CAGED BIRDS.

It Is a Rule That They Are Always Happy When They Sing.

"Yes," she said, "I think he is just too pretty for anything and he sings beautifully, but I wouldn't buy a canary or any other bird. I think it is cruel to keep them in cages," and rejoin a dainty toss of her pretty head she passed out of the store.

"That isn't the first woman I've heard talk like that, and I don't expect it will be the last time," said the old bird fancier, when she was gone, "but it always makes me tired."

"Why?" asked the New York Herald reporter.

"Because it is nothing but sentimental nonsense. When birds sing in or out of captivity it is a sign that they are healthy and happy and in good spirits. When you hear a man whistling or humming or singing a snatch of song to himself you know that he is feeling pretty good. It is just the same with a bird. When you have one in a cage that sings blithely all day long you may feel sure that the little creature is happy, and instead of reproaching yourself for shutting it up in a cage you may congratulate yourself on having saved for it so much comfort and enjoyment, at the same time protecting it against all the foes of bird life to which it would be exposed if free.

"But you may think it is business makes me talk like that," said the old man, perhaps detecting a cynical smile off my face. "Just listen to what Dr. B. Placzkek says in one of his studies of bird life.—Why do Birds Sing?—

This is what the old man read:

"Birds in freedom begin to sing before pairing and continue it, subject to interruption, long afterward, though all passion has been extinguished; and domesticated birds sing through the whole year without regard to breeding time, though no female companion ever be in sight. Such birds, born in captivity, never feel the loss of freedom, and if they are well taken care of are always hearty and in good spirits.

"That, from such an authority, is conclusive," he added, closing the book with a triumphant bang.

"But why didn't you try to convince the young lady she was mistaken?" I asked.

"Because it would be no use; I've tried it too often. She would probably repeat to me the words of an old song. Most of 'em do—

"If this cage is all of metal,
Tell me why a bird has wings."

"And with sentimental young women, you know, what a poet says goes every time. Rhyme with them double discounts reason."

Saved His Life.

After the repulse of the rebel attack on the Shah Nujeef at Lucknow, John Pandy counterfeited death with great skill, then all of a sudden sprang to his feet and ran like a deer. He was still within easy range, and several rifles were leveled at him; but Sergeant Findley, who was on the rampart—and himself one of the best shots in the service—called out: "Don't fire, men! Give poor devil a chance!" Instead of a volley of bullets he got a cheer which sped him on his way. As soon as he heard it he realized that a poet says hatted, turned around, and putting up both his hands, with the palms together, in front of his face, salaamed profoundly, and then walked slowly away, while the Highland soldiers on the rampart waved their feathered bonnets and clapped their hands.—Argonaut.

A New Method of Love Making.

He—Will you be mine?

She—Certainly not. What a question!

He—Then, of course, you will return the gold watch and chain.

She—You never gave me a watch and chain or anything else. My friend, Mr. Lilywhite, gave them to me.

He—Yes; but he got them at my store. And, as he never intended to pay for them, of course it is the same as though I got them of you.

She—H'm! So it is. But this is sudden.

Taoism in China.

Whatever is most degraded and most superstitious in the religious systems of China owes its origin to Taoism. If an ignorant girl wishes to have her horoscope cast, or a shopkeeper desires to fix upon a fortunate day on which to marry his daughter or to bury his wife, application is invariably made to a Taoist "priest," who, combining the professions of fortune teller and spiritual guide, unhesitatingly returns oracular answers, which more or less satisfy the demands of the inquirer.

In the Curio Hall.

Bromley—The face of that Circassian maid looks strangely familiar. Haven't I seen him before?

Tomley—Why, certainly! Didn't you know? That's Charley Hardface, who played on the Yale foot ball team last season. His father failed, and the thought of having to work for a living turned Charley's hair white. Looks like a thing Circassian job over since.—Puck.

A Natural Death.

Le Fanu, in his "Seventy years of Irish Life," tells of a peasant who said to a gentleman: "My poor father died last night, your honor." "I'm sorry for that now," answers the other, "and what doctor attended him?" "Ah! my poor father wouldn't have a doctor, he always said he'd like to die a natural death."

Very like Grown Folks.

Mother—Did you pray that you might be made a better girl?

Little Ethel—I forgot about xat, but I prayed xat Johnny might be made a better boy.

SCHOOL NOTES.

[Edited by the Senior Class.]

Miss Ives was suddenly called home March 1st by the illness of her sister.

A few of our High Room pupils attended the Association meeting at Pontiac, Saturday, March 3.

Lyceum was postponed because of the school being closed.

Miss Myra Coleman intends to become a member of our school when it re-opens.

School will begin the 19 h of March. Good opportunity at that time to begin work in physical geography, physiology, rhetoric, English literature and to review algebra and grammar.

At the end of February there had been enrolled to date 328 pupils.

The attendance the past month has been very irregular on account of measles, but in our opinion this is no excuse for the tardiness in the 9th grade. It is rumored there were 14 cases. We have heard of a petition to the Superintendent to report the 9th grade seperate from the rest of the High School. We hope the bare suggestion of such a thing will awaken the Freshmen to a realization of the light in which their lack of enterprise is regarded by the higher classmen.

As usual the 2nd grammar department had the best record of any department with a percentage of attendance 97 83; and the Seniors the best of any class, percentage, 99 76.

The High School can boast of 18 tardy marks, 14 caused by the Freshmen and 4 by the Sophomores.

We must not neglect to mention the exhibit of school work at Pontiac in which Birmingham figured with so great credit. We are assured that our school had the best general exhibit. The merit of our work was so great that many questioned the genuineness of the same, but the teachers affirm that the work was almost without exception done under their inspection. Our citizens will probably be given an opportunity to inspect some of this work in the near future.

BIG BEAVER BLIZZARDS.

Mud, mud, mud! That is the principal article we have to deal with, and the principal topic of conversation at present writing.

Dr. I. S. Morris of Lee's Corners, visited here recently.

An entertainment will be given by the Lady Maccabees on Friday evening, March 16.

The robin, sweet harbinger of spring, is with us.

Payson Halsey and Emogene Gibbs have been chosen as delegates to the Sunday School Convention which will be held in Pontiac, March 21 and 22.

Claude Kinney, of Mt. Clemens, has been visiting Willis Gibbs.

D Harris has the measles.

Mr. Quick still remains very ill.

Mrs. Myra Phelps is dangerously ill at this writing.

Grace Robbins is trembling with fear of measles and scarlet fever which would keep her out of school as she has not yet been tardy or absent this year.

The entertainment given by the Epworth and Junior Leagues was a grand success. The program consisted of songs and recitations, and every one who took part was perfect in their role.

"SONG OF THE INDIAN RIVER."

Kissed by sunshine, lulled by breezes,
Lies mine own, my native land,
With the waves from Gulf and Ocean,
Breaking on its shining sand;
Countless lakes and winding rivers,
Almost lost in depths of green;
Fairest flowers and trees to crown her,
Florida the Southern Queen.

* * *

Northern boatmen, leave your rivers
That are frozen fast in ice,
Here he rules not, I am ready,
Waiting for your guiding oar.
And the life within my waters,
Glittering with rainbow hues,
Far exceeds your wildest fancy—
All I offer—yours to choose.

* * *

Warmer grows my heart, and warmer,
Glad my days and full of mirth,
Till, at last, my journey ended—
In the arms of fair Lake Worth
Do I lie, her shores caressing
Through the sun kissed happy hours
Let the Indian River bear you
To this dream-like Land of Flowers!

NEW GOODS ARRIVING EVERY DAY! PRICES AS LOW AS ANYONE, AT F. HAGERMAN'S DRUG STORE, Birmingham, Mich.

THE PONTIAC, BEE-HIVE, MICH.

Pontiac's Great Carpet, Oil Cloth, Linoleum, Matting and Rug Emporium.

To parties furnishing and all Carpet Buyers in Oakland County.

Whole Rolls of CARPET and a great many of them to select from at the Bee-Hive, second store south of Court House, Pontiac.

Many thousands of yards of New Ingrain and other Carpets just placed on our carpet floor direct from the mills this week. The patterns and designs are really elegant, and the prices never so moderate as now.

Never in mind the Ramsay advertisements, the Bee-Hive has the stock and intends to dispose of them at an exceedingly moderate margin of profit. Having handled carpets for many years, we never have owned them at as low prices as now. We truthfully assert that our stock of this line was never in better order and never excelled either in quality or quantity. Our prestige in the Carpet Trade (by keeping none but good goods) we intend to maintain. The favor of an early spring call respectfully solicited.

JOHN POUND.
