

THE "FOUR-FOOTED" POLICEMAN
A Boston Boy That One Day He Bought For Any Master
East Boston has a four-footed policeman in the shape of a large, black dog, and he is called a "policeman" because he is so loyal to his master, understanding every word he says and obeying him like a dog. He is called "Nero" because he is the son of a four-footed policeman in the fashion of a dog.

"KING NOTTINGHAM,"

19,464, STANDARD AND REGISTERED.

This magnificent standard of the great "Notwood," will be allowed to serve a main number of males of this strain for the season with the usual regular privilege. King Nottingham is a very Dry Chestnut, 11/2 hands high, well proportioned by wood, of a weight of about 150 lbs. There is no doubt for one day each week during season. Superior breeding will be in Birmingham one day each week during season.

Living in the same house with the dog's master was another family who called King Nottingham. This animal and Nero were close friends. One day Nero was not to be found. His master was watching in vain for her return, but at noontime she was still missing. She was walking alone and down the road, sniffing at the ground.
"Nero, do you know where Nero is?" called his master.
Nero barked and ran to the gate. "Do you want to bring Nero?" he said.
Nero gave another bark and began to scratch at the gate.
"Go find Nero and bring her home," he said, and Nero looked for her.

THE PATH OF PROGRESS.

It is a strange fact that while paper is being used for dozens of purposes, it is not used for the most important of them, such as car wheels, horse barrels, pallets, etc. It is rapidly driving out the leather of nearly all the cheaper grades of paper.
