emperor. It makes them full of everything that makes people judge the Ruler. It makes them full of everything that makes people judge the Governor. It makes them full of everything that makes people judge the President. It makes them full of everything that makes people judge the Vice-President. It makes them full of everything that makes people judge the Secretary. It makes them full of everything that makes people judge the Treasurer. It makes them full of everything that makes people judge the Auditor. It makes them full of everything that makes people judge the Comptroller. It makes them full of everything that makes people judge the Attorney-General. It makes them full of everything that makes people judge the Postmaster-General. It makes them full of everything that makes people judge the Secretary of the Navy. It makes them full of everything that makes people judge the Secretary of War. It makes them full of everything that makes people judge the Secretary of the Interior. It makes them full of everything that makes people judge the Secretary of Agriculture. It makes them full of everything that makes people judge the Secretary of Commerce. It makes them full of everything that makes people judge the Secretary of Labor. It makes them full of everything that makes people judge the Secretary of the Treasury. It makes them full of everything that makes people judge the Secretary of State