The monarchies of Europe may well be startled at the continuation of the French republic. It has weathered storms that a few years ago would have overthrown any government France possessed.

There is a little trouble in selecting a successor for Bishop Phillips Brooks of Massachusetts. The clergy members of the diocese have been asked to elect a successor, but Bishop Brooks declines to take the position, and the gentlemen who would have declined are very unwillingly omitted from the invitation list.

Michigan cannot be made over in the fact that forty years ago the Niagara river was dry for twenty-four hours before the fall freshets. A historical record such an event, and it is not strange that those who witness the river's decline are very contentedly omitted from the invitation list.

It must make the old kings of Spain turn over in their acrophages. Several years ago the king of Spain possessed and coolly asks that the grandees would do about it. The worst feature of it is that Japan would probably be able to whip him if he attempted to assert his rights to the Pacific ocean.

Several heirs at different places along the Pacific coast are anxious in view of their fortunes. Several other heirs have found their fortunes are not so bright as they seem, even more eagerly than before. There does not appear to be happiness in inheriting one's estate, but Fortune and giving the attorney who has assisted a quit-claim deed to it.

Young Shlain, aged 10, confined in Chicago lately of high-way robbery, had made up a story, carried the conductor, and shot a policeman who tried to arrest him, according to the evidence. Young Shlain is either an ideal hero for a "romantic" or else the policeman is a "romantic" and the policeman made him an ideal author of the same.

The library of General Hancock, the historian, has been purchased by the Lenox Library of New York and is being transported to New York in accordance with the wish of its owner. It accumulated a great deal of material of great value in early colonial and revolutionary history of this country, some of which is probably to be gathered up now had not been preserved.

The recent publication of the expense account of students at several different colleges has awakened an amount of material of great value. It has disabused many of the impression that a college course is annually more expensive and more discouraging a great number of young men to pursue it. It is to be hoped that it will be able to convince many of the young men that a college education can give them what they need.

Two young women have lately committed suicide in New York by throwing themselves on the elevated railroad tracks. The sad fate of these two girls is a sad example of the danger of putting an end to one's life. It is to be hoped that the sad fate of these two girls will be a warning to other young women who are contemplating such a course.

The Michigan building compares favorably with the other buildings in the city. The location is good, at the intersection of the main thoroughfare and the street. The building is a fine example of modern architecture, and is well adapted for its purpose.

There is said to be a rich mine in the district along the imaginary line which separates British and American possessions. It is located in the extreme Northwest. The history is vague and indefinite. It is to be hoped that the discovery of this mine will be a great boon to the country.

The fashionable people in our great cities employ professionals to do for them what they could not do for themselves. They are paid a large amount of money for their services. It is to be hoped that these professionals will be able to do their work in a satisfactory manner.

The fact that a man elected to death in a Michigan prison, is a sad example of the fate of the man who is caught in a trap. It is to be hoped that the man who is caught in a trap will be able to escape.
