

WHICH WILL INTEREST VOLUNTEERS. A Railroad Wreck Narrowly Averted...

Those who are walking to the world's fair for fun and those who are walking back from necessity will have an opportunity to exchange congratulations at the cross roads.

The duke of Veragua neither the waves of Tampico nor the rough seas of the Gulf of Mexico could cable over when he gets home that he is dead broke and anxious for a sympathetic hand.

The German artist who placed his own picture in the market for exhibition for sale might be tempted to sell it for less than $20,000, but he is a splendid artist, but he will never sell it for more than $20,000 because he is not a popular and never make a cent.

Lieutenant Peart does not appear to be appreciating his position very fully, but he is learning something. It has dawned upon him that the price of dogs is regulated by the demand. Also that the Colorado wolf will not be the most recent dog of the Greenland coast.

The cost of the Chicago postoffice is one-third of its revenue. Chicagoans not only pay for their own postoffice, but they also pay for the deficit in the postoffice department on the entire mail service.

"War should I hug other women when I have a wife?" "No, you should always get to be embraced," asked a man in a New York police court when he was accused of hugging women on the street, but the justice fined him $10 just to show that he probably is justice is a married man himself.

The night that a mob broke into the Memphis jail and took freedom and lynched a young negro the sheriff very carefully allowed himself to be knocked on the head and so was not able to defend his prisoner. He is now a candidate for reelection, but his constituents are not so kind at the crowd of teachers in his strongest campaign material.

The suicide who put an end to his life by exploding powder in his mouth is sure to be remembered. There are those who maintain that suicide is as much an epidemic as sleeping sickness. However, never this may be it is true that any peculiar method, either of suicide or murder, is sure to be imitated.

If Peary means to race with Nanoo for the north pole, he will not linger about Newfoundland too long and get lost in the fog banks. The most impressive thing about the elusive pole is to be driven to its covert and caught at last, and every-thing else is secondary.

MEMES MALLETTO AND MATAPPA, rival kings of the Samoan islands, have been amusing themselves with a little private war. The latter was killed out of his royal sandals, but he is now a private citizen.
